FOREWORD

Work on this Stylebook began in mid-1975. The orders were: Make clear and simple rules, permit few exceptions to the rules, and rely heavily on the chosen dictionary as the arbiter of conflicts.

As work progressed, we became convinced that while style would remain the chief purpose, there were many factual references we should include to make things a bit easier for busy editors.

So we have a Stylebook, but also a reference work.

As for the "style" itself, we thought at the outset that it wouldn't be possible to please everyone. Of course, we were right.

Journalists approach these style questions with varying degrees of passion.

Some don't think it is really important. Some agree that basically there should be uniformity for reading ease if nothing else. Still others are prepared to duel over a wayward lowercase.

We encountered all three of these types and, in their special ways, all were helpful.

It is customary at this place to thank those whose aid and counsel produced the volume that follows.

That list is long. It ranges from the staff of The Associated Press to editors and writers on member newspapers, to other individuals and groups with special interests in some subjects. In particular we sought and received many member views on a variety of difficult questions so that this book could reflect what members wanted.

We are particularly grateful to those newspaper editors who agreed to review the final draft and give us their comments as well as those of their staffs.

The completed book incorporates many of their suggestions.

We have tried to make the Stylebook current and trust it will be a lasting work. But language changes, and we will review entries annually, making necessary changes by wire notes during the review period.

Each new printing of the Stylebook will incorporate the changes that have been announced on the wires.

Chief Executive Officer

STYLEBOOK KEY

This updated and revised version of The Associated Press Stylebook has been organized like a dictionary. Need the acronym for a government agency? Look under the agency's name. Should you capitalize a word? Check the word itself or the capitalization entry. What's the format for baseball boxes? See baseball.

Following is a key to the entries:

airport Capitalize as part of a proper name: La Guardia Airport, Newark International Airport.

The first name of an individual and the word international may be deleted from a formal airport name while the remainder is capitalized: John F. Kennedy International Airport, Kennedy International Airport, or Kennedy Airport. Use whichever is appropriate in the context.

Do not make up names, however. There is no Boston Airport, for example. The Boston airport (lowercase airport) would be acceptable if for some reason the proper name, Logan International Airport, were not used.

airways The system of routes that the federal government has established for airplane traffic.

Alabama Abbrev.: Ala. See state names.

Entry words, in alphabetical order, are in boldface. They represent the accepted word forms unless otherwise indicated.

Text explains usage.

Examples of correct and incorrect usage are in italics.

Many entries simply give the correct spelling, hyphenation and/or capitalization.

Abbrev. indicates the correct abbreviation of a word.

Related topics are in boldface.

Other abbreviations used in the Stylebook:

adj.: adjectives

A

AAA Formerly the American Automobile Association. On second reference, the automobile association or the association is acceptable.

Headquarters is in Heathrow, Fla.

a, an Use the article a before consonant sounds: a historic event, a one-year term (sounds as if it begins with a w), a united stand (sounds like you).

Use the article an before vowel sounds: an energy crisis, an honorable man (the h is silent), an NBA record (sounds like it begins with the letter e), an 1890s celebration.

a- The rules of prefixes apply, but in general no hyphen. Some examples:

achromatic atonal

A&P Acceptable in all references for Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. Inc. Headquarters is in Montvale, N.J.

AARP Use only the initials; it's the official name of the American Association of Retired Persons.

abbreviations and acronyms The notation abbrev. is used in this book to identify the abbreviated form that may be used for a word in some contexts.

A few universally recognized abbreviations are required in some circumstances. Some others are acceptable depending on the context. But in general, avoid alphabet soup. Do not use abbreviations or acronyms which the reader would not quickly recognize.

Guidance on how to use a particular abbreviation or acronym is provided in entries alphabetized according to the sequence of letters in the word or phrase.

Some general principles:

BEFORE A NAME: Abbreviate the following titles when used before a full name outside direct quotations: Dr., Gov., Lt. Gov., Mr., Mrs., Rep., the Rev., Sen. and certain military designations listed in the military titles entry. Spell out all except Dr., Mr., Mrs. and Ms. when they are used before a name in direct quotations.

For guidelines on how to use titles, see courtesy titles; legislative titles; military titles; religious titles; and the entries for the most commonly used titles.

AFTER A NAME: Abbreviate junior or senior after an individual's name. Abbreviate company, corporation, incorporated and limited when used after the name of a corporate entity. See entries under these words and company names.

In some cases, an academic degree may be abbreviated after an individual's name. See academic degrees.

WITH DATES OR NUMERALS: Use the abbreviations A.D., B.C., a.m., p.m., No., and abbreviate certain months when used with the day of the month.

Right: In 450 B.C.; at 9:30 a.m.; in room No. 6; on Sept. 16.

Wrong: Early this a.m. he asked for the No. of your room.
The abbreviations are correct only with figures.

Right: Early this morning he asked for the number of your room.

See months and individual entries for these other terms.

IN NUMBERED ADDRESSES: Abbreviate avenue, boulevard and street in numbered addresses: He lives on Pennsylvania Avenue. He lives at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

See addresses.

STATES: The names of certain states and the United States are abbreviated with periods in some circumstances.

See state names; datelines; and individual entries.

ACCEPTABLE BUT NOT REQUIRED: Some organizations and government agencies are widely recognized by their initials: CIA, FBI, GOP.

If the entry for such an organization notes that an abbreviation is acceptable in all references or on second reference, that does not mean that its use should be automatic. Let the context determine, for example, whether to use Federal Bureau of Investigation or FBI.

See second reference.

AVOID AWKWARD CONSTRUCTIONS: Do not follow an organization's full name with an abbreviation or acronym in parentheses or set off by dashes. If an abbreviation or acronym would not be clear on second reference without this arrangement, do not use it.

Names not commonly before the public should not be reduced to acronyms solely to save a few words.

SPECIAL CASES: Many abbreviations are desirable in tabulations and certain types of technical writing. See individual entries.

CAPS, PERIODS: Use capital letters and periods according to the listings in this book. For words not in this book, use the first-listed abbreviation in Webster's New World Dictionary. If an abbreviation not listed in this book or in the dictionary achieves widespread acceptance, use capital letters. Omit periods unless the result would spell an unrelated word.

ABC Acceptable in all references for American Broadcasting Cos. (the plural is part of the corporate name).

Divisions are ABC News, ABC Radio and ABC-TV.

ABM, ABMs Acceptable in all references for anti-ballistic missile(s), but the term should be defined in the story.

Avoid the redundant phrase ABM missiles.

A-bomb Use atomic bomb unless a direct quotation is involved.

See Hiroshima.

abortion Use anti-abortion instead of pro-life and abortion rights instead of pro-abortion or pro-choice. Avoid abortionist, which connotes a person who performs clandestine abortions; use a term such as abortion doctor or abortion practitioner.

absent without leave

AWOL is acceptable on second reference.

academic degrees If mention of degrees is necessary to establish someone's credentials, the preferred form is to avoid an abbreviation and use instead a phrase such as: John Jones, who has a doctorate in psychology.

Use an apostrophe in bachelor's degree, a master's, etc.

Use such abbreviations as B.A., M.A., LL.D. and Ph.D. only when the need to identify many individuals by degree on first reference would make the preferred form cumbersome. Use these abbreviations only after a full name — never after just a last name.

When used after a name, an academic abbreviation is set off by commas: Daniel Moynihan, Ph.D., spoke.

Do not precede a name with a courtesy title for an academic degree and follow it with the abbreviation for the degree in the same reference:

academic departments

Use lowercase except for words that are proper nouns or adjectives: the department of history, the history department, the department of English, the English department, or when department is part of the official and formal name: University of Connecticut Department of Medicine.

academic titles Capitalize and spell out formal titles such as chancellor, chairman, etc., when they precede a name. Lowercase elsewhere.

Lowercase modifiers such as department in department Chairman Jerome Wiesner.

See doctor and titles.

academy See military academies.

Academy Awards Presented annually by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Also known as the Oscars.

Lowercase the academy and the awards whenever they stand alone.

accept, except Accept means to receive.

Except means to exclude.

accused A person is accused of, not with, a crime.

To avoid any suggestion that an individual is being judged before a trial, do not use a phrase such as accused slayer John Jones, use John Jones, accused of the slaying.

For guidelines on related words, see allege; arrest; and indict.

Ace A trademark for a brand of elastic bandage.

acre Equal to 43,560 square feet or 4,840 square yards. The metric equivalent is .4 (two-fifths) of a hectare or 4,047 square meters.

One square mile is 640 acres.

To convert to hectares, multiply by .4 (5 acres x .4 equals 2 hectares).

See hectare.

acronyms See the abbreviations and acronyms entry.

act Capitalize when part of the name for pending or implemented legislation: the Taft-Hartley Act.

acting Always lowercase, but capitalize any formal title that may follow before a name: acting Mayor Peter Barry.

See titles.

act numbers Use Arabic figures and capitalize act: Act 1; Act 2, Scene 2. But: the first act, the second act.

Headquarters is in New York.

A.D. Acceptable in all references for anno Domini: in the year of the Lord.

Because the full phrase would read in the year of the Lord 96, the abbreviation A.D. goes before the figure for the year: A.D. 96.

Do not write: The fourth century A.D. The fourth century is sufficient. If A.D. is not specified with

See B.C.

-added Follow this form in sports stories: The $50,000-added sweepstakes.

addresses Use the abbreviations Ave., Blvd. and St. only with a numbered address: 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. Spell them out and capitalize when part of a formal street name without a number: Pennsylvania Avenue. Lowercase and spell out when used alone or with more than one street name: Massachusetts and Pennsylvania avenues.

All similar words (alley, drive, road, terrace, etc.) always are spelled out. Capitalize them when part of a formal name without a number; lowercase when used alone or with two or more names.

Always use figures for an address number: 9 Morningside Circle.

Spell out and capitalize First through Ninth when used as street names; use figures with two letters for 10th and above: 7 Fifth Ave., 100 21st St.

Abbreviate compass points used to indicate directional ends of a street or quadrants of a city in a numbered address: 222 E. 42nd St., 562 W. 43rd St., 600 K St. N.W. Do not abbreviate if the number is omitted: East 42nd Street, West 43rd Street, K Street Northwest.

See highway designations.

adjectives The abbreviation adj. is used in this book to identify the spelling of the adjectival forms of words that frequently are misspelled.

The comma entry provides guidance on punctuating a series of adjectives.

administration Lowercase: the administration, the president's administration, the governor's administration, the Reagan administration.

See the government, junta, regime entry for distinctions that apply in using these terms and administration.

administrative law judge

This is the federal title for the position formerly known as hearing examiner. Capitalize it when used as a formal title before a name.

To avoid the long title, seek a construction that sets the title off by commas: The administrative law judge, John Williams, disagreed.

administrator Never abbreviate. Capitalize when used as a formal title before a name.

See titles.

admiral See military titles.

admit, admitted These words may in some contexts give the erroneous connotation of wrongdoing.

A person who announces that he is a homosexual, for example, may be acknowledging it to the world, not admitting it. Said is usually sufficient.

ad nauseam adopt, approve, enact, pass Amendments, ordinances, resolutions and rules are adopted or approved.

Bills are passed.

Laws are enacted.

Adrenalin A trademark for the synthetic or chemically extracted forms of epinephrine, a substance produced by the adrenal glands.

The nonproprietary terms are epinephrine hydrochloride or adrenaline.

Adventist See Seventh-day Adventist Church.

adverbs The abbreviation adv. is used in this book to identify the spelling of adverbial forms of words frequently misspelled.

See the hyphen entry in the Punctuation chapter for guidelines on when an adverb should be followed by a hyphen in constructing a compound modifier.

adverse, averse Adverse means unfavorable: He predicted adverse weather.

Aer Lingus The headquarters of this airline is in Dublin, Ireland.

Aeroflot The headquarters of this airline is in Moscow.

Headquarters is in Mexico City.

affect, effect Affect, as a verb, means to influence: The game will affect the standings.

Affect, as a noun, is best avoided. It occasionally is used in psychology to describe an emotion, but there is no need for it in everyday language.

Effect, as a verb, means to cause: He will effect many changes in the company.

Effect, as a noun, means result: The effect was overwhelming. He miscalculated the effect of his actions. It was a law of little effect.

Afghan (adj.) Afghani is the Afghan unit of currency.

AFL-CIO Acceptable in all references for the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations.

A-frame

African Of or pertaining to Africa, or any of its peoples or languages. Do not use the word as a synonym for black or Negro.

In some countries of Africa, colored is used to describe those of mixed white and black ancestry. In other societies colored is considered a derogatory word.

Because of the ambiguity, avoid the term in favor of a phrase such as mixed racial ancestry. If the word cannot be avoided, place it in quotation marks and provide its meaning.

See colored.

African-American The preferred term is black. Use African-American only in quotations or the names of organizations or if individuals describe themselves so.

See black.

after- No hyphen after this prefix when it is used to form a noun:

aftereffect afterthought

Follow after with a hyphen when it is used to form compound modifiers:

after-dinner drink after-theater snack afterward Not afterwards.

Agency for International Development AID is acceptable on second reference.

agenda A list. It takes singular verbs and pronouns: The agenda has run its course.

agent Lowercase unless it is a formal title used before a name.

In the FBI, the formal title is special agent. Use Special Agent William Smith if appropriate in a special context. Otherwise, make it agent William Smith or FBI agent William Smith.

See titles.

ages Always use figures. When the context does not require years or years old, the figure is presumed to be years.

Ages expressed as adjectives before a noun or as substitutes for a noun use hyphens.

Examples: A 5-year-old boy, but the boy is 5 years old. The boy, 7, has a sister, 10. The woman, 26, has a daughter 2 months old. The law is 8 years old. The race is for 3-year-olds. The woman is in her 30s (no apostrophe).

See also boy; girl; infant; and youth.

See comma in punctuation guidelines.

ages of history See the historical periods and events entry.

agnostic, atheist An agnostic is a person who believes it is impossible to know whether there is a God.

An atheist is a person who believes there is no God.

aid, aide Aid is assistance.

An aide is a person who serves as an assistant.

aide-de-camp, aides-de-camp A military officer who serves as assistant and confidential secretary to a superior.

AIDS Acceptable in all references for acquired immune deficiency syndrome, sometimes written as acquired immunodeficiency syndrome.

AIDS is an affliction in which a virus has weakened the body's immune system and cancer or serious infections have occurred.

AIDS is spread most often through sexual contact; contaminated needles or syringes shared by drug abusers; infected blood or blood products; and from pregnant women to their offspring.

The scientific name for the virus is human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV. The most common type of the virus is often designated HIV-1 to distinguish it from another type called HIV-2.

National AIDS statistics, which are updated monthly, are available from the federal government's Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta.

A note about AIDS tests: Routine AIDS tests look for the presence of antibodies the body has made to defend against the AIDS virus. A positive antibody test is evidence of an infection with the AIDS virus. People who test positive are often described as being HIV-positive.

A positive result does not mean the person tested has AIDS. People infected with the virus do not have AIDS until they develop serious symptoms. Many remain infected but apparently healthy for years.

AIDS antibody tests should be distinguished from tests for the AIDS virus itself. The presence of the AIDS virus can be confirmed by laboratory cultures or by the much more sensitive polymerase chain reaction, or PCR, test.

ain't A dialectical or substandard contraction. Use it only in quoted matter or special contexts.

air base Two words. Follow the practice of the U.S. Air Force, which uses air force base as part of the proper name for its bases in the United States and air base for its installations abroad.

On second reference: the Air Force base, the air base, or the base.

Do not abbreviate, even in datelines:

LACKLAND AIR FORCE BASE, Texas (AP) —

Air Canada Headquarters is in Montreal.

air-condition, air-conditioned (v. and adj.) The nouns are: air conditioner, air conditioning.

aircraft names Use a hyphen when changing from letters to figures; no hyphen when adding a letter after figures.

Some examples for aircraft often in the news: B-1, BAC-111, C-5A, DC-10, FH-227, F-15 Eagle, F-16 Falcon, L-1011, MiG-21, Tu-144, 727-100C, 747, 747B, VC-10. Airbus A300 or A300 (no hyphen) is an exception.

This hyphenation principle is the one used most frequently by manufacturers and users. Apply it in all cases for consistency. For other elements of a name, use the form adopted by the manufacturer or user. If in doubt, consult Jane's All the World's Aircraft.

NO QUOTES: Do not use quotation marks for aircraft with names: Air Force One, the Spirit of St. Louis, Concorde.

PLURALS: DC-10s, 747s. But: 747B's. (As noted in plurals, the apostrophe is used in forming the plural of a single letter.)

SEQUENCE: Use Arabic figures to establish the sequence of aircraft, spacecraft and missiles: Apollo 10. Do not use hyphens.

aircraft terms Use engine, not motor, for the units that propel aircraft: a twin-engine plane (not twin engined).

Use jet plane or jetliner to describe only those aircraft driven solely by jet engines. Use turbo-prop to describe an aircraft on which the jet engine is geared to a propeller. Turboprops sometimes are called propjets.

Jet planes in commercial use include the BAC-111; Boeing 707, 727, 737, 747; the Convair 880; the DC-8, DC-9, and DC-10; the L-1011; and the VC-10.

See the engine, motor entry.

air force Capitalize when referring to U.S. forces: the U.S. Air Force, the Air Force, Air Force regulations. Do not use the abbreviation USAF.

Congress established the Army Air Forces (note the s) in 1941. Prior to that, the air arm was known as the U.S. Army Air Corps. The U.S. Air Force (no s) was created as a separate service in 1947.

Use lowercase for the forces of other nations: the Israeli air force.

This approach has been adopted for consistency, because many foreign nations do not use air force as the proper name.

air force base See air base.

Air Force One The Air Force applies this name to any of its aircraft the president of the United States may be using.

In ordinary usage, however, Air Force One is the name of the Air Force plane normally reserved for the president's use.

Air France Headquarters is in Paris.

Headquarters is in Bombay, India.

airline, airlines Capitalize airlines, air lines and airways when used as part of a proper airline name.

Major airlines are listed in this book separately by name.

Companies that use airlines include Alitalia, American, Continental, Hawaiian, Northwest, Trans World, United and Western.

Companies that use air lines include Delta and Japan.

Companies that use airways include British and Qantas.

Companies that use none of these include Aer Lingus, Aeromexico, Air Canada, Air France, Air-India, Air Jamaica, Hughes Airwest, Iberia, KLM and Western Alaska.

On second reference, use just the proper name (Delta), an abbreviation if applicable (TWA), or the airline. Use airlines when referring to more than one line.

Do not use air line, air lines or airways in generic references to an airline.

airman See military titles.

Air National Guard

airport Capitalize as part of a proper name: La Guardia Airport, Newark International Airport.

The first name of an individual and the word international may be deleted from a formal airport name while the remainder is capitalized: John F. Kennedy International Airport, Kennedy International Airport, or Kennedy Airport. Use whichever is appropriate in the context.

Do not make up names, however. There is no Boston Airport, for example. The Boston airport (lowercase airport) would be acceptable if for some reason the proper name, Logan International Airport, were not used.

air traffic controller (no hyphen)

airways The system of routes that the federal government has established for airplane traffic.

See the airline, airlines entry for its use in carriers' names.

all-time entries.

Allahu akbar The Arabic phrase for “God is great.”

allege The word must be used with great care.

Some guidelines:

—Avoid any suggestion that the writer is making an allegation.

—Specify the source of an allegation. In a criminal case, it should be an arrest record, an indictment or the statement of a public official connected with the case.

—Use alleged bribe or similar phrase when necessary to make it clear that an unproved action is not being treated as fact. Be sure that the source of the charge is specified elsewhere in the story.

—Avoid redundant uses of alleged. It is proper to say: The district attorney alleged that she took a bribe. Or: The district attorney accused her of taking a bribe. But not: The district attorney accused her of allegedly taking a bribe.

—Do not use alleged to describe an event that is known to have occurred, when the dispute is over who participated in it. Do not say: He attended the alleged meeting when what you mean is: He allegedly attended the meeting.

—Do not use alleged as a routine qualifier. Instead, use a word such as apparent, ostensible or reputed.

For guidelines on related words, see accused; arrest; and indict.

Anglican Communion

This is the name for the worldwide association of the 22 separate national Anglican churches.

Each national church is independent. A special position of honor is accorded to the archbishop of Canterbury, as the preeminent officer in the original Anglican body, the Church of England.

The test of membership in the Anglican Communion traditionally has been whether a church has been in communion with the See of Canterbury. No legislative or juridical ties exist, however.

BELIEFS: Anglicans believe in the Trinity, the humanity and divinity of Christ, the virginity of Mary, salvation through Christ, and everlasting heaven and hell.

A principal difference between Roman Catholics and Anglicans is still the dispute that led to the formation of the Church of England — refusal to acknowledge that the pope, as bishop of Rome, has ruling authority over other bishops. See catholic, catholicism.

ANGLICAN CHURCHES: Members of the Anglican Communion, in addition to the Church of England, include the Scottish Episcopal Church, the Anglican Church of Canada, and, in the United States, the Protestant Episcopal Church.

See Episcopal Church.

Anglo- Always capitalized. No hyphen when the word that follows is in lowercase:

The cat, which was scared, ran to its basket. Susie the cat, who was scared, ran to her basket. The bull tosses his horns.*

Bowser, Whirlaway II.

For breed names, follow the spelling and capitalization in Webster's New World Dictionary. For breeds not listed in the dictionary, capitalize words derived from proper nouns; use lowercase elsewhere: basset hound, Boston terrier.

Arabic names In general, use an English spelling that approximates the way a name sounds in Arabic.

If an individual has a preferred spelling in English, use that. If usage has established a particular spelling, use that.

Problems in transliteration of Arabic names often are traceable to pronunciations that vary from region to region. The g, for example, is pronounced like the g of go in North Africa, but like the j of joy in the Arab Peninsula. Thus it is Gamal in Egypt and Jamal in nations on the peninsula. Follow local practice in deciding which letter to use.

Arabs commonly are known by two names (Fuad Butros), or by three (Ahmed Zaki Yamani). Follow the individual's preference on first reference. On second reference, use only the final name in the sequence.

The articles al- or el- may be used or dropped depending on the person's preference or established usage. Osama el-Baz, el-Baz or Moammar Gadhafi, Gadhafi.

The Arabic word for son (ibn or bin depending on personal preference and the nation) is sometimes part of a name (Rashid bin Humaid). On second reference, use only the final word in the name: Humaid.

The word abu, meaning father of, occasionally is used as a last name (Abdul Mohsen Abu Maizer). Capitalize and repeat it on second reference: Abu Maizer.

The titles king, emir, sheik and imam are used, but prince usually replaces emir. Some Arabs are known only by the title and a given name on first reference (King Hussein). Others are known by a complete name (Sheik Sabah Salem Sabah). Follow the common usage on first reference. On second reference, drop the title, using only the given name if it stood alone (Hussein) or the final name in the sequence if more than one was used on first reference (Sabah). Make an exception to this procedure for second reference if an individual commonly is known by some other one of the names used on first reference.

The al, when found in front of many newspaper names, means the. It should be capitalized, as in The New York Times, El Pais, Die Welt.

Arabic numerals The numerical figures 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10.

In general, use Arabic forms unless denoting the sequence of wars or establishing a personal sequence for people or animals. See Roman numerals.

Separate entries list more details and examples. For a full list, see the numerals entry.

balance of payments, balance of trade The balance of payments is the difference between the amount of money that leaves a nation and the amount that enters it during a period of time.

The balance of payments is determined by computing the amount of money a nation and its citizens send abroad for all purposes — including goods and services purchased, travel, loans, foreign aid, etc. — and subtracting from it the amount that foreign nations send into the nation for similar purposes.

The balance of trade is the difference between the monetary value of the goods a nation imports and the goods it exports.

An example illustrating the difference between the two:

The United States and its citizens might send $10 billion abroad — $5 billion for goods, $3 billion for loans and foreign aid, $1 billion for services and $1 billion for tourism and other purposes.

Other nations might send $9 billion into the United States — $6 billion for U.S. goods, $2 billion for services and $1 billion for tourism and other purposes.

The United States would have a balance-of-payments deficit of $1 billion but a balance-of-trade surplus of $1 billion.

—Mahayana: Followers lay stress on idealism. The ideal life is that of virtue and wisdom. The sect is found mostly in Japan, Korea and eastern China.

When used in a financial sense, capital describes money, equipment or property used in a business by a person or corporation.

capitalization In general, avoid unnecessary capitals. Use a capital letter only if you can justify it by one of the principles listed here.

Many words and phrases, including special cases, are listed separately in this book. Entries that are capitalized without further comment should be capitalized in all uses.

If there is no relevant listing in this book for a particular word or phrase, consult Webster's New World Dictionary. Use lowercase if the dictionary lists it as an acceptable form for the sense in which the word is being used.

As used in this book, capitalize means to use uppercase for the first letter of a word. If additional capital letters are needed, they are called for by an example or a phrase such as use all caps.

Some basic principles:

PROPER NOUNS: Capitalize nouns that constitute the unique identification for a specific person, place, or thing: John, Mary, America, Boston, England.

Some words, such as the examples just given, are always proper nouns. Some common nouns receive proper noun status when they are used as the name of a particular entity: General Electric, Gulf Oil.

PROPER NAMES: Capitalize common nouns such as party, river, street and west when they are an integral part of the full name for a person, place or thing: Democratic Party, Mississippi River, Fleet Street, West Virginia.

The principle applies also to shortened versions of the proper names of one-of-a-kind events: the Series (for the World Series), the Derby (for the Kentucky Derby). This practice should not, however, be interpreted as a license to ignore the general practice of lowercasing the common noun elements of a name when they stand alone.

DERIVATIVES: Capitalize words that are derived from a proper noun and still depend on it for their meaning: American, Christian, Christianity, English, French, Marxism, Shakespearean.

Lowercase words that are derived from a proper noun but no longer depend on it for their meaning: french fries, herculean, manhattan cocktail, malapropism, pasteurize, quixotic, venetian blind.

phrases that would not be capitalized in prose. See poetry.

check up (v.) checkup (n.)

Chemical Mace A trademark, usually shortened to Mace, for a brand of tear gas that is packaged in an aerosol canister and temporarily stuns its victims.

chess In stories, the names and pieces are spelled out, lowercase: king, queen, bishop, pawn, knight, rook, kingside, queenside, white, black.

Use the algebraic notation in providing tabular summaries.

In algebraic notation, the "ranks" are the horizontal rows of squares. The ranks take numbers, 1 to 8, beginning on white's side of the board.

The "files" are the vertical rows of squares. They take letters, a through h, beginning on white's left.

Thus, each square is identified by its file letter and rank number.

In the starting position, white's queen knight stands on b1, the queen on d1, the king on e1; black's queen knight stands on b8, the queen on d8, the king on e8, and so on.

Other features of the system follow:

—DESIGNATION OF PIECES:

The major pieces are shown by a capital letter: K for king, Q for queen, R for rook, B for bishop and N for knight. No symbol is used for the pawn.

—MOVES BY PIECES: Shown by the letter of the piece (except for the pawn) and the destination square. For instance, Bb5 means the bishop moves to square b5.

—MOVES BY PAWNS: Pawn moves are designated only by the name of the destination square. Thus, e4 means the pawn on the e file moves to e4.

—CASTLING: It is written as 0-0 for the kingside and 0-0-0 for the queenside. Kingside is the side of the board (right half from white's point of view, left half from black's), on which each player's king starts. The other half is queenside.

—CAPTURES BY PIECES: A capture is recorded using an x after the letter for the capturing piece. For instance, if white's bishop captures the black pawn at the f6 square, it is written Bxf6.

—CAPTURES BY PAWNS:

When a pawn captures a piece, the players name the file the pawn was on and the square where it made the capture. If white's pawn on a g file captured black's pawn on a f6 square, the move would be gxf6. If black's pawn on an f file captured white's, it would be fxg5.

—CHECK: Use plus sign.

—AMBIGUITY: If more than one piece of the same type can move to a square, the rank number or file letter of the origination square is added. Thus, if a rook on d1 were to move to d4, but another rook also could move there, instead of Rd4 the move would be given as R1d4. If there are black knights on c6 and e6, and the one on e6 moves to d4, the move is given as Ned4.

chilly Moderately cold.

China When used alone, it refers to the mainland nation. Use it in datelines and other routine references.

Use People's Republic of China, Communist China, mainland China or Red China only in direct quotations or when needed to distinguish the mainland and its government from Taiwan.

For datelines on stories from the island of Taiwan, use the name of a community and Taiwan. In the body of a story, use Nationalist China or Taiwan for references to the government based on the island. Use the formal name of the government, the Republic of China, when required for legal precision.

Chinaman A patronizing term. Confine it to quoted matter.

Chinese names For most Chinese place names and personal names, use the official Chinese spelling system known as Pinyin: Senior leader Deng Xiaoping, Beijing, or Zhejiang province.

Note that the Chinese usually give the family name first (Deng) followed by the given name (Xiaoping). Second reference should be the family name only: Deng.

The Pinyin spelling system eliminates the hyphen and/or apostrophe previously used in many given names.

If the new Pinyin spelling of a proper noun is so radically different from the traditional American spelling that a reader might be confused, provide the Pinyin spelling followed by the traditional spelling in parentheses. For example, the city of Fuzhou (Foochow). Or use a descriptive sentence: Fuzhou is the capital of Fujian province, on China's eastern coast.

And use the traditional American spellings for well-known deceased people such as Chou En-lai, Mao Tse-tung, Sun Yat-sen.

Follow local spellings in stories dealing with Hong Kong and Taiwan.

Some Chinese have Westernized their names, putting their given names or the initials for them first: P.Y. Chen, Jack Wang. In general, follow an individual's preferred spelling.

Normally Chinese women do not take their husbands' surnames. Use the courtesy titles Mrs., Miss, or Ms. only when specifically requested. Never use Madame or Mme.

chip An integrated computer circuit.

Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) The parentheses and the words they surround are part of the formal name.

The body owes its origins to an early 19th-century frontier movement to unify Christians.

The Disciples, led by Alexander Campbell in western Pennsylvania, and the Christians, led by Barton W. Stone in Kentucky, merged in 1832.

The local church is the basic organizational unit.

National policies are developed by the General Assembly, made up of representatives chosen by local churches and regional organizations.

The church lists more than 1 million members.

All members of the clergy may be referred to as ministers. Pastor applies if a minister leads a congregation.

On first reference, use the Rev. before the name of a man or woman. On second reference, use only the last name.

See religious titles.

Lowercase in phrases where the church is used in an institutional sense: She believes in the separation of church and state. The pope said the church opposes abortion.

See religious titles and the entry for the denomination in question.

Churches of Christ Approximately 18,000 independent congregations with a total U.S. membership of more than 2 million cooperate under this name. They sponsor numerous educational activities, primarily radio and television programs.

Each local church is autonomous and operates under a governing board of elders. The minister is an evangelist, addressed by members as Brother. The ministers do not use clergy titles. Do not precede their names by a title.

The churches do not regard themselves as a denomination. Rather, they stress a nondenominational effort to preach what they consider basic Bible teachings. The churches also teach that baptism is an essential part of the salvation process.

Church of Christ, Scientist This denomination was founded in 1879 by Mary Baker Eddy. Her teachings are contained in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," which, along with the Bible, she ordained as the impersonal pastor of the church.

The Mother Church in Boston is the international headquarters. Its government provides for a board of directors, which transacts the business of the Mother Church.

A branch church, governed by its own democratically chosen board, is named First Church of Christ, Scientist, or Second Church, etc., according to the order of its establishment in a community.

The terms Christian Science Church or Churches of Christ, Scientist, are acceptable in all references to the denomination.

The word Christian is used because its teachings are based on the word and works of Jesus Christ. The word Science is used to reflect the concept that the laws of God are replicable and can be proved in healing sickness and sin.

The church is composed entirely of lay members and does not have clergy in the usual sense. Both men and women may serve as readers, practitioners, or lecturers.

The preferred form for these titles is to use a construction that sets them off from a name with commas. Capitalize them only when used as a formal title immediately before a name. Do not continue use of the title in subsequent references.

Church of England See Anglican Communion.

Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Note the capitalization and punctuation of Latter-day. Mormon church is acceptable in all references, but always include the proper name in a story dealing primarily with church activities.

The church is based on revelations that Joseph Smith said were brought to him in the 1820s by heavenly messengers.

Today, the church headquarters in Salt Lake City, Utah, directs more than 22,000 congregations with more than 10 million members worldwide.

Church hierarchy is composed of men known as general authorities. Among them, the policy-making body is the First Presidency, made up of a president and two or more counselors. It has final authority in all spiritual and worldly matters.

CLERGY: All worthy young men over the age of 12 are members of the priesthood. They can be ordained elders after age 18, usually after graduating from high school and before serving as missionaries. They may later become high priests, or bishops.

The only formal titles are president (for the head of the First Presidency), bishop (for members of the Presiding Bishopric and for local bishops) and elder (for other general authorities and church missionaries). Capitalize these formal titles before a name on first reference; use only the last name on second reference.

The terms minister or the Rev. are not used.

See religious titles.

SPLINTER GROUPS: The term Mormon is not properly applied to the other Latter Day Saints churches that resulted from the split after Smith's death.

The largest is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (note the lack of a hyphen and the capitalized Day), with headquarters in Independence, Mo. It has about 1,000 churches and 150,000 members.

citizen, resident, subject, national, native A citizen is a person who has acquired the full civil rights of a nation either by birth or naturalization. collide, collision Two objects must be in motion before they can collide. An automobile cannot collide with a utility pole, for example.

colloquialisms The word describes the informal use of a language. It is not local or regional in nature, as dialect is.

Webster's New World Dictionary identifies many words as colloquial with the label Colloq. The label itself, the dictionary says, "does not indicate substandard or illiterate usage."

Many colloquial words and phrases characteristic of informal writing and conversation are acceptable in some contexts but out of place in others. Examples include bum and phone.

Other colloquial words normally should be avoided because they are substandard. Webster's New World notes, for example, that ain't is colloquial and not automatically illiterate or substandard usage. But it also notes that ain't is "a dialectal or substandard contraction." Thus it should not be used in news stories unless needed to illustrate substandard speech in writing.

Conrail This acronym is acceptable in all references to Consolidated Rail Corp. (The corporation originally used ConRail, but later changed to Conrail.)

A private, for-profit corporation, Conrail was set up by Congress as a monopoly in 1976 to reorganize and consolidate six bankrupt Northeast freight railroads — the Penn Central, the Erie Lackawanna, Reading, Central of New Jersey, Lehigh Valley, and Lehigh & Hudson River.

Philadelphia-based Conrail was sold to the public in 1987.

In 1999, CSX and Norfolk Southern completed their acquisition of Conrail, splitting the assets and sharing Conrail tracks and facilities in Detroit, Philadelphia and most of New Jersey. Norfolk Southern acquired 58 percent of Conrail and CSX 42 percent. Norfolk Southern, based in Norfolk, Va., operates a 21,600-mile rail system in 22 states, the District of Columbia, and Ontario, Canada. CSX, based in Richmond, Va., formed a 22,300-mile system serving 23 states, the District of Columbia, and Montreal and Ontario, Canada.

Capitalize when referring to the U.S. index, issued monthly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, an agency of the Labor Department.

The U.S. Consumer Price Index should not be referred to as a cost-of-living index, because it does not include the impact of income taxes and Social Security taxes on the cost of living, nor does it reflect changes in buying patterns that result from inflation. It is, however, the basis for computing cost-of-living raises in many union contracts.

The preferred form for second reference is the index. Confine CPI to quoted material.

datelines Datelines on stories should contain a city name, entirely in capital letters, followed in most cases by the name of the state, county or territory where the city is located.

DOMESTIC DATELINES: A list of domestic cities that stand alone in datelines follows. The norms that influenced the selection were the population of the city, the population of its metropolitan region, the frequency of the city's appearance in the news, the uniqueness of its name, and experience that has shown the name to be almost synonymous with the state or nation where it is located.

No state with the following:

BALTIMORE	MINNEAPOLIS
BOSTON	NEW ORLEANS
CHICAGO	NEW YORK
CINCINNATI	OKLAHOMA CITY
CLEVELAND	PHILADELPHIA
DALLAS	PHOENIX

DENVER	PITTSBURGH
DETROIT	ST. LOUIS
HONOLULU	SALT LAKE CITY
HOUSTON	SAN ANTONIO
INDIANAPOLIS	SAN DIEGO
LAS VEGAS	SAN FRANCISCO
LOS ANGELES	SEATTLE
MIAMI	WASHINGTON

Also HOLLYWOOD when used instead of LOS ANGELES on stories about films and the film industry.

Stories from all other U.S. cities should have both the city and state name in the dateline, including KANSAS CITY, Mo., and KANSAS CITY, Kan.

Spell out Alaska, Hawaii, Idaho, Iowa, Maine, Ohio, Texas and Utah. Abbreviate others as listed in this book under the full name of each state.

Use Hawaii on all cities outside Honolulu. Specify the island in the text if needed.

Follow the same practice for communities on islands within the boundaries of other states: EDGARTOWN, Mass., for example, not EDGARTOWN, Martha's Vineyard.

REGIONAL CIRCUITS: On state wires, additional cities in a state or region may stand alone if requested by the newspapers served.

When this is done, provide a list to all offices in the region, to all newspapers affected and to New York headquarters.

U.S. POSSESSIONS: Apply the guidelines listed below in the ISLAND NATIONS AND TERRITORIES section and the OVERSEAS TERRITORIES section.

FOREIGN CITIES: These foreign locations stand alone in datelines:

BEIJING	MEXICO CITY
BERLIN	MONACO
DJIBOUTI	MONTREAL
GENEVA	MOSCOW
GIBRALTAR	OTTAWA
GUATEMALA CITY	PARIS
HAVANA	QUEBEC
HONG KONG	ROME
JERUSALEM	SAN MARINO
KUWAIT	SINGAPORE
LONDON	TOKYO
LUXEMBOURG	TORONTO
MACAU	VATICAN CITY

In addition, use UNITED NATIONS alone, without a N.Y. designation, in stories from U.N. headquarters.

CANADIAN DATELINES: Datelines on stories from Canadian cities other than Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec and Toronto should contain the name of the city in capital letters followed by the name of the province. Do not abbreviate any province or territory name.

COMMONWEALTH OF INDEPENDENT STATES: For cities in the former Soviet Union, datelines include city and republic name: ALMA-ATA, Kazakstan.

OTHER FOREIGN NATIONS: Stories from other foreign cities that do not stand alone in datelines should contain the name of the country or territory (see the next section) spelled out.

SPELLING AND CHOICE OF NAMES: In most cases, the name of the nation in a dateline is the conventionally accepted short form of its official name: Argentina, for example, rather than Republic of Argentina. (If in doubt, look for an entry in this book. If none is found, follow Webster's New World Dictionary.)

Note these special cases:

—Instead of United Kingdom, use England, Northern Ireland, Scotland or Wales.

—For divided nations, use the commonly accepted names based on geographic distinctions: North Korea, South Korea.

—Use an article only with El Salvador. For all others, use just a country name — Gambia, Netherlands, Philippines, etc.

See geographic names for guidelines on spelling the names of foreign cities and nations not listed here or in separate entries.

ISLAND NATIONS AND TERRITORIES: When reporting from nations and territories that are made up primarily of islands but commonly are linked under one name, use the city name and the general name in the dateline. Identify an individual island, if needed, in the text:

Examples:

British Virgin Islands	Netherlands Antilles
Indonesia	Philippines

OVERSEAS TERRITORIES: Some overseas territories, colonies and other areas that are not independent nations commonly have accepted separate identities based on their geographic character or special status under treaties. In these cases, use the commonly accepted territory name after a city name in a dateline.

Examples:

Bermuda	Guam
Corsica	Martinique
Faeroe Islands	Puerto Rico
Greenland	Sardinia
Grenada	Sicily
Guadeloupe	Sikkim
Tibet

WITHIN STORIES: In citing other cities within the body of a story:

—No further information is necessary if a city is in the same state as the datelined city in U.S. stories from abroad. Make an exception if confusion would result.

—Follow the city name with further identification in most cases where it is not in the same state or nation as the dateline city. The additional identification may be omitted, however, if no confusion would result — there is no need, for example, to refer to Boston, Mass., in a story datelined NEW YORK.

—Provide a state or nation identification for the city if the story is undated. However, cities that stand alone in datelines may be used alone in undated stories if no confusion would result.

dateline selection A dateline should tell the reader that the AP obtained the basic information for the story in the datelined city.

Do not, for example, use a Washington dateline on a story written primarily from information that a newspaper reported under a Washington dateline. Use the home city of the newspaper instead.

This rule does not preclude the use of a story with a dateline different from the home city of a newspaper if it is from the general area served by the newspaper.

Use a foreign dateline only if the basic information in a story was obtained by a full- or part-time correspondent physically present in the datelined community.

If a radio broadcast monitored in another city was the source of information, use the dateline of the city where the monitoring took place and mention the fact in the story.

When a story has been assembled from sources in widely separated areas, use no dateline.

When a datelined story contains supplementary information obtained in another city, make that point clear in the context. Do not put parentheses around such material, however, unless the correspondent in the datelined community was cut off from incoming communications. Note the following examples:

—Material from another area was available in the datelined city:

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Wilson submitted his resignation today.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said the change in government leadership would have no effect on negotiations involving the Common Market.

—Material from another area was not available to the correspondent in the dateline city because communications from the outside world were cut off:

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Khmer Rouge troops pushed into Phnom Penh today, barely hours after the United States ran down the Stars and Stripes and abandoned Cambodia to the Communists.

(In Washington, the State Department said Americans evacuated in a mass airlift had arrived safely aboard aircraft carriers and at bases in Thailand.)

devaluations Devaluations occur when the value of a country's currency goes down in its relation to another currency. This may happen by government decree, or through market forces. Devaluations are expressed in percentages, but the normal method of figuring a percentage change won't work. Use the following rules:

Say currency A is quoted in a set of units to currency B. When currency A is devalued, 1) take the new exchange rate and subtract the old exchange rate, 2) divide the answer by the new exchange rate and 3) multiply the answer by 100 to get the percentage devaluation.

Example:

9.5 (new rate) minus 6.3 (old rate) = 3.2

3.2 divided by 9.5 = 0.3368

0.3368 times 100 = 33.68421 (or 34 percent).

The ruble has been devalued against the dollar by 34 percent.

If Webster's New World provides definitions under two different spellings for the same sense of a word, either use is acceptable. For example, although or though.

If there is no listing in either this book or Webster's New World, the backup dictionary, with more listings, is Webster's Third New International Dictionary, published by G. & C. Merriam Co. of Springfield, Mass.

doctor Use Dr. in first reference as a formal title before the name of an individual who holds a doctor of dental surgery, doctor of medicine, doctor of osteopathy, or doctor of podiatric medicine degree: Dr. Jonas Salk.

The form Dr., or Drs., in a plural construction, applies to all first-reference uses before a name, including direct quotations.

If appropriate in the context, Dr. also may be used on first reference before the names of individuals who hold other types of doctoral degrees. However, because the public frequently identifies Dr. only with physicians, care should be taken to assure that the individual's specialty is stated in first or second reference. The only exception would be a story in which the context left no doubt that the person was a dentist, psychologist, chemist, historian, etc.

In some instances it also is necessary to specify that an individual identified as Dr. is a physician. One frequent case is a story reporting on joint research by physicians, biologists, etc.

Do not continue the use of Dr. in subsequent references.

earthquakes Hundreds of earthquakes occur each year. Most are so small they cannot be felt.

The best source for information on major earthquakes is the National Earthquake Information Service operated by the U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo.

Earthquake magnitudes are measures of earthquake size calculated from ground motion recorded on seismographs. The Richter scale, named for Dr.

Charles F. Richter, is no longer widely used.

Magnitudes are usually reported simply as magnitude 6.7, for example, without specifying the scale being used. The various scales differ only slightly from one another.

In the first hours after a quake, earthquake size should be reported as a preliminary magnitude of 6.7, for example. Early estimates are often revised, and it can be several days before seismologists calculate a final figure.

Magnitudes are measured on several different scales. The most commonly used measure is the moment magnitude, related to the area of the fault on which an earthquake occurs, and the amount the ground slips.

The magnitude scale being used should be specified only when necessary. An example would be when two centers are reporting different magnitudes because they are using different scales.

With each scale, every increase of one number, say from 5.5 to 6.5, means that the quake's magnitude is 10 times as great. Theoretically, there is no upper limit to the scales.

A quake of magnitude 2.5 to 3 is the smallest generally felt by people.

—Magnitude 4: The quake can cause moderate damage.

—Magnitude 5: The quake can cause considerable damage.

—Magnitude 6: The quake can cause severe damage.

—Magnitude 7: A major earthquake, capable of widespread, heavy damage.

—Magnitude 8: An earthquake capable of tremendous damage.

NOTABLE QUAKES: Earthquakes noted for both their magnitude and the amount of damage they caused include:

—Shensi province of China, January 1556: Killed 830,000 people, the largest number of fatalities on record from an earthquake.

—Tokyo and Yokohama, Japan, September 1923: Magnitude later computed as 8.3. The quake and subsequent fires destroyed most of both cities, killing an estimated 200,000 people. Until the China quake of 1976, this was the highest fatality toll in the 20th century.

—San Francisco, April 1906: Moment magnitude later computed as 7.9. The quake and subsequent fire were blamed for an estimated 700 deaths.

—Alaska, March 1964: Magnitude 7.5. Killed 114 people.

—Guatemala, February 1976: Magnitude 7.5. Authorities reported more than 234,000 deaths.

—Hopeh province of northern China, July 28, 1976: Magnitude 8.0. A government document later said 655,237 people were killed and 779,000 injured. The fatality total was second only to the toll in the Shensi quake of 1556.

—Mexico, Sept. 19, 1985: A quake registered at 8.1 left 9,500 people dead.

—Kobe, Japan, Jan. 17, 1995: A 7.2 magnitude quake killed nearly 5,300 people in collapsed buildings and fires.

Easter In the computation used by the Latin Rite of the Roman Catholic Church and by Protestant churches, it falls on the first Sunday after the first full moon that occurs on or after March 21. If the full moon falls on a Sunday, Easter is the next Sunday.

Easter may fall, therefore, between March 22 and April 25 inclusive.

Eastern Europe No longer a separate political unit, but can be used in specific references to the region. Use only in historic sense. (Also Western Europe.)

Eastern Hemisphere The half of the Earth made up primarily of Africa, Asia, Australia and Europe.

Eastern Orthodox churches The term applies to a group of churches that have roots in the earliest days of Christianity and do not recognize papal authority over their activities.

Churches in this tradition were part of the undivided Christendom that existed until the Great Schism of 1054. At that time, many of the churches in the western half of the old Roman Empire accorded the bishop of Rome supremacy over other bishops. The result was a split between eastern and western churches.

The autonomous churches that constitute Eastern Orthodoxy are organized along mostly national lines. They recognize the patriarch of Constantinople (modern-day Istanbul) as their leader. He convenes councils, but his authority is otherwise that of a “first among equals.”

Eastern orthodox churches today count about 200 million members. They include the Greek Orthodox Church and the Russian Orthodox Church.

In the United States, organizational lines are based on the national backgrounds of various ethnic groups. The largest is the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of America, with about 2 million members. Next is the Orthodox Church in America, with about 1 million members, including people of Bulgarian, Romanian, Russian and Syrian descent.

The churches have their own disciplines on matters such as married clergy — a married man may be ordained, but a priest may not marry after ordination.

Some of these churches call the archbishop who leads them a metropolitan, others use the term patriarch. He normally heads the principal archdiocese within a nation. Working with him are other archbishops, bishops, priests and deacons.

Archbishops and bishops frequently follow a monastic tradition in which they are known only by a first name. When no last name is used, repeat the title before the sole name in subsequent references.

Some forms: Metropolitan Theodosius, archbishop of Wash- ington and metropolitan of America and Canada. On second reference: Metropolitan Theodosius.

Archbishop may be replaced by the Most Rev. on first reference.

Bishop may be replaced by the Rt. Rev. on first reference.

Use the Rev. before the name of a priest on first reference.

See religious titles.

Eastern Rite churches

The term applies to a group of Catholic churches that are organized along ethnic lines traceable to the churches established during the earliest days of Christianity.

These churches accept the authority of the pope, but they have considerable autonomy in ritual and questions of discipline such as married clergy — a married man may be ordained, but marriage is not permitted after ordination.

Worldwide membership totals more than 10 million.

Among the churches of the Eastern Rite are the Antiochean-Maronite, Armenian Catholic, Byzantine-Byelorussian, Byzantine-Russian, Byzantine-Ruthenian, Byzantine-Ukrainian and Chaldean Catholic.

Episcopal, Episcopalian Episcopal is the adjective form; use Episcopalian only as a noun referring to a member of the Episcopal Church: She is an Episcopalian. But: She is an Episcopal priest.

Capitalize Episcopal when referring to the Episcopal Church. Use lowercase when the reference is simply to a body governed by bishops.

Episcopal Church Acceptable in all references for the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America, the U.S. national church that is a member of the Anglican Communion.

The church is governed nationally by two bodies — the permanent Executive Council and the General Convention, which meets every three years.

After the council, the principal organizational units are, in descending order of size, provinces, dioceses or missionary districts, local parishes and local missions.

The National Council is composed of bishops, priests, laymen and laywomen. One bishop is designated the leader and holds the formal title of presiding bishop.

The General Convention has final authority in matters of policy and doctrine. All acts must pass both of its houses — the House of Bishops and the House of Deputies. The latter is composed of an equal number of clergy and lay delegates from each diocese.

A province is composed of several dioceses. Each has a provincial synod made up of a house of bishops and a house of deputies. The synod's primary duty is to coordinate the work of the church in its area.

Within a diocese, a bishop is the principal official. He is helped by the Diocesan Convention, which consists of all the clergy in the diocese and lay representatives from each parish.

The parish or local church is governed by a vestry, composed of the pastor and lay members elected by the congregation.

The clergy consists of bishops, priests, deacons and brothers. A priest who heads a parish is described as a rector rather than a pastor.

For first reference to bishops, use Bishop before the individual's name: Bishop John M. Allin. An acceptable alternative in referring to U.S. bishops is the Rt. Rev. The designation the Most Rev. is used before the names of the archbishops of Canterbury and York.

For first references, use the Rev. before the name of a priest, Deacon before the name of a deacon.

escalator Formerly a trademark, now a generic term.

escalator clause A clause in a contract providing for increases or decreases in wages, prices, etc., based on fluctuations in the cost of living, production, expenses, etc.

escapee The preferred words are escaped convict or fugitive.

Eskimo, Eskimos Some, especially in northern Canada, use the term Inuit for these native peoples of northern North America. Follow the preference of those involved in the story.

espresso The coffee is espresso, not expresso.

essential clauses, nonessential clauses These terms are used in this book instead of restrictive clause and nonrestrictive clause to convey the distinction between the two in a more easily remembered manner.

Both types of clauses provide additional information about a word or phrase in the sentence.

The difference between them is that the essential clause cannot be eliminated without changing the meaning of the sentence — it so restricts the meaning of the word or phrase that its absence would lead to a substantially different interpretation of what the author meant.

The nonessential clause, however, can be eliminated without altering the basic meaning of the sentence — it does not restrict the meaning so significantly that its absence would radically alter the author's thought.

PUNCTUATION: An essential clause must not be set off from the rest of a sentence by commas. A nonessential clause must be set off by commas.

The presence or absence of commas provides the reader with critical information about the writer's intended meaning. Note the following examples:

—Reporters who do not read the Stylebook should not criticize their editors. (The writer is saying that only one class of reporters, those who do not read the Stylebook, should not criticize their editors. If the who ... Stylebook phrase were deleted, the meaning of the sentence would be changed substantially.)

—Reporters, who do not read the Stylebook, should not criticize their editors. (The writer is saying that all reporters should not criticize their editors. If the who ... Stylebook phrase were deleted, this meaning would not be changed.)

USE OF WHO, THAT, WHICH: When an essential or nonessential clause refers to a human being or animal with a name, it should be introduced by who or whom. (See the who, whom entry.) Do not use commas if the clause is essential to the meaning; use them if it is not.

That is the preferred pronoun to introduce essential clauses that refer to an inanimate object or an animal without a name. Which is the only acceptable pronoun to introduce a nonessential clause that refers to an inanimate object or an animal without a name.

The pronoun which occasionally may be substituted for that in the introduction of an essential clause that refers to an inanimate object or an animal without a name. In general, this use of which should appear only when that is used as a conjunction to introduce another clause in the same sentence: He said Monday that the part of the army which suffered severe casualties needs reinforcement.

See that (conjunction) for guidelines on the use of that as a conjunction.

essential phrases, nonessential phrases These terms are used in this book instead of restrictive phrase and nonrestrictive phrase to convey the distinction between the two in a more easily remembered manner.

The underlying concept is the one that also applies to clauses:

An essential phrase is a word or group of words critical to the reader's understanding of what the author had in mind.

A nonessential phrase provides more information about something. Although the information may be helpful to the reader's comprehension, the reader would not be misled if the information were not there.

PUNCTUATION: Do not set an essential phrase off from the rest of a sentence by commas:

We saw the award-winning movie "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." (No comma, because many movies have won awards, and without the name of the movie the reader would not know which movie was meant.)

They ate dinner with their daughter Julie. (Because they have more than one daughter, the inclusion of Julie's name is critical if the reader is to know which daughter is meant.)

Set off nonessential phrases by commas:

We saw the 1975 winner in the Academy Award competition for best picture, "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." (Only one movie won the award. The name is informative, but even without the name no other movie could be meant.)

They ate dinner with their daughter Julie and her husband, David. (Julie has only one husband. If the phrase read and her husband David, it would suggest that she had more than one husband.)

The company chairman, Henry Ford II, spoke. (In the context, only one person could be meant.)

Indian corn, or maize, was harvested. (Maize provides the reader with the name of the corn, but its absence would not change the meaning of the sentence.)

DESCRIPTIVE WORDS: Do not confuse punctuation rules for nonessential clauses with the correct punctuation when a nonessential word is used as a descriptive adjective. The distinguishing clue often is the lack of an article or pronoun:

Right: Company Chairman Henry Ford II made the announcement. The company chairman, Henry Ford II, made the announcement.

In cases that require mention of the scale, use these forms: 86 degrees Fahrenheit or 86 F (note the space and no period after the F) if degrees and Fahrenheit are clear from the context.

foreign names For foreign place names, use the primary spelling in Webster's New World Dictionary. If it has no entry, follow the National Geographic Atlas of the World.

For personal names, follow the individual's preference for an English spelling if it can be determined. Otherwise:

—Use the nearest phonetic equivalent in English if one exists: Alexander Solzhenitsyn, for example, rather than Aleksandr, the spelling that would result from a transliteration of the Russian letters into the English alphabet.

If a name has no close phonetic equivalent in English, express it with an English spelling that approximates the sound in the original language: Anwar Sadat.

—Abbreviate Saint as St. (But abbreviate Sault Sainte Marie as Sault Ste. Marie.)

FOREIGN: The first source for the spelling of all foreign place names is Webster's New World Dictionary as follows:

—Use the first-listed spelling if an entry gives more than one.

—If the dictionary provides different spellings in separate entries, use the spelling that is followed by a full description of the location.

If the dictionary does not have an entry, use the first-listed spelling in the National Geographic Atlas of the World.

Hindu, Hinduism The dominant religion of India. It has about 470 million followers making it the world's third largest religion after Christianity and Islam. There are more than 300,000 followers in North America.

The basic teaching is that the soul never dies, but is reborn each time the body dies. The soul may be reborn in either human or animal form. The following rule is that of karma and states that no matter how small the action or thought of an individual it will affect how the soul will be reborn in the next generation. The cycle of death and rebirth continues until a soul reaches spiritual perfection. At that point the soul is united in total enlightenment and peace with the supreme being and the cycle is ended.

There are a number of gods and goddesses, all of whom are different focuses of the one supreme being. The primary gods are Brahma, Vishnu, called the preserver, and Siva, the destroyer. Vishnu has had important human incarnations as Krishna and Rama. The primary goddess is Devi, who is also known as Durga, Kali, Sarasvati, Lakshmi and other names. She represents in her forms either motherhood and good fortune or destruction. There are thousands of other deities and saints which also may receive prayers and offerings.

Be acutely aware of the potential dangers of using information from Internet and e-mail sources. All such electronic information — from computer disk data to e-mail to material posted on the Internet — falls into the “tangible form” category that is subject to copyright protection as well as libel guidelines.

Use care, too, in copying online jargon and abbreviated forms, unless they are generally understood.

Internet addresses include e-mail addresses and Web site designations. Follow the spelling and capitalization of the Web site owner. If an Internet address falls at the end of a sentence, use a period. (If an address breaks between lines, split it directly before a slash or a dot that is part of the address, without an inserted hyphen.) Although in some cases it may not be necessary, use the http:// protocol at the start of a Web address, as well as other starts, such as ftp://.

When a story mentions a specific Web site or Web service, include the Internet address, the URL, within the text. This is essential information for the reader.

Add Internet addresses (URLs) to the end of a story when they provide additional information, but aren't specifically referred to in a story.

An example:

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) -- NASA abandoned any real hope Tuesday for the missing-in-action Mars Polar Lander and promised to investigate every aspect of the failed mission and delay future expeditions to the Red Planet if necessary.

The last, best chance to make radio contact with the spacecraft yielded only silence early Tuesday. A somber Richard Cook, the spacecraft's operations manager at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, said the flight team had “played its last ace.” ...

*On the Net: NASA Mars site:
<http://marslander.jpl.nasa.gov>
UCLA site on experiments aboard the mission:
<http://mars.ucla.edu>*

Avoid URLs that are particularly lengthy and complicated, unless essential to guide the reader to a particular document.

Some symbols in Internet addresses, such as the “at” sign and the tilde, result in garbles in some newspaper computers. Spell them out instead and provide an explanatory note. (See Nontransmitting Symbols in the Filing Practices section.)

SEARCHING ON THE INTERNET

Use the Right Tool

There are several kinds of search tools, including search engines, Web directories, and metasearchers.

- Search engines do the work of finding pages all over the Internet (e.g. AltaVista).
- Web directories are organized collections of Web sites categorized by subject (e.g. Yahoo).
- A metasearcher builds a single search and then applies it to multiple search sites simultaneously.

The same query will get different results from each of these tools.

If your topic is reasonably common and broad, use a general index, like Yahoo. If it relates to a particular subject area, use a specialized index, like Achoo for health issues. If it's more obscure or specific, use a search engine, like AltaVista. Want to know how to say "Hello" in Hindi? Use a foreign language site search.

If you want to cast a wide net, try a metasearch engine, such as Dogpile or Ask Jeeves. These will produce more varied results, but because metasearch engines have to reduce queries to the lowest common denominator, you may miss out on the strengths of particular search engines.

In any case, remember: You're not stuck with the first search engine you choose. If it's not giving you the results you want, try another one.

Use the Right Key Words

Understand how search engines (generally) work: You enter a series of keywords, and the engines look for Web sites that contain those words.

Choosing the right keywords is critical.

- Start by choosing keywords as specific as possible, and then work your way outward, getting broader and broader. Avoid overly general keywords, such as "budget" or "nuclear energy."
- Look for uncommon words that identify your topic and your topic only. Unusual proper or technical names are always good.
- Substitute phrases for keywords when possible. Phrases — enclosed in quotes in some engines — are more specific and thus target your search better. Searching for the phrase "time zone," for example, is better than searching for the words "time" and "zone" separately.
- Use variant spelling. Don't assume that everyone knows how to spell a name correctly, or even a regular word. If available, use the wildcard option to cover alternative spellings.

Searching Logic

Almost as important as choosing the proper keywords is choosing the proper way to relate them to each other. In some search sites, you can connect with logical operators such as “AND,” “OR” and “NOT.” Others use a plus sign (+) or minus sign (-) before a word to determine whether it should be included or excluded from the search. For example, +Associated+Press+wire will return documents that contain “Associated” and “Press” and “wire.” This is called “Boolean logic.” Here’s how it works:

- A search for apples AND oranges will find only those pages that include both words.
- A search for pear OR banana will find pages with either word.
- A search for pineapple NOT kiwi will find pages that include pineapple but do not include kiwi.
- A search for apple NEAR pie will find pages in which the words are close together. (A search for the phrase “apple pie” will find pages where the words are next to each other.)
 - A search for p*e will find pie, but also poe and pre. The asterisk is a wildcard character that acts like the blank square in Scrabble.

Syntax varies from search engine to search engines, so check the Help pages to figure out how to structure your query. Even better, print out copies of the Help pages for each search engine, and keep them in a folder or loose-leaf binder on your desk for quick reference.

Attack from different angles

Often, your first search won’t be your last. You need to be able to adapt, change your search terms or keywords, or even attack the problem from a different angle.

If your first effort produces too many hits, narrow your search. Use an “AND” instead of an “OR.” Add another keyword or two. Pick a specific area of your topic rather than the topic itself. Pick the name of a main player in the story. Or, rather than searching for what you want, try to think of who might have the information, and search for that person or organization instead.

If your first effort, on the other hand, produces too few hits, widen your search. Choose more common words. Drop a keyword or two. Use an “OR” instead of an “AND.” Use the “NEAR” operator instead of an exact phrase. Try variant spellings, or synonyms: Search for both “doctors” and “physicians,” for example.

Know your limitations

Do not mistake the Web for an encyclopedia, and the search engine for a table of contents. Any information you find on the Web should be assessed with the same care that you use for everything else. In particular, check these points:

- Who is sponsoring the page? Is the author identifiable? (Stay away from anonymous pages.) Is there contact information in case you want to follow up? Is the domain type (.edu or .gov, for example) appropriate for the information provided? (Web sites set up by professional groups, for example, are generally more reliable than personal home pages.)

One tool is the use of whois, which can be found at www.networksolutions.com/cgi-bin/whois/whois. With a brief query, it allows a user to immediately see who is behind a Web site. It also provides contact information.

- What is the source of the information? The source should be clearly stated, whether original or borrowed. Is it a primary or secondary source? If you're looking for the text of the Americans with Disabilities Act, you may find it on the Web site of an advocacy group, but you're better off checking the congressional Web site.

For accuracy, corroborate with multiple sites whenever possible.

- Based on what you know, how accurate does the information seem?

- Are there any obvious signs of bias? What type of sites does this site link to?

- Is the page current? If it hasn't been updated lately, the information may be outdated. Right-click on the page and choose "View Info"; that often includes the date the page was last modified.

Understand, too, the limitations of search engines. For starters, they are incomplete: All the search engines combined still only cover less than half of the Web. Plus, there's rarely quality control — the sites you're most likely to find are not always the best. Sometimes, they're merely the best publicized.

Search engines also are not timely. It can take a month or longer before a search engine adds a new site or page to its database, or deletes an outdated one. If you're looking for something recent, check other sources: newsgroup and mailing list archives, for examples.

irregardless A double negative. Regardless is correct.

Islam Followers are called Muslims. Their holy book is the Koran, which according to Islamic belief was revealed by Allah (God) to the prophet Mohammed in the seventh century in Mecca and Medina. Their place of worship is a mosque. Their weekly holy day, equivalent of the Christian sabbath, is Friday.

It is the religion of about 850 million people in the world. Although Arabic is the language of the Koran and Muslim prayers, not all Arabs are Muslims and not all Muslims are Arabs. Most of the world’s Muslims live in a wide belt that stretches halfway around the world: across West Africa and North Africa, through the Arab countries of the Middle East and on to Turkey, Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan and other Asian countries, parts of the former Soviet Union and western China, to Indonesia and the southern Philippines.

There are two major divisions in Islam:

—Sunni The biggest single sect in Islam, comprising about 85 percent of all Muslims. Nations with Sunni majorities include Egypt, Saudi Arabia and most other Arab nations, as well as non-Arab Turkey and Afghanistan. Most Palestinian Muslims and most West African Muslims are Sunnis.

The Saudis sometimes are referred to as Wahhabi Muslims. This is a subgroup within the Sunni branch of Islam.

—Shiite The second-largest sect, after the Sunni. Iran, home of militant Islamic fundamentalism, is the only nation with an overwhelming Shiite majority. Iraq, Lebanon and Bahrain have large Shiite communities, in proportion to their overall populations.

(The schism between Sunni and Shiite stems from the very early days of Islam and arguments over Mohammed’s successors as caliph, the spiritual and temporal leader of Muslims. The Shiites wanted the caliphate to descend through Ali, Mohammed’s son-in-law. Ali eventually became the fourth caliph, but he was murdered; Ali’s son al-Hussein was massacred with his fighters at Karbala, in what is now Iraq. Shiites considered the later caliphs to be usurpers. The Sunnis no longer have a caliph.)

Titles for the clergy vary from sect to sect and from country to country, but these are the most common:

Grand Mufti — The highest authority in Koranic law and interpretation, a title used mostly by Sunnis.

Sheik — Used by most clergymen in the same manner that the Rev. is used as a Christian clerical title, especially common among Sunnis. (Not all sheiks are clergymen. Sheik can also be a secular title of respect or nobility)

Ayatollah — Used by Shiites, especially in Iran, to denote senior clergymen, such as Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Hojatoleslam — A rank below ayatollah.

Mullah — Lower level clergy.

Imam — Used by some sects as a title for the prayer leader at a mosque. Among the Shiites, it usually has a more exalted connotation.

Jehovah's Witnesses The denomination was founded in Pittsburgh in 1872 by Charles Taze Russell, a former Congregationalist layman.

Witnesses do most of their work through three legal corporations: the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of Pennsylvania, the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York Inc., and, in England, the International Bible Students Association. A governing body consisting largely of the principal officers of the corporations oversees the denomination.

U.S. membership is listed at more than 900,000.

Jehovah's Witnesses believe that they adhere to the oldest religion on Earth, the worship of Almighty God revealed in the Bible as Jehovah.

They regard civil authority as necessary and obey it "as long as its laws do not contradict God's law." Witnesses refuse to bear arms, salute the flag or participate in secular government.

They refuse blood transfusions as being against the Bible, citing the section of Leviticus that reads: "Whatsoever man...eats any manner of blood, I will cut him off from among his people."

Jewish congregations A Jewish congregation is autonomous. No synods, assemblies or hierarchies control the activities of an individual synagogue.

In the United States, there are three major expressions of Judaism:

1. Orthodox Judaism. Most of its congregations are represented nationally by the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America. Most of its rabbis are members of the Rabbinical Council of America.

2. Reform Judaism. Its national representatives are the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

3. Conservative Judaism. Its national representatives are the United Synagogue of America and the Rabbinical Assembly.

These six groups make up the New York-based Synagogue Council of America. It is the vehicle for consultation among the three expressions and coordinates joint activities.

The council estimates that its members represent about 3 million synagogue-affiliated American Jews, divided about equally among the three major groups. The council also estimates that 1 million American Jews, most of them Orthodox, are members of congregations not represented by council members.

Jews generally believe that a divine kingdom will be established on Earth, opening a messianic era that will be marked by peace and bliss. They also believe that they have a mandate from God to work toward this kingdom.

Deletion of the title on first reference is frequently appropriate, for example, when an individual has become well known: Barry Goldwater endorsed President Ford today. The Arizona senator said he believes the president deserves another term.

SECOND REFERENCE: Do not use legislative titles before a name on second reference unless they are part of a direct quotation.

CONGRESSMAN, CONGRESSWOMAN: Rep. and U.S. Rep. are the preferred first-reference forms when a formal title is used before the name of a U.S. House member. The words congressman or congresswoman, in lowercase, may be used in subsequent references that do not use an individual's name, just as senator is used in references to members of the Senate.

Congressman and congresswoman should appear as capitalized formal titles before a name only in direct quotation.

ORGANIZATIONAL TITLES: Capitalize titles for formal, organizational offices within a legislative body when they are used before a name: Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, Minority Leader John J. Rhodes, Democratic Whip James C. Wright, Chairman John J. Sparkman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, President Pro Tem John C. Stennis.

See party affiliation and titles.

legislature Capitalize when preceded by the name of a state: the Kansas Legislature.

Retain capitalization when the state name is dropped but the reference is specifically to that state's legislature:

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Both houses of the Legislature adjourned today.

Capitalize legislature in subsequent specific references and in such constructions as: the 100th Legislature, the state Legislature.

Although the word legislature is not part of the formal, proper name for the lawmaking bodies in many states, it commonly is used that way and should be treated as such in any story that does not use the formal name.

If a given context or local practice calls for the use of a formal name such as Missouri General Assembly, retain the capital letters if the name of the state can be dropped, but lowercase the word assembly if it stands alone. Lowercase legislature if a story uses it in a subsequent reference to a body identified as a general assembly.

Lowercase legislature when used generically: No legislature has approved the amendment.

Use legislature in lowercase for all plural references: The Arkansas and Colorado legislatures are considering the amendment.

In 49 states the separate bodies are a senate and a house or assembly. The Nebraska Legislature is a unicameral body.

See assembly; general assembly; governmental bodies; house of representatives; and senate.

liter The basic unit of volume in the metric system. It is defined as the volume occupied by 1 kilogram of distilled water at 4 degrees Celsius. It works out to a total of 1,000 cubic centimeters (1 cubic decimeter).

It takes 1,000 milliliters to make a liter.

A liter is equal to approximately 34 fluid ounces or 1.06 liquid quarts. A liter equals .91 of a dry quart. The metric system makes no distinction between dry volume and liquid volume.

To convert to liquid quarts, multiply by 1.06 (4 liters x 1.06 equals 4.24 liquid quarts).

To convert to dry quarts, multiply by .91 (4 liters x .91 equals 3.64 dry quarts).

To convert to liquid gallons, multiply by .26 (8 liters x .26 equals 2.08 gallons).

Lutheran churches The basic unit of government in Lutheran practice is the congregation. It normally is administered by a council, headed either by the senior pastor or a lay person elected from the membership of the council. The council customarily consists of a congregation's clergy and elected lay people.

The three major Lutheran bodies in the United States merged on Jan. 1, 1988, into a new organization, the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, with about 5.3 million members in more than 11,000 congregations.

The Lutheran Church in America was the largest and most geographically spread of the three and was formed in 1962 from a merger of four bodies with Danish, Finnish, German and Swedish backgrounds. It merged with the American Lutheran Church, a mostly Midwestern group formed in 1960 through a merger of four bodies with Danish, German and Norwegian backgrounds, and the relatively small west-central Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches.

The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, founded in 1847, has 2.6 million members and is a separate and distinct body.

Lutheran teachings go back to Martin Luther, a 16th-century Roman Catholic priest whose objections to elements of Roman Catholic practice began the movement known as the Protestant Reformation.

majority, plurality Majority means more than half of an amount.

Plurality means more than the next highest number.

COMPUTING PLURALITY: To describe how large a plurality is, take the highest number and subtract from it the next highest number: If, in the election example above, the second-place finisher had 25,000 votes, the winner's plurality would be 35,000 votes.

Suppose, however, that no candidate in this example had a majority. If the first-place finisher had 40,000 votes and the second-place finisher had 30,000, for example, the leader's plurality would be 10,000 votes.

USAGE: When majority and plurality are used alone, they take singular verbs and pronouns: The majority has made its decision.

To convert to inches, multiply by 39.37 (5 meters x 39.37 = 196.85 inches).

To convert to yards, multiply by 1.1 (5 meters x 1.1 = 5.5 yards).

See inch; metric system; and yards.

Methodist churches The term Methodist originated as a nickname applied to a group of 18th century Oxford University students known for their methodical application to Scripture study and prayer.

The principal Methodist body in the United States is the United Methodist Church, which also has some member conferences outside the United States. It was formed in 1968 by the merger of the Methodist Church and the Evangelical United Brethren Church. It has about 10 million members.

The government of the United Methodist Church follows a stratified pattern from the General Conference through several intermediate conferences down to the local congregation.

The General Conference, which meets every four years, has final authority in all matters. Its members, half lay and half clergy, are elected by the annual conferences.

A Methodist bishop presides over a "church area," which may embrace one or more annual conferences. Bishops have extensive administrative powers, including the authority to place, transfer and remove local church pastors, usually in consultation with district superintendents.

Districts in each conference are responsible for promotion of mission work, support of colleges, hospitals and publications, and examination of candidates for the ministry.

Members of a congregation form a charge conference. It elects officers to a board that assists the pastor.

Methodism in the United States also includes three major black denominations: the African Methodist Episcopal Church, the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church and the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church.

Methodists believe in the Trinity and the humanity and divinity of Christ. There are two sacraments, baptism and the Lord's Supper.

Ordained individuals are known as bishops and ministers. Pastor applies if a minister leads a congregation.

For first references to bishops use the word: Bishop W. Kenneth Goodson of Richmond, Va.

For first reference to ministers, use the Rev. before the name of a man or woman. On second reference, use only the last name.

See religious titles.

metric system In general, metric terms should be included in a story when they are relevant.

There are no hard-and-fast rules on when they are relevant, but the following two guidelines have been developed to cover questions likely to arise as metric measurements gain increased acceptance in the United States:

—Use metric terms when they are the primary form in which the source of a story has provided statistics. Follow the metric units with equivalents in the terms more widely known in the United States. Normally, the equivalent should be in parentheses after the metric figure. A general statement such as: A kilometer equals about five-eighths of a mile, would be acceptable, however, to avoid repeated use of parenthetical equivalents in a story that uses kilometers many times.

—Provide metric equivalents for traditional forms if a metric unit has become widely known. As speedometers with kilometer markings become more prevalent, for example, a story about speed limits might list miles per hour and provide kilometers per hour in parentheses.

CONVERSION FORMULAS: A conversion table follows. To avoid the need for long strings of figures, prefixes are added to the metric units to denote fractional elements or large multiples. The prefixes are: pico- (one-trillionth), nano- (one-billionth), micro- (one-millionth), milli- (one-thousandth), centi- (one-hundredth), deci- (one-tenth), deka- (10 units), hecto- (100 units), kilo- (1,000 units), mega- (1 million units), giga- (1 billion units), tera- (1 trillion units). Entries for each prefix show how to convert a unit preceded by the prefix to the basic unit.

In addition, separate entries for gram, meter, liter, Celsius and other frequently used metric units define them and give examples of how to convert them to equivalents in the terminology that has been used in the United States.

Similarly, entries for pound, inch, quart, Fahrenheit, etc., contain examples of how to convert these terms to metric forms.

ABBREVIATIONS: The abbreviation mm for millimeter is acceptable in references to film widths (8 mm film) and weapons (a 105 mm cannon). (Note space between numeral and abbreviation.)

nobility References to members of the nobility in nations that have a system of rank present special problems because nobles frequently are known by their titles rather than their given or family names. Their titles, in effect, become their names.

The guidelines here relate to Britain's nobility. Adapt them as appropriate to members of nobility in other nations.

Orders of rank among British nobility begin with the royal family. The term royalty is reserved for the families of living and deceased sovereigns.

Next, in descending order, are dukes, marquesses (also called marquises), earls, viscounts and barons. Many hold inherited titles; others have been raised to the nobility by the sovereign for their lifetimes. Occasionally the sovereign raises an individual to the nobility and makes the title inheritable by the person's heirs, but the practice is increasingly rare.

Sovereigns also confer honorary titles, which do not make an individual a member of the nobility. The principal designations, in descending order, are baronet and knight.

In general, the guidelines in courtesy titles and titles apply. However, honorary titles and titles of nobility are capitalized when they serve as an alternate name.

Some guidelines and examples:

ROYALTY: Capitalize king, queen, prince and princess when they are used directly before one or more names; lowercase when they stand alone:

Queen Elizabeth II, Queen Elizabeth II of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the queen. Kings George and Edward. Queen Mother Elizabeth, the queen mother.

Also capitalize a longer form of the sovereign's title when its use is appropriate in a story or it is being quoted: Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth.

Use Prince or Princess before the names of a sovereign's children: Princess Anne, the princess.

The male heir to the throne normally is designated Prince of Wales, and the title becomes, in common usage, an alternate name. Capitalize when used: The queen invested her eldest son as Prince of Wales. Prince Charles is now the Prince of Wales. The prince is a bachelor. Charles, Prince of Wales, was married today. His wife is known as the Princess of Wales.

DUKE: The full title — Duke of Wellington, for example — is an alternate name, capitalized in all uses. Lowercase duke when it stands alone.

The designation Arthur, Duke of Wellington, is appropriate in some cases, but never Duke Arthur or Lord Arthur.

The wife of a duke is a duchess: the Duchess of Wellington, the duchess, but never Duchess Diana or Lady Diana.

A duke normally also has a lesser title. It is commonly used for his eldest son if he has one. Use the courtesy titles Lord or Lady before the first names of a duke's children.

Some examples:

Lady Jane Wellesley, only daughter of the eighth Duke of Wellington, has been linked romantically with Prince Charles, heir to the British throne. The eldest of Lady Jane's four brothers is Arthur Charles, the Marquess Douro. The Wellingtons, whose family name is Wellesley, are not of royal blood. However, they rank among the nation's most famous aristocrats thanks to the first duke, the victor at Waterloo.

MARQUESS, MARQUIS, EARL, VISCOUNT, BARON: The full titles serve as alternate names and should be capitalized. Frequently, however, the holder of such a title is identified as a lord: The Marquess of Bath, for example, more commonly is known as Lord Bath.

Use Lady before the name of a woman married to a man who holds one of these titles. The wife of a marquess is a marchioness, the wife of a marquis is a marquise, the wife of an earl is a countess (earl is the British equivalent of count), the wife of a viscount is a viscountess, the wife of a baron is a baroness.

Use Lord or Lady before the first names of the children of a marquess.

Use Lady before the first name of an earl's daughter.

The Honorable often appears before the names of sons of earls, viscounts and barons who do not have titles. Their names should stand alone in news stories, however.

The Honorable also appears frequently before the names of unmarried daughters of viscounts and barons. In news stories, however, use a full name on first reference, a last name preceded by Miss on second.

Some examples:

Queen Elizabeth gave her sister's husband, Antony Armstrong-Jones, the title Earl of Snowdon. Their son, David, is the Viscount Linley. They also have a daughter, Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones. Lord Snowdon, a photographer, was known as Antony Armstrong-Jones before he received his title.

BARONET, KNIGHT: Use Sir before a name if appropriate in the context; otherwise follow routine practice for names: Sir Harold Wilson on first reference, Sir Harold (not Sir Wilson) on second. Or: Prime Minister Harold Wilson on first reference, Wilson on second.

Do not use both an honorary title and a title of authority such as prime minister before a name.

Use Lady before the name of the wife of a baronet or knight.

For a woman who has received an honor in her own right, use Dame before her name if it is the way she is known or it is appropriate in the context: Dame Margot Fonteyn on first reference, Dame Margot on second.

noisome, noisy Noisome means offensive, noxious. Noisy means clamorous.

nolo contendere The literal meaning is, "I do not wish to contend." Terms such as no contest or no-contest plea are acceptable in all references.

When a defendant in a criminal case enters this plea, it means that he is not admitting guilt but is stating that he will offer no defense. The person is then subject to being judged guilty and punished as if he had pleaded guilty or had been convicted. The principal difference is that the defendant retains the option of denying the same charge in another legal proceeding.

non- The rules of prefixes apply, but in general no hyphen when forming a compound that does not have special meaning and can be understood if not is used before the base word. Use a hyphen, however, before proper nouns or in awkward combinations, such as non-nuclear. Follow Webster's New World Dictionary.

nonaligned nations A political rather than economic or geographic term used primarily during the Cold War. Although nonaligned nations do not belong to Western or Eastern military alliances or blocs, they profess not to be neutral, like Switzerland, but activist alternatives.

Do not confuse nonaligned with Third World, although some Third World nations may belong to the nonaligned group.

See the Third World entry.

none It usually means no single one. When used in this sense, it always takes singular verbs and pronouns: None of the seats was in its right place.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission This commission has taken over the regulatory functions previously performed by the Atomic Energy Commission.

NRC is acceptable on second reference, but the agency or the commission is preferred.

nuclear terminology In reporting on nuclear energy, include the definitions of appropriate terms, especially those related to radiation.

core The part of a nuclear reactor that contains its fissionable fuel. In a reactor core, atoms of fuel, such as uranium, are split. This releases energy in the form of heat which, in turn, is used to boil water for steam. The steam powers a turbine, and the turbine drives a generator to produce electricity.

fission The splitting of the nucleus of an atom, releasing energy.

meltdown The worst possible nuclear accident in which the reactor core overheats to such a degree that the fuel melts. If the fuel penetrates its protective housing, radioactive materials will be released into the environment.

rad The standard unit of measurement for absorbed radiation. A millirad is a thousandth of a rad. There is considerable debate among scientists whether there is any safe level of absorption.

radiation Invisible particles or waves given off by radioactive material, such as uranium. Radiation can damage or kill body cells, resulting in latent cancers, genetic damage or death.

rem The standard unit of measurement of absorbed radiation in living tissue, adjusted for different kinds of radiation so that 1 rem of any radiation will produce the same biological effect. A millirem is a thousandth of a rem.

A diagnostic chest X-ray involves between 20 millirems and 30 millirems of radiation. Each American, on average, receives 100 millirems to 200 millirems of radiation a year from natural "background" sources, such as cosmic rays, and man-made sources, such as diagnostic X-rays. There is considerable debate among scientists over the safety of repeated low doses of radiation.

roentgen The standard measure of X-ray exposure.

uranium A metallic, radioactive element used as fuel in nuclear reactors.

numerals A numeral is a figure, letter, word or group of words expressing a number.

Roman numerals use the letters I, V, X, L, C, D and M. Use Roman numerals for wars and to show personal sequence for animals and people: World War II, Native Dancer II, King George VI, Pope John XXIII. See Roman numerals.

Arabic numerals use the figures 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 0. Use Arabic forms unless Roman numerals are specifically required. See Arabic numerals.

The figures 1, 2, 10, 101, etc. and the corresponding words — one, two, ten, one hundred one, etc. — are called cardinal numbers. The term ordinal number applies to 1st, 2nd, 10th, 101st, first, second, tenth, one hundred first, etc.

Follow these guidelines in using numerals:

LARGE NUMBERS: When large numbers must be spelled out, use a hyphen to connect a word ending in y to another word; do not use commas between other separate words that are part of one number: twenty; thirty; twenty-one; thirty-one; one hundred forty-three; one thousand one hundred fifty-five; one million two hundred seventy-six thousand five hundred eighty-seven.

SENTENCE START: Spell out a numeral at the beginning of a sentence. If necessary, recast the sentence. There is one exception — a numeral that identifies a calendar year.

CASUAL USES: Spell out casual expressions:

A thousand times no! Thanks a million. He walked a quarter of a mile.

PROPER NAMES: Use words or numerals according to an organization's practice: 3M, Twentieth Century Fund, Big Ten.

FRACTIONS: See the fractions entry.

DECIMALS: See the decimal units entry.

FIGURES OR WORDS?

For ordinals:

—Spell out first through ninth when they indicate sequence in time or location: first base, the First Amendment, he was first in line. Starting with 10th use figures.

—Use 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, etc. when the sequence has been assigned in forming names. The principal examples are geographic, military and political designations such as 1st Ward, 7th Fleet and 1st Sgt. See examples in the separate entries listed below.

obscenities, profanities, vulgarities Do not use them in stories unless they are part of direct quotations and there is a compelling reason for them.

When a profanity, obscenity or vulgarity is used, flag the story at the top:

Eds: Note contents of 4th graf.

Then confine the offending language, in quotation marks, to a separate paragraph that can be deleted easily by editors who do not want it.

In reporting profanity that normally would use the words damn or god, lowercase god and use the following forms: damn, damn it, goddamn it. Do not, however, change the offending words to euphemisms. Do not, for example, change damn it to darn it.

If a full quote that contains profanity, obscenity or vulgarity cannot be dropped but there is no compelling reason for the offensive language, replace letters of an offensive word with a hyphen.

When the subject matter of a story may be considered offensive, but the story does not contain quoted profanity, obscenities or vulgarities, flag the story at the top:

Editors: The contents may be offensive to some readers.

—Determine the type of oil.

—Consult the table below to find out how many barrels per ton for that type of oil.

—Multiply the number of tons by the number of barrels per ton. The result is the number of bar-party See the political parties and philosophies entry.

party affiliation Let relevance be the guide in determining whether to include a political figure's party affiliation in a story.

Party affiliation is pointless in some stories, such as an account of a governor accepting a button from a poster child.

It will occur naturally in many political stories.

For stories between these extremes, include party affiliation if readers need it for understanding or are likely to be curious about what it is.

GENERAL FORMS: When party designation is given, use any of these approaches as logical in constructing a story:

—Democratic Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota said...

—Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said...

—Sen. Hubert Humphrey also spoke. The Minnesota Democrat said...

—Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona is seeking the Democratic presidential nomination. Not: Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., is seeking the Democratic...

In stories about party meetings, such as a report on the Republican National Convention, no specific reference to party affiliation is necessary unless an individual is not a member of the party in question.

SHORT-FORM PUNCTUATION: Set short forms such as D-Minn. off from a name by commas, as illustrated above.

Use the abbreviations listed in the entries for each state. (No abbreviations for Alaska, Hawaii, Idaho, Iowa, Maine, Ohio, Texas and Utah.)

binations for other affiliations: Sen. James Buckley, R-Con-N.Y., spoke with Sen. Harry Byrd, D-Ind-Va.

FORM FOR U.S. HOUSE MEMBERS: The normal practice for U.S. House members is to identify them by party and state. In contexts where state affiliation is clear and home city is relevant, such as a state election roundup, identify representatives by party and city: U.S. Reps. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Cambridge, and Margaret Heckler, R-Wellesley. If this option is used, be consistent throughout the story.

FORM FOR STATE LEGISLATORS: Short-form listings showing party and home city are appropriate in state wire stories. For trunk wire stories, the normal practice is to say that the individual is a Republican or Democrat. Use a short-form listing only if the legislator's home city is relevant.

PROPER NAMES below for an exception.)

Otherwise add s: donkeys, monkeys.

WORDS ENDING IN O: If o is preceded by a consonant, most plurals require es: buffaloes, dominoes, echoes, heroes, potatoes. But there are exceptions: pi-anos. See individual entries in this book for many of these exceptions.

WORDS ENDINGS IN F: In general, change f to v and add es: leaves, selves. (Roof, roofs is an exception.)

Use the plural that Webster's New World lists as most common for a particular sense of word.

FORM CHANGE: man, men; child, children; foot, feet; mouse, mice; etc.

Caution: When s is used with any of these words it indicates possession and must be preceded by an apostrophe: men's, children's, etc.

WORDS THE SAME IN SINGULAR AND PLURAL: corps, chassis, deer, moose, sheep, etc.

The sense in a particular sentence is conveyed by the use of a singular or plural verb.

WORDS PLURAL IN FORM,

SINGULAR IN MEANING: Some take singular verbs: measles, mumps, news.

Others take plural verbs: grips, scissors.

COMPOUND WORDS: Those written solid add s at the end: cupfuls, handfuls, tablespoonfuls.

For those that involve separate words or words linked by a hyphen, make the most significant word plural:

—Significant word first: adjutants general, aides-de-camp, attorneys general, courts-martial, daughters-in-law, passers-by, postmasters general, presidents-elect, secretaries general, sergeants major.

—Significant word in the middle: assistant attorneys general, deputy chiefs of staff.

—Significant word last: assistant attorneys, assistant corporation counsels, deputy sheriffs, lieutenant colonels, major generals.

(No apostrophes, an exception to Webster's New World guideline under "apostrophe.")

SINGLE LETTERS: Use 's: Mind your p's and q's. He learned the three R's and brought home a report card with four A's and two B's. The Oakland A's won the pennant.

MULTIPLE LETTERS: Add s: She knows her ABCs. I gave him five IOUs. Four VIPs were there.

PROBLEMS, DOUBTS: Separate entries in this book give plurals for troublesome words and guidance on whether certain words should be used with singular or plural verbs and pronouns. See also collective nouns and possessives.

For questions not covered by this book, use the plural that Webster's New World lists as most common for a particular sense of a word.

Note also the guidelines that the dictionary provides under its "plural" entry.

pocket veto Occurs only when Congress has adjourned. If Congress is in session, a bill that remains on the president's desk for 10 days becomes law without his signature. If Congress adjourns, however, a bill that fails to get his signature within 10 days is vetoed.

point (printing) As a unit of measure in printing, a point equals a fraction less than a seventy-second of an inch. A pica contains 12 points.

Polaroid A trademark for Polaroid Land instant-picture cameras and for transparent material containing embedded crystals capable of polarizing light.

police department In communities where this is the formal name, capitalize police department with or without the name of the community: the Los Angeles Police Department, the Police Department.

If a police agency has some other formal name such as Division of Police, use that name if it is the way the department is known to the public. If the story uses police department as a generic term for such an agency, put police department in lowercase.

If a police agency with an unusual formal name is known to the public as a police department, treat police department as the name, capitalizing it with or without the name of the community. Use the formal name only if there is a special reason in the story.

If the proper name cannot be determined for some reason, such as the need to write about a police agency from a distance, treat police department as the proper name, capitalizing it with or without the name of the community.

Lowercase police department in plural uses: the Los Angeles and San Francisco police departments.

Lowercase the department whenever it stands alone.

police titles See military titles and titles.

policy-maker (n.) policy-making (n. and adj.)

political divisions Use Arabic figures and capitalize the accompanying word when used with the figures: 1st Ward, 10th Ward, 3rd Precinct, 22nd Precinct, the ward, the precinct.

political parties and philosophies Capitalize both the name of the party and the word party if it is customarily used as part of the organization's proper name: the Democratic Party, the Republican Party.

Capitalize Communist, Conservative, Democrat, Liberal, Republican, Socialist, etc., when they refer to a specific party or its members. Lowercase these words when they refer to political philosophy (see examples below).

Lowercase the name of a philosophy in noun and adjective forms unless it is the derivative of a proper name: communism, communist; fascism, fascist. But: Marxism, Marxist; Nazism, Nazi.

EXAMPLES: John Adams was a Federalist, but a man who subscribed to his philosophy today would be described as a federalist. The liberal Republican senator and his Conservative Party colleague said they believe that democracy and communism are incompatible. The Communist said he is basically a socialist who has reservations about Marxism.

See convention and party affiliation.

politics Usually it takes a plural verb: My politics are my own business.

As a study or science, it takes a singular verb: Politics is a demanding profession.

polls and surveys Stories based on public opinion polls must include the basic information for an intelligent evaluation of the results. Such stories must be carefully worded to avoid exaggerating the meaning of the poll results.

Information that should be in every story based on a poll includes the answers to these questions:

1. Who did the poll? (The place to start is the polling firm, political campaign or other group that conducted the poll.)

2. How many people were interviewed? How were they selected? (Only polls based on a scientific sample of a population can be used as a reliable and accurate measure of that population's opinions. Polls based on interviews on street corners, calling a 900-number or mailing coupons back from magazines may be good entertainment, but such polls have no validity. They should be avoided. In such unscientific pseudo-polls, the opinions come from people who "select themselves" to participate. If such polls are reported for entertainment value, they must never be portrayed as accurately reflecting public opinion and their failings must be highlighted.)

3. Who was interviewed? (A valid poll reflects only the opinions of the population that was sampled. A poll of business executives can only represent the views of business executives, not of all adults. Many political polls are based on interviews only with registered voters, since registration is usually required for voting. Close to the election, polls may be based only on "likely voters." If "likely voters" are used as the base, ask the pollster how that group was identified.)

4. How was the poll conducted — by telephone or in people's homes?

5. When was the poll taken? (Opinions can change quickly, especially in response to events.)

6. Who paid for the poll? (Be wary of polls paid for by candidates or interest groups. The release of poll results is often a campaign tactic or publicity ploy. Any reporting of such polls must highlight the poll's sponsor and the potential for bias from such sponsorship.)

7. What are the sampling error margins for the poll and for subgroups mentioned in the story? (Sampling error margins should be provided by the polling organization. The error margins vary inversely with the sample size: the fewer people interviewed, the larger the sampling error. If the opinions of a subgroup — women, for example — are important to the story, the sampling error for that subgroup should be included. The subgroup error margins are always larger than the margin for the entire poll.)

8. What questions were asked and in what order? (Small differences in question wording can cause big differences in results. The exact texts of the question need not be in every poll story unless it is crucial or controversial.)

When writing and editing poll stories, here are areas for close attention:

—Do not exaggerate the poll results. A difficult situation arises with pre-election polls in deciding when to write that the poll says one candidate is leading another. The rules are: If the margin between the candidates is more than twice the sampling error margin, then the poll says one candidate is leading. If the margin is less than the sampling error margin, the poll says that the race is close, that the candidates are "about even." If the margin is more than the sampling error, but less than twice the sampling error, then one candidate can be said to be "apparently leading" or "slightly ahead" in the race.

—Comparisons with other polls are often newsworthy. Earlier poll results can show changes in public opinion. Be careful comparing polls from different polling organizations. Different poll techniques can cause differing results.

—Sampling error is not the only source of error in a poll, but it is one that can be quantified. Question wording, interviewer skill and computer processing are all sources of error in surveys.

—No matter how good the poll, no matter how wide the margin, the poll does not say one candidate will win an election. Polls can be wrong and the voters can change their minds before they cast their ballots.

pom-pom, pompom Pom-pom is sometimes used to describe a rapid firing automatic weapon. Define the word if it must be used.

A pompom (also sometimes spelled pompon) is a large ball of crepe paper or fluffed cloth, often waved by cheerleaders or atop a hat. It is also a flower that appears on some varieties of chrysanthemums.

pontiff Not a formal title. Always lowercase.

brand of flavored ice on a stick.

popular names See capitalization.

port, starboard Nautical for left and right. Port is left. Starboard is right. Change to left or right unless in direct quotes.

Portuguese names The family names of both the father and mother usually are considered part of a person's full name. In everyday use, customs sometimes vary with individuals and countries.

The normal sequence is given name, mother's family name, father's family name: Maria Santos Ferreira.

On second reference, use only the father's family name (Ferreira), unless the individual prefers or is widely known by a multiple last name (Ferreira Castro).

Some Portuguese use an e (for and) between the two names: Joao Canto e Castro. This would not be split on second reference, but would be Canto e Castro.

When a surname is preceded by da, do, dos, or das, include it in the second reference. Jorge da Costa, for example, would be Da Costa on second reference.

A married woman adds her husband's surname to the end of hers. If Maria Santos Ferreira married Joao Costa da Silva, her full name would be Maria Ferreira da Silva.

Occasionally, a woman may choose not to take her husband's surname for personal reasons or because the mother's family has an aristocratic or famous surname. Use both surnames if the individual's choice is not known.

possessives Follow these guidelines:

PLURAL NOUNS ENDING IN S: Add only an apostrophe: the churches' needs, the girls' toys, the horses' food, the ships' wake, states' rights, the VIPs' entrance.

NOUNS PLURAL IN FORM, SINGULAR IN MEANING: Add only an apostrophe: mathematics' rules, measles' effects. (But see INANIMATE OBJECTS below.)

Apply the same principle when a plural word occurs in the formal name of a singular entity: General Motors' profits, the United States' wealth.

NOUNS THE SAME IN SINGULAR AND PLURAL: Treat them the same as plurals, even if the meaning is singular: one corps' location, the two deer's tracks, the lone moose's antlers.

SINGULAR NOUNS NOT ENDING IN S: Add 's: the church's needs, the girl's toys, the horse's food, the ship's route, the VIP's seat.

Some style guides say that singular nouns ending in s sounds such as ce, x, and z may take either the apostrophe alone or 's. See SPECIAL EXPRESSIONS, but otherwise, for consistency and ease in remembering a rule, always use 's if the word does not end in the letter s: Butz's policies, the fox's den, the justice's verdict, Marx's theories, the prince's life, Xerox's profits.

SINGULAR PROPER NAMES ENDING IN S: Use only an apostrophe: Achilles' heel, Agnes' book, Ceres' rites, Descartes' theories, Dickens' novels, Euripides' dramas, Hercules' labors, Jesus' life, Jules' seat, Kansas' schools, Moses' law, Socrates' life, Tennessee Williams' plays, Xerxes' armies.

SPECIAL EXPRESSIONS: The following exceptions to the general rule for words not ending in s apply to words that end in an s sound and are followed by a word that begins with s: for appearance's sake, for conscience's sake, for goodness' sake. Use 's otherwise: the appearance's cost, my conscience's voice.

PRONOUNS: Personal interrogative and relative pronouns have separate forms for the possessive. None involve an apostrophe: mine, ours, your, yours, his, hers, its, theirs, whose.

Caution: If you are using an apostrophe with a pronoun, always double-check to be sure that the meaning calls for a contraction: you're, it's, there's, who's.

Follow the rules listed above in forming the possessives of other pronouns: another's idea, others' plans, someone's guess.

COMPOUND WORDS: Applying the rules above, add an apostrophe or 's to the word closest to the object possessed: the major general's decision, the major generals' decisions, the attorney general's request, the attorneys general's request. See the plurals entry for guidelines on forming the plurals of these words.

Also: anyone else's attitude, John Adams Jr.'s father, Benjamin Franklin of Pennsylvania's motion. Whenever practical, however, recast the phrase to avoid ambiguity: the motion by Benjamin Franklin of Pennsylvania.

JOINT POSSESSION, INDIVIDUAL POSSESSION: Use a possessive form after only the last word if ownership is joint: Fred and Sylvia's apartment, Fred and Sylvia's stocks.

Use a possessive form after both words if the objects are individually owned: Fred's and Sylvia's books.

DESCRIPTIVE PHRASES: Do not add an apostrophe to a word ending in s when it is used primarily in a descriptive sense: citizens band radio, a Cincinnati Reds infielder, a teachers college, a Teamsters request, a writers guide.

Memory Aid: The apostrophe usually is not used if for or by rather than of would be appropriate in the longer form: a radio band for citizens, a college for teachers, a guide for writers, a request by the Teamsters.

An 's is required, however, when a term involves a plural word that does not end in s: a children's hospital, a people's republic, the Young Men's Christian Association.

DESCRIPTIVE NAMES: Some governmental, corporate and institutional organizations with a descriptive word in their names use an apostrophe; some do not. Follow the user's practice: Actors' Equity, Diners Club, the Ladies' Home Journal, the National Governors' Association. See separate entries for these and similar names frequently in the news.

QUASI POSSESSIVES: Follow the rules above in composing the possessive form of words that occur in such phrases as a day's pay, two weeks' vacation, three days' work, your money's worth.

Frequently, however, a hyphenated form is clearer: a two-week vacation, a three-day job.

DOUBLE POSSESSIVE: Two conditions must apply for a double possessive — a phrase such as a friend of John's — to occur: 1. The word after of must refer to an animate object, and 2. The word before of must involve only a portion of the animate object's possessions.

Otherwise, do not use the possessive form of the word after of: The friends of John Adams mourned his death. (All the friends were involved.) He is a friend of the college. (Not college's, because college is inanimate.)

Memory Aid: This construction occurs most often, and quite naturally, with the possessive forms of personal pronouns: He is a friend of mine.

INANIMATE OBJECTS: There is no blanket rule against creating a possessive form for an inanimate object, particularly if the object is treated in a personified sense. See some of the earlier examples, and note these: death's call, the wind's murmur.

In general, however, avoid excessive personalization of inanimate objects, and give preference to an of construction when it fits the makeup of the sentence. For example, the earlier references to mathematics' rules and measles' effects would better be phrased: the rules of mathematics, the effects of measles.

post- Follow Webster's New World. Hyphenate if not listed there.

Some words without a hyphen:

postdoctoral	postoperative
postelection	postscript

Some words that use a hyphen:

post office It may be used but it is no longer capitalized because the agency is now the U.S. Postal Service.

pre-empt

Otherwise, follow Webster's New World, hyphenating if not listed there. Some examples:

preacher A job description, not a formal religious title. Do not capitalize.

See titles and religious titles.

precincts See political divisions.

predominant, predominantly Use these primary spellings listed in Webster's New World for the adjectival and adverbial forms. Do not use the alternates it records, predominate and predominately.

The verb form, however, is predominate.

prefixes See separate listings for commonly used prefixes.

Generally do not hyphenate when using a prefix with a word starting with a consonant.

Three rules are constant, although they yield some exceptions to first-listed spellings in Webster's New World Dictionary:

—Except for cooperate and coordinate, use a hyphen if the prefix ends in a vowel and the word that follows begins with the same vowel.

—Use a hyphen if the word that follows is capitalized.

—Use a hyphen to join doubled prefixes: sub-subparagraph.

premier, prime minister

These two titles often are used interchangeably in translating to English the title of an individual who is the first minister in a national government that has a council of ministers.

Prime minister is the correct title throughout the Commonwealth, formerly the British Commonwealth. See Commonwealth for a list of members.

Prime minister is the best or traditional translation from most other languages. For consistency, use it throughout the rest of the world with these exceptions:

—Use chancellor in Austria and Germany.

—Follow the practice of a nation if there is a specific preference that varies from this general practice.

Premier is also the correct title for the individuals who lead the provincial governments in Canada and Australia.

See titles.

premiere A first performance.

Presbyterian churches

There are four levels of authority in Presbyterian practice — individual congregations, presbyteries, synods and a general assembly.

Congregations are led by a pastor, who provides guidance in spiritual matters, and by a session, composed of ruling elders chosen by the congregation to represent the members in matters of government and discipline.

A presbytery is composed of all the ministers and an equal number of ruling elders, including at least one from each congregation, in a given district. Although the next two levels are technically higher, the presbytery has the authority to rule on many types of material and spiritual questions.

Presbyteries unite to form a synod, whose members are elected by the presbyteries. A synod generally meets once a year to decide matters such as the creation of new presbyteries and to pass judgment on appeals and complaints that do not affect the doctrine or constitution of the church.

A general assembly, composed of delegations of pastors and ruling elders from each presbytery, meets yearly to decide issues of doctrine and discipline within a Presbyterian body. It also may create new synods, divide old ones and correspond with general assemblies of other Presbyterian bodies.

The northern and southern branches of Presbyterianism merged in 1983 to become the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). Its membership totals 3 million. Formerly, Presbyterianism in the United States was concentrated in two bodies. The principal body in the North was the United Presbyterian Church in the United States of America. The Presbyterian Church in the United States was the principal Southern body.

Presbyterians believe in the Trinity and the humanity and divinity of Christ. Baptism, which may be administered to children, and the Lord's Supper are the only sacraments.

All Presbyterian clergymen may be described as ministers. Pastor applies if a minister leads a congregation.

On first reference, use the Rev. before the name of a man or woman. On second reference, use only the last name.

See religious titles.

Lowercase in all other uses: The president said today. He is running for president. Lincoln was president during the Civil War.

See titles.

FIRST NAMES: In most cases, the first name of a current or former U.S. president is not necessary on first reference. Use first names when necessary to avoid confusion: President Andrew Johnson, President Lyndon John- son. First names also may be used for literary effect, or in feature or personality contexts.

For presidents of other nations and of organizations and institutions, capitalize president as a formal title before a full name: President Josip Broz Tito of Yugoslavia (not: President Tito on first reference), President John Smith of Acme Corp.

On second reference, use only the last name.

presidential Lowercase unless part of a proper name.

It is given by the president, on the recommendation of the Distinguished Civilian Service Board, for "exceptionally meritorious contribution to the security of the United States or other significant public or private endeavors."

Principle is a noun that means a fundamental truth, law, doctrine or motivating force: They fought for the principle of self-determination.

prior to Before is less stilted for most uses. Prior to is appropriate, however, when a notion of requirement is involved: The fee must be paid prior to the examination.

prison, jail Do not use the two words interchangeably.

DEFINITIONS: Prison is a generic term that may be applied to the maximum security institutions often known as penitentiaries and to the medium security facilities often called correctional institutions or reformatories. All such facilities confine people serving sentences for felonies.

A jail is a facility normally used to confine people serving sentences for misdemeanors, persons awaiting trial or sentencing on either felony or misdemeanor charges, and persons confined for civil matters such as failure to pay alimony and other types of contempt of court.

See the felony, misdemeanor entry.

The guidelines for capitalization:

PRISONS: Many states have given elaborate formal names to their prisons. They should be capitalized when used, but commonly accepted substitutes should also be capitalized as if they were proper names. For example, use either Massachusetts Correctional Institution-Walpole or Walpole State Prison for the maximum security institution in Massachusetts.

Do not, however, construct a substitute when the formal name is commonly accepted: It is the Colorado State Penitentiary, for example, not Colorado State Prison.

On second reference, any of the following may be used, all in lowercase: the state prison, the prison, the state penitentiary, the penitentiary.

Use lowercase for all plural constructions: the Colorado and Kansas state penitentiaries.

JAILS: Capitalize jail when linked with the name of the jurisdiction: Los Angeles County Jail. Lowercase county jail, city jail and jail when they stand alone.

FEDERAL INSTITUTIONS: Maximum security institutions are known as penitentiaries: the U.S. Penitentiary at Lewisburg or Lewisburg Penitentiary on first reference; the federal penitentiary or the penitentiary on second reference.

Medium security institutions include the word federal as part of their formal names: the Federal Correctional Institution at Dan- bury, Conn. On second reference: the correctional institution, the federal prison, the prison.

Most federal facilities used to house people awaiting trial or serving sentences of a year or less have the proper name Federal Detention Center. The term Metropolitan Correctional Center is being adopted for some new installations. On second reference: the detention center, the correctional center.

See titles.

Quakers This informal name may be used in all references to members of the Religious Society of Friends, but always include the full name in a story dealing primarily with Quaker activities.

The denomination originated with George Fox, an Englishman who objected to Anglican emphasis on ceremony. In the 1640s, he said he heard a voice that opened the way for him to develop a personal relationship with Christ, described as the Inner Light, a term based on the Gospel description of Christ as the “true light.”

Brought to court for opposing the established church, Fox tangled with a judge who derided him as a “quaker” in reference to his agitation over religious matters.

The basic unit of Quaker organization is the weekly meeting, which corresponds to the congregation in other churches.

Various yearly meetings form larger associations that assemble at intervals of a year or more. The largest is the Friends United Meeting. Its 15 yearly meeting members represent about half the Friends in the world.

Others include the Evangelical Friends Alliance and the Friends General Conference. Members of the conference include some yearly meetings that also are affiliated with the Friends United Meeting.

Overall, Friends count about 120,000 members in the United States and Canada and a total of 200,000 worldwide.

Fox taught that the Inner Light emancipates a person from adherence to any creed, ecclesiastical authority or ritual forms.

There is no recognized ranking of clergy over lay people. However, there are meeting officers, called elders or ministers. Many Quaker ministers, particularly in the Midwest and West, use the Rev. before their names and describe themselves as pastors.

Capitalize elder, minister or pastor when used as a formal title before a name. Use the Rev. before a name on first reference if it is a minister's practice. On second reference, use only the last name.

quotations in the news

Never alter quotations even to correct minor grammatical errors or word usage. Casual minor tongue slips may be removed by using ellipses but even that should be done with extreme caution. If there is a question about a quote, either don't use it or ask the speaker to clarify.

If a person is unavailable for comment, detail attempts to reach that person. (Smith was out of the country on business; Jones did not return phone messages left at the office.)

Do not routinely use abnormal spellings such as gonna in attempts to convey regional dialects or mispronunciations. Such spellings are appropriate when relevant or help to convey a desired touch in a feature.

FULL vs. PARTIAL QUOTES:
In general, avoid fragmentary quotes. If a speaker's words are clear and concise, favor the full quote. If cumbersome language can be paraphrased fairly, use an indirect construction, reserving quotation marks for sensitive or controversial passages that must be identified specifically as coming from the speaker.

CONTEXT: Remember that you can misquote someone by giving a startling remark without its modifying passage or qualifiers. The manner of delivery sometimes is part of the context. Reporting a smile or a deprecatory gesture may be as important as conveying the words themselves.

OFFENSIVE LANGUAGE: See the obscenities, profanities, vulgarities entry.

PUNCTUATION: See the quotation marks entry in the Punctuation chapter.

Quran The preferred spelling for the Muslim holy book. Use the spelling Koran only if preferred by a specific organization or in a specific title or name.

race Identification by race is pertinent:

—In biographical and announcement stories, particularly when they involve a feat or appointment that has not routinely been associated with members of a particular race.

—When it provides the reader with a substantial insight into conflicting emotions known or likely to be involved in a demonstration or similar event.

In some stories that involve a conflict, it is equally important to specify that an issue cuts across racial lines. If, for example, a demonstration by supporters of busing to achieve racial balance in schools includes a substantial number of whites, that fact should be noted.

Do not use racially derogatory terms unless they are part of a quotation that is essential to the story.

See the obscenities, profanities, vulgarities entry and the nationalities and races entry.

rack, wrack The noun rack applies to various types of framework; the verb rack means to arrange on a rack, to torture, trouble or torment: He was placed on the rack. She racked her brain.

radical In general, avoid this description in favor of a more precise definition of an individual's political views.

When used, it suggests that an individual believes change must be made by tearing up the roots or foundation of the present order.

Although radical often is applied to individuals who hold strong socialist or communist views, it also is applied at times to individuals who believe an existing form of government must be replaced by a more authoritarian or militaristic one.

See the leftist, ultra-leftist and rightist, ultra-rightist entries.

radio Capitalize and use before a name to indicate an official voice of the government: Radio Moscow.

Lowercase and place after the name when indicating only that the information was obtained from broadcasts in a city. Havana radio, for example, is the form used in referring to reports that are broadcast on various stations in the Cuban capital.

See call letters.

railroads Capitalize when part of a name: the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad.

Although both words connote an element of violence, they are not interchangeable. Buildings and towns cannot be ravished.

rayon Not a trademark.

re- The rules in prefixes apply. The following examples of exceptions to first-listed spellings in Webster's New World are based on the general rule that a hyphen is used if a prefix ends in a vowel and the word that follows begins with the same vowel:

re-elect	re-enlist
re-election	re-enter
re-emerge	re-entry
re-employ	re-equip
re-enact	re-establish re-engage	re-examine

For many other words, the sense is the governing factor:

recover (regain)	re-cover (cover again)
reform (improve)	re-form (form again)
resign (quit)	re-sign (sign again)

Otherwise, follow Webster's New World. Use a hyphen for words not listed there unless the hyphen would distort the sense.

reader See Church of Christ, Scientist.

Realtor The term real estate agent is preferred. Use Realtor only if there is a reason to indicate that the individual is a member of the National Association of Realtors.

See service marks.

Reign is the period a ruler is on the throne: The king began his reign.

release times Follow these guidelines:

TIME SET BY SOURCE: If a source provides material on condition that it not be published or broadcast until a specific time, the story should contain a boldface slug to that effect:

↑ For Release 10 a.m. EST, time set by source. ←

MOVEMENT TIME SET BY SOURCE: If a source provides material on condition that it not be moved on any wire read by newspapers or broadcasters until a specific time, the request will be respected. Consult the General Desk if any problems arise.

↑ For Release 6:30 a.m. EST. ←

ENTERPRISE COPY: Stories sent in advance for a specified cycle and date are released for broadcast and morning papers at 6:30 p.m.; 6:30 a.m. if the advance was sent for afternoon papers.

religious affiliations Capitalize the names and the related terms applied to members of the orders: He is a member of the Society of Jesus. He is a Jesuit.

religious movements The terms that follow have been grouped under a single entry because they are interrelated and frequently cross denominational lines.

evangelical Historically, evangelical was used as an adjective describing dedication to conveying the message of Christ. Today it also is used as a noun, referring to a category of doctrinally conservative Christians. They emphasize the need for a definite, adult commitment or conversion to faith in Christ and the duty of all believers to persuade others to accept Christ.

Evangelicals make up some conservative denominations and are numerous in broader denominations. Evangelicals stress both doctrinal absolutes and vigorous efforts to win others to belief.

The National Association of Evangelicals is an interdenominational, cooperative body of relatively small, conservative Protestant denominations. It has a total of about 2.5 million members and maintains headquarters in Wheaton, Ill.

evangelism The word refers to activity directed outside the church fold to influence others to commit themselves to faith in Christ, to his work of serving others and to infuse his principles into society's conduct.

Styles of evangelism vary from direct preaching appeals at large public meetings to practical deeds of carrying the name of Christ, indirectly conveying the same call to allegiance to him.

The word evangelism is derived from the Greek evangelion, which means the gospel or good news of Christ's saving action in behalf of humanity.

fundamentalist The word gained usage in an early 20th century fundamentalist-modernist controversy within Protestantism. In recent years, however, fundamentalist has to a large extent taken on pejorative connotations except when applied to groups that stress strict, literal interpretations of Scripture and separation from other Christians.

In general, do not use fundamentalist unless a group applies the word to itself.

liberal In general, avoid this word as a descriptive classification in religion. It has objectionable implications to many believers.

Acceptable alternate descriptions include activist, more flexible and broadview.

Moderate is appropriate when used by the contending parties, as is the case in the conflict between the moderate or more flexible wing of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and conservatives, who argue for literal interpretations of biblical passages others consider symbolic.

Do not use the term Bible-believing to distinguish one faction from another, because all Christians believe the Bible. The differences are over interpretations.

neo-Pentecostal, charismatic These terms apply to a movement that has developed within mainline Protestant and Roman Catholic denominations since the mid-20th century. It is distinguished by its emotional expressiveness, spontaneity in worship, speaking or praying in "unknown tongues" and healing. Participants often characterize themselves as "spirit-filled" Christians.

Unlike the earlier Pentecostal movement, which led to separate denominations, this movement has swelled within major churches.

Pentecostalism A movement that arose in the early 20th century and separated from historic Protestant denominations. It is distinguished by the belief in tangible manifestations of the Holy Spirit, often in demonstrative, emotional ways such as speaking in “unknown tongues” and healing.

Pentecostal denominations include the Assemblies of God, the Pentecostal Holiness Church, the United Pentecostal Church Inc. and the International Church of the Foursquare Gospel founded by Aimee Semple McPherson.

religious references The basic guidelines:

DEITIES: Capitalize the proper names of monotheistic deities: God, Allah, the Father, the Son, Jesus Christ, the Son of God, the Redeemer, the Holy Spirit, etc.

Lowercase pronouns referring to the deity: he, him, his, thee, thou, who, whose, thy, etc.

Lowercase gods in referring to the deities of polytheistic religions.

Capitalize the proper names of pagan and mythological gods and goddesses: Neptune, Thor, Venus, etc.

Lowercase such words as god-awful, goddamn, godlike, godliness, godsend.

LIFE OF CHRIST: Capitalize the names of major events in the life of Jesus Christ in references that do not use his name: The doctrines of the Last Supper, the Crucifixion, the Resurrection and the Ascension are central to Christian belief.

But use lowercase when the words are used with his name: The ascension of Jesus into heaven took place 40 days after his resurrection from the dead.

Apply the principle also to events in the life of his mother: He cited the doctrines of the Immaculate Conception and the Assumption. But: She referred to the assumption of Mary into heaven.

rites: Capitalize proper names for rites that commemorate the Last Supper or signify a belief in Christ's presence: the Lord's Supper, Holy Communion, Holy Eucharist.

Lowercase the names of other sacraments. See the sacraments entry.

Capitalize Benediction and the Mass. But: a high Mass, a low Mass, a requiem Mass.

HOLY DAYS: Capitalize the names of holy days. See the holidays and holy days entry and separate entries for major Christian and Jewish feasts.

OTHER WORDS: Lowercase heaven, hell, devil, angel, cherub, an apostle, a priest, etc.

Capitalize Hades and Satan. For additional details, see Bible, entries for frequently used religious terms, the entries for major denominations, religious movements and religious titles.

Religious Society of Friends See Quakers.

religious titles The first reference to a clergyman or clergywoman normally should include a capitalized title before the individual's name.

In many cases, the Rev. is the designation that applies before a name on first reference. Use the Rev. Dr. only if the individual has an earned doctoral degree (doctor of divinity degrees frequently are honorary) and reference to the degree is relevant.

On second reference to members of the clergy, use only a last name: the Rev. Billy Graham on first reference, Graham on second. If known only by a religious name, repeat the title: Pope Paul VI or Pope Paul on first reference, Pope Paul, the pope (not Paul) or the pontiff on second; Metropolitan Ireney on first reference, Metropolitan Ireney or the metropolitan on second.

Detailed guidance on specific titles and descriptive words such as priest and minister is provided in the entries for major denominations. In general, however:

CARDINALS, ARCHBISHOPS, BISHOPS: The preferred form for first reference is to use Cardinal, Archbishop or Bishop before the individual's name: Cardinal Timothy Manning, archbishop of Los Angeles. On second reference: Manning or the cardinal.

Substitute the Most Rev. if applicable and appropriate in the context: He spoke to the Most Rev. Anthony Bevilacqua, archbishop of Philadelphia. On second reference: Bevilacqua or the archbishop.

Entries for individual denominations tell when the Most Rev., the Very Rev., etc., are applicable.

MINISTERS AND PRIESTS: Use the Rev. before a name on first reference.

Substitute Monsignor before the name of a Roman Catholic priest who has received this honor.

Do not routinely use curate, father, pastor and similar words before an individual's name. If they appear before a name in a quotation, capitalize them.

RABBIS: Use Rabbi before a name on first reference. On second reference, use only the last name.

NUNS: Always use Sister, or Mother if applicable, before a name: Sister Agnes Rita in all references if the nun uses only a religious name; Sister Clare Regina Torpy on first reference if she uses a surname, Sister Torpy on second reference.

OFFICEHOLDERS: The preferred first-reference form for those who hold church office but are not ordained clergy in the usual sense is to use a construction that sets the title apart from the name by commas. Capitalize the formal title of an office, however, if it is used directly before an individual's name.

rightist, ultra-rightist In general, avoid these terms in favor of more precise descriptions of an individual's political philosophy.

As popularly used today, particularly abroad, rightist often applies to someone who is conservative or opposed to socialism. It also often indicates an individual who supports an authoritarian government that is militantly anti-communist or anti-socialist.

Ultra-rightist suggests an individual who subscribes to rigid interpretations of a conservative doctrine or to forms of fascism that stress authoritarian, often militaristic, views.

See radical and the leftist, ultra-leftist entry.

right of way, rights of way right-to-work (adj.) A right-to-work law prohibits a company and a union from signing a contract that would require the affected workers to be union members.

Federal labor laws generally permit such contracts. There is no federal right-to-work law, but Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act allows states to pass such laws if they wish. Many states have done so.

The repeal of Section 14B would have the effect of voiding all right-to-work laws. By itself, the repeal would not require workers to be union members, but in states that now have right-to-work laws, the repeal would open the way to contracts requiring union membership.

See closed shop for definitions of various agreements that require union membership.

Roman Catholic Church

The church teaches that its bishops have been established as the successors of the apostles through generations of ceremonies in which authority was passed down by a laying-on of hands.

Responsibility for teaching the faithful and administering the church rests with the bishops. However, the church holds that the pope has final authority over their actions because he is the bishop of Rome, the office that it teaches was held by the apostle Peter at his death.

Although the pope is empowered to speak infallibly on faith and morals, he does so only in formal pronouncements that specifically state he is speaking from the chair (ex cathedra) of St. Peter. This rarely used prerogative was most recently invoked in 1950, when Pope Pius XII declared that Mary was assumed bodily into heaven.

The Curia serves as a form of governmental cabinet. Its members, appointed by the pope, handle both administrative and judicial functions.

The pope also chooses members of the College of Cardinals, who serve as his principal counselors. When a new pope must be chosen, they meet in a conclave to select a new pope by majority vote. In practice, cardinals are bishops, but there is no requirement that a cardinal be a bishop.

In the United States, the church's principal organizational units are archdioceses and dioceses. They are headed, respectively, by archbishops and bishops, who have final responsibility for many activities within their jurisdictions and report directly to Rome.

The church counts more than 600 million members worldwide. In the United States it has more than 48 million members, making it the largest single body of Christians in the nation.

Roman Catholics believe in the Trinity — that there is one God who exists as three divine persons, the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. They believe that the Son became man as Jesus Christ.

In addition to the Holy Eucharist, there are six other sacraments — baptism, confirmation, penance (often called the sacrament of reconciliation), matrimony, holy orders, and the sacrament of the sick (formerly extreme unction).

The clergy below pope are, in descending order, cardinal, archbishop, bishop, monsignor, priest and deacon. In religious orders, some men who are not priests have the title brother.

Capitalize pope when used as a title before a name: Pope Paul VI, Pope Paul. Lowercase in all other uses. See the titles entry.

The first-references forms for other titles follow. Use only last names on second reference.

Cardinals: Cardinal Timothy Manning. The usage Timothy Cardinal Manning, a practice traceable to the nobility's custom of identifications such as William, Duke of Norfolk, is still used in formal documents but otherwise is considered archaic.

Archbishops: Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin, or the Most Rev. Joseph L. Bernardin, archbishop of Cincinnati.

Bishops: Bishop Bernard J. Flanagan, or the Most Rev. Bernard J. Flanagan, bishop of Worcester.

Monsignors: Monsignor Joseph E. Vogt. Do not use the abbreviation Mmgr. Do not use the Rt. Rev. or the Very Rev. — this distinction between types of monsignors no longer is made.

Priests: the Rev. John J. Paret.

Use Roman numerals for wars and to establish personal sequence for people and animals: World War I, Native Dancer II, King George V, Pope John XXIII, John Jones III. See the junior, senior entry.

Use Arabic numerals in all other cases. See Arabic numerals and numerals.

In Roman numerals, the capital letter I equals 1, V equals 5, X equals 10, L equals 50, C equals 100, D equals 500 and M equals 1,000. Do not use M to mean million, as some newspapers occasionally do in headlines.

Other numbers are formed from these by adding or subtracting as follows:

—The value of a letter following another of the same or greater value is added: III equals 3.

—The value of a letter preceding one of greater value is subtracted: IV equals 4.

Russian names When a first name in Russian has a close phonetic equivalent in English, use the equivalent in translating the name: Alexander Solzhenitsyn rather than Aleksandr, the spelling that would result from a transliteration of the Russian letter into the English alphabet.

When a first name has no close phonetic equivalent in English, express it with an English spelling that approximates the sound in Russian: Nikita, for example.

For last names, use the English spelling that most closely approximates the pronunciation in Russian.

If an individual has a preference for an English spelling that is different from the one that would result by applying these guidelines, follow the individual's preference.

Women's last names have feminine endings. But use them only if the woman is not married or if she is known under that name (the ballerina Maya Plisetskaya). Otherwise, use the masculine form: Raisa Gorbachev, not Gorbacheva.

Russian names never end in off, except for common mis-transliterations such as Rachmaninoff. Instead, the transliterations should end in ov: Romanov.

The listing of an acceptable term for second reference does not mean that it always must be used after the first reference. Often a generic word such as the agency, the commission or the company is more appropriate and less jarring to the reader. At other times, the full name may need to be repeated for clarity.

Seventh-day Adventist Church The denomination is traceable to the preaching of William Miller of New Hampton, N.Y., a Baptist layman who said his study of the Book of Daniel showed that the end of the world would come in the mid-1840s.

When the prediction did not come true, the Millerites split into smaller groups. One, influenced by visions described by Ellen Harmon, later Mrs. James White, is the precursor of the Seventh-day Adventist practice today.

The church has four constituent levels: 1. Local churches. 2. Local conferences of churches for a state or part of a state. 3. Union conferences of a number of local conferences. 4. The General Conference.

The office of the General Conference, located in Washington, lists U.S. membership at 627,000 and worldwide membership at 5.2 million.

The description adventist is based on the belief that a second coming of Christ is near. Seventh-day derives from the contention that the Bible requires observing the seventh day of the week as the Sabbath.

Baptism, by immersion, is reserved for those old enough to understand its meaning. Baptism and the Lord's Supper are the only sacraments.

Memory Aid: Noah Webster developed the following rule of thumb for the frequently vexing question of whether to double a final consonant in forming the present participle and past tense of a verb:

—If the stress in pronunciation is on the first syllable, do not double the consonant: combat, combating, combated; cancel, canceling, canceled.

—If the stress in pronunciation is on the second syllable, double the consonant unless confusion would result: incur, incurred, incurring. An exception, to avoid confusion with buss, is bus, bused, busing.

tie, tied, tying

tie in (v.) tie-in (n. and adj.)

tie up (v.) tie-up (n. and adj.)

time element Use today, this morning, this afternoon, tonight, etc., as appropriate in stories for afternoon editions. Use the day of the week elsewhere. See the today, tonight and the tomorrow, yesterday entries.

Use Monday, Tuesday, etc., for days of the week within seven days before or after the current date.

Use the month and a figure for dates beyond this range. See months for forms and punctuation.

Avoid such redundancies as last Tuesday or next Tuesday. The past, present or future tense used for the verb usually provides adequate indication of which Tuesday is meant: He said he finished the job Tuesday. She will return on Tuesday.

Avoid awkward placements of the time element, particularly those that suggest the day of the week is the object of a transitive verb: The police jailed Tuesday. Potential remedies include the use of the word on (see the on entry), rephrasing the sentence, or placing the time element in a different sentence.

time of day The exact time of day that an event has happened or will happen is not necessary in most stories. Follow these guidelines to determine when it should be included and in what form:

SPECIFY THE TIME:

—Whenever it gives the reader a better picture of the scene: Did the earthquake occur when people were likely to be home asleep or at work? A clock reading for the time in the datelined community is acceptable although pre-dawn hours or rush hour often is more graphic.

—Whenever the time is critical to the story: When will the rocket be launched? When will a major political address be broadcast? What is the deadline for meeting a demand?

DECIDING ON CLOCK TIME:

When giving a clock reading, use the time in the datelined community.

If the story is undated, use the clock time in force where the event happened or will take place.

The only exception is a nationwide story or tabular listing that involves television or radio programs. Always use Eastern time, followed by EDT or EST, and specify whether the program will be broadcast simultaneously nationwide or whether times will vary because of separate transmissions for different time zones. If practical, specify those times in a separate paragraph.

ZONE ABBREVIATIONS: Use EST, CDT, PST, etc., after a clock time only if:

—The story involves travel or other activities, such as the closing hour for polling places or the time of a televised speech, likely to affect people or developments in more than one time zone.

—The item involves television or radio programs. (See above.)

—The item is undated.

—The item is an advisory to editors.

CONVERT TO EASTERN TIME? Do not convert clock times from other time zones in the continental United States to Eastern time. If there is high interest in the precise time, add CDT, PST, etc., to the local reading to help readers determine their equivalent local time.

If the time is critical in a story from outside the continental United States, provide a conversion to Eastern time using this form:

The kidnappers set a 9 a.m. (3 a.m. EDT) deadline.

See time zones for additional guidance on forms.

times Use figures except for noon and midnight. Use a colon to separate hours from minutes: 11 a.m., 1 p.m., 3:30 p.m.

Avoid such redundancies as 10 a.m. this morning, 10 p.m. tonight or 10 p.m. Monday night. Use 10 a.m. today, 10 p.m. today or 10 p.m. Monday, etc., as required by the norms in time element.

The construction 4 o'clock is acceptable, but time listings with a.m. or p.m. are preferred.

See midnight, noon and time zones.

time sequences Use figures, colons and periods as follows: 2:30:21.65 (hours, minutes, seconds, tenths, hundredths).

Time Warner Inc. See AOL

Time Warner Inc.

time zones Capitalize the full name of the time in force within a particular zone: Eastern Standard Time, Eastern Daylight Time, Central Standard Time, etc.

Lowercase all but the region in short forms: the Eastern time zone, Eastern time, Mountain time, etc.

See time of day for guidelines on when to use clock time in a story.

Spell out time zone in references not accompanied by a clock reading: Chicago is in the Central time zone.

The abbreviations EST, CDT, etc., are acceptable on first reference for zones used within the continental United States, Canada and Mexico only if the abbreviation is linked with a clock reading: noon EST, 9 a.m. PST. (Do not set off the abbreviations with commas.)

Spell out all references to time zones not used within the contiguous United States: When it is noon EDT, it is 1 p.m. Atlantic Standard Time and 8 a.m. Alaska Standard Time.

One exception to the spelled-out form: Greenwich Mean Time may be abbreviated as GMT on second reference if used with a clock reading.

titles In general, confine capitalization to formal titles used directly before an individual's name.

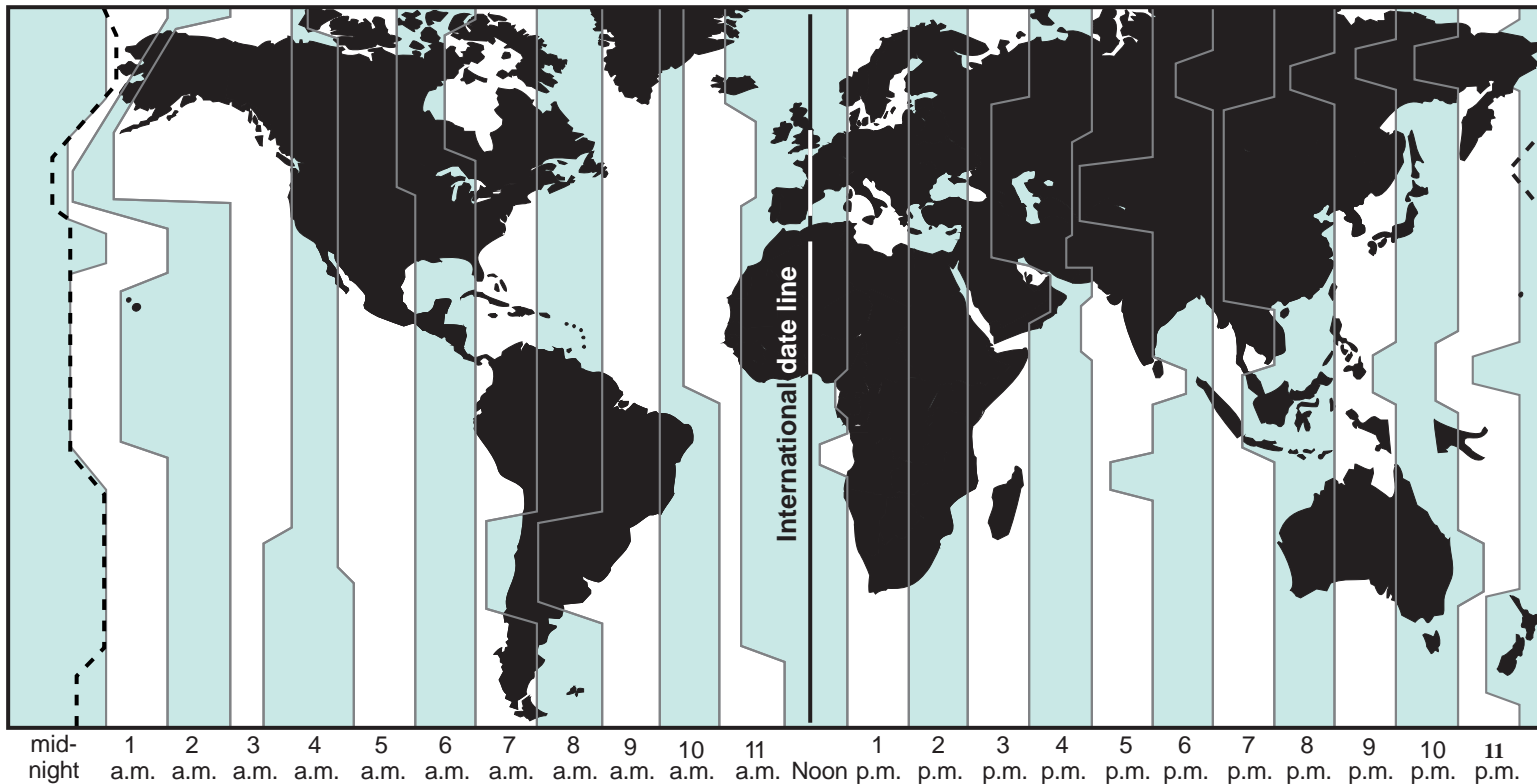

The basic guidelines:

LOWERCASE: Lowercase and spell out titles when they are not

International Time Zones

used with an individual's name:
The president issued a statement.
The pope gave his blessing.

Lowercase and spell out titles in constructions that set them off from a name by commas: The vice president, Nelson Rockefeller, declined to run again. Paul VI, the current pope, does not plan to retire.

COURTESY TITLES: See the courtesy titles entry for guidelines on when to use Miss, Mr., Mrs., Ms. or no titles.

The forms Mr., Mrs., Miss and Ms. apply both in regular text and in quotations.

FORMAL TITLES: Capitalize formal titles when they are used immediately before one or more names: Pope Paul, President Washington, Vice Presidents John Jones and William Smith.

A formal title generally is one that denotes a scope of authority, professional activity or academic accomplishment so specific that the designation becomes almost as much an integral part of an individual's identity as a proper name itself: President Clinton, Sen. Dianne Feinstein, Dr. Marcus Welby, Pvt. Gomer Pyle.

Other titles serve primarily as occupational descriptions: astronaut John Glenn, movie star John Wayne, peanut farmer Jimmy Carter.

A final determination on whether a title is formal or occupational depends on the practice of the governmental or private organization that confers it. If there is doubt about the status of a title and the practice of the organization cannot be determined, use a construction that sets the name or the title off with commas.

ABBREVIATED TITLES: The following formal titles are capitalized and abbreviated as shown when used before a name outside quotations: Dr., Gov., Lt. Gov., Rep., Sen. and certain military ranks listed in the military titles entry. Spell out all except Dr. when they are used in quotations.

All other formal titles are spelled out in all uses.

ROYAL TITLES: Capitalize king, queen, etc., when used directly before a name. See individual entries and nobility.

TITLES OF NOBILITY: Capitalize a full title when it serves as the alternate name for an individual. See nobility.

PAST AND FUTURE TITLES: A formal title that an individual formerly held, is about to hold or holds temporarily is capitalized if used before the person's name. But do not capitalize the qualifying word: former President Ford, deposed King Constantine, Attorney General-designate Griffin B. Bell, acting Mayor Peter Barry.

LONG TITLES: Separate a long title from a name by a construction that requires a comma: Charles Robinson, undersecretary for economic affairs, spoke. Or: The undersecretary for economic affairs, Charles Robinson, spoke.

UNIQUE TITLES: If a title applies only to one person in an organization, insert the word the in a construction that uses commas: John Jones, the deputy vice president, spoke.

ADDITIONAL GUIDANCE: Many commonly used titles and occupational descriptions are listed separately in this book, together with guidelines on whether and/or when they are capitalized. In these entries, the phrases before a name or immediately before a name are used to specify that capitalization applies only when a title is not set off from a name by commas.

degree-day A unit of measurement describing how much the temperature differs from a standard average for one day. It is usually used to gauge the amount of heating or cooling needed for a building. If the standard average temperature for a day is 65 degrees, then a temperature of 10 below zero for 24 hours yields 75 degree-days.

flash flood A sudden, violent flood. It typically occurs after a heavy rain or the melting of a heavy snow.

flash flood warning Warns that flash flooding is imminent or in progress. Those in the affected area should take necessary precautions immediately.

flash flood watch Alerts the public that flash flooding is possible. Those in the affected area are urged to be ready to take additional precautions if a flash flood warning is issued or if flooding is observed.

flood Stories about floods usually tell how high the water is and where it is expected to crest. Such a story should also, for comparison, list flood stage and how high the water is above, or below, flood stage.

Wrong: The river is expected to crest at 39 feet.

freeze Describes conditions when the temperature at or near the surface is expected to be below 32 degrees during the growing season. Adjectives such as severe or hard are used if a cold spell exceeding two days is expected.

A freeze may or may not be accompanied by the formation of frost. However, use of the term freeze usually is restricted for occasions when wind or other conditions prevent frost.

freezing drizzle, freezing rain Synonyms for ice storm.

frost Describes the formation of very small ice crystals, which might develop under conditions similar to dew except for the minimum temperatures involved. Phrases such as frost in low places or scattered light frost are used when appropriate. The term frost seldom appears in state forecasts unless rather heavy frost is expected over an extensive area.

b. A fall accumulating to 6 inches or more in depth in 24 hours.

high wind Normally indicates that sustained winds of 39 mph or greater are expected to persist for one hour or longer.

hurricane or typhoon A warm-core tropical cyclone in which the minimum sustained surface wind is 74 mph or more.

Hurricanes are spawned east of the international date line. Typhoons develop west of the line. They are known as cyclones in the Indian Ocean.

When a hurricane or typhoon loses strength (wind speed), usually after landfall, it is reduced to tropical storm status.

hurricane categories Hurricanes are ranked 1 to 5 according to what is known as the Saffir-Simpson scale of strength:

Category 1 — Hurricane has central barometric pressure of 28.94 inches or more and winds of 74 to 95 mph, is accompanied by a 4-5 foot storm surge and causes minimal damage.

Category 2 — Pressure 28.50 to 28.93 inches, winds from 96 to 110 mph, storm surge 6-8 feet, damage moderate.

Category 3 — Pressure 27.91 to 28.49 inches, winds from 111 to 130 mph, storm surge 9-12 feet, damage extensive.

Category 4 — Pressure 27.17 to 27.90 inches, winds from 131 to 155 mph, storm surge 13-18 feet, damage extreme.

Category 5 — Pressure less than 27.17 inches, winds greater than 155 mph, storm surge higher than 18 feet, damage catastrophic.

Only two Category 5 storms have hit the United States since record-keeping began: the 1935 Labor Day hurricane that hit the Florida Keys and killed 600 people and Hurricane Camille, which devastated the Mississippi coast in 1969, killing 256 and leaving $1.4 billion damage.

hurricane eye The relatively calm area in the center of the storm. In this area winds are light and the sky often is covered only partly by clouds.

hurricane season The portion of the year that has a relatively high incidence of hurricanes. In the Atlantic, Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico, this is from June through November. In the eastern Pacific, it is May 15 through Nov. 30. In the central Pacific, it is June 1 through Nov. 30.

hurricane tide Same as storm tide.

hurricane warning Warns that one or both of these dangerous effects of a hurricane are expected in specified areas in 24 hours or less:

- a. Sustained winds of 74 mph (64 knots) or higher, and/or
- b. Dangerously high water or a combination of dangerously high water and exceptionally high waves, even though winds expected may be less than hurricane force.

hurricane watch An announcement for specific areas that a hurricane or incipient hurricane conditions may pose a threat to coastal and inland communities.

ice storm, freezing drizzle, freezing rain Describes the freezing of drizzle or rain on objects as it strikes them. Freezing drizzle and freezing rain are synonyms for ice storm.

ice storm warning Reserved for occasions when significant, and possibly damaging, accumulations of ice are expected.

National Hurricane Center

The National Weather Service's National Hurricane Center in Miami has overall responsibility for tracking and providing information about tropical depressions, tropical storms and hurricanes in the Atlantic Ocean, Gulf of Mexico, Caribbean Sea and eastern Pacific Ocean.

The service's Central Pacific Hurricane Center in Honolulu is responsible for hurricane information in the Pacific Ocean area north of the equator from 140 degrees west longitude to 180 degrees.

nearshore waters The waters extended to five miles from shore.

sandstorm Visibility of one-half mile or less due to sand blown by winds of 30 mph or more.

severe blizzard Wind speeds of 45 mph or more, great density of falling and/or blowing snow with visibility frequently near zero and a temperature of 10 degrees or lower.

severe thunderstorm Describes either of the following:

- a. Winds — Thunderstorm-related surface winds sustained or gusts 50 knots or greater.
- b. Hail — Surface hail three-quarters of an inch in diameter or larger. The word hail in a watch implies hail at the surface and aloft unless qualifying phrases such as hail aloft are used.

sleet (one form of ice pellet)

Describes generally solid grains of ice formed by the freezing of raindrops or the refreezing of largely melted snowflakes. Sleet, like small hail, usually bounces when hitting a hard surface.

sleet (heavy)

Heavy sleet is a fairly rare event in which the ground is covered to a depth of significance to motorists and others.

snow avalanche bulletin

Snow avalanche bulletins are issued by the U.S. Forest Service for avalanche-prone areas in the western United States.

squall

A sudden increase of wind speed by at least 16 knots and rising to 25 knots or more and lasting for at least one minute.

stockmen's advisory

Alerts the public that livestock may require protection because of certain combinations of cold, wet and windy weather, specifically cold rain and/or snow with temperatures 45 degrees or lower and winds of 25 mph or higher. If the temperature is in the mid-30s or lower, the wind speed criterion is lowered to about 15 mph.

storm tide

Directional wave(s) caused by a severe atmospheric disturbance.

temperature-humidity index

The temperature-humidity index indicates the combined effect of heat and air moisture on human comfort. A reading of 70 or below indicates no discomfort. A reading of 75 would indicate discomfort in half the population and all would feel uncomfortable with a reading of 79. The National Weather Service issues the THI between June 15 and Sept. 15.

tidal wave

A term often used incorrectly for seismic sea wave. These waves are caused by underwater earthquakes, landslides or volcanoes and are sometimes referred to as great sea waves. Scientists call them tsunamis, a term that is not widely used and should be explained if used.

Alerts the public that difficult traveling or hazardous road conditions are expected to be widespread.

tropical depression

A tropical cyclone in which the maximum sustained surface wind is 38 mph (33 knots) or less.

tropical storm

A warm-core tropical cyclone in which the maximum sustained surface winds range from 39 to 73 mph (34 to 63 knots) inclusive.

typhoon See hurricane or typhoon in this listing.

waterspout A tornado over water.

wind chill index Also known as the wind chill factor. No hyphen.

The wind chill is a calculation that describes the combined effect of the wind and cold temperatures on exposed skin. The wind chill index would be minus 22, for example, if the temperature was 15 degrees and the wind was blowing at 25 mph — in other words, a temperature of 22 below zero with no wind.

The higher the wind at a given temperature, the lower the wind chill reading, although wind speeds above 40 mph have little additional cooling effect.

wind shear It is caused when a mass of cooled air rushes downward out of a thunderstorm in what is called a microburst, hits the ground and rushes outward in all directions. Wind shear itself is described as a sudden shift in wind direction and speed. A plane flying through a microburst at low altitude, as on final approach or takeoff, would at first experi-

-wise No hyphen when it means in the direction of or with regard to. Some examples:

Avoid contrived combinations such as moneywise, religionwise.

is a compound adjective in which wise means smart, not an application of the suffix -wise. The same for street-wise in the street-wise youth (an exception to Webster's).

Woman's Christian Temperance Union Not women's. WCTU is acceptable on second reference.

women Women should receive the same treatment as men in all areas of coverage. Physical descriptions, sexist references, demeaning stereotypes and condescending phrases should not be used.

To cite some examples, this means that:

—Copy should not assume maleness when both sexes are involved, as in Jackson told newsmen or in the taxpayer ... he when it easily can be said Jackson told reporters or taxpayers ... they.

—Copy should not express surprise that an attractive woman can be professionally accomplished, as in: Mary Smith doesn't look the part, but she's an authority on ...

—Copy should not gratuitously mention family relationships when there is no relevance to the subject, as in: Golda Meir, a doughty grandmother, told the Egyptians today ...

—Use the same standards for men and women in deciding whether to include specific mention of personal appearance or marital and family situation.

In other words, treatment of the sexes should be evenhanded and free of assumptions and stereotypes. This does not mean that valid and acceptable words such as mankind or humanity cannot be used. They are proper.

See courtesy titles; divorcee; the man, mankind entry; and -persons.

Women's Army Corps See the Wac, WAC entry.

Woolworth's See Venator Group.

words as words The meaning of this phrase, which appears occasionally in this book and similar manuals that deal with words, is best illustrated by an example: In this sentence, woman appears solely as a word rather than as the means of representing the concept normally associated with the word.

When italics are available, a word used as a word should be italicized.

Italics are not available to highlight this type of word use on the news wires. When a news story must use a word as a word, place quotation marks around it.

See plurals.

word selection In general, any word with a meaning that universally is understood is acceptable unless it is offensive or below the normal standards for literate writing.

This Stylebook lists many words with cautionary notes about how they should be used. The entries in Webster's New World Dictionary provide cautionary notes, comparisons and usage guidelines to help a writer choose the correct word for a particular context.

Any word listed in Webster's New World may be used for the definitions given unless this Stylebook restricts its use to only some definitions recorded by the dictionary or specifies that the word be confined to certain contexts.

If the dictionary cautions that a particular usage is objected to by some linguists or is not accepted widely, be wary of the usage unless there is a reason in the context.

The dictionary provides guidance on many idiomatic expressions under the principal word in the expression. The definition and spelling of underway, for example, are found in the "way" entry.

If it is necessary to use an archaic word or an archaic sense of a word, explain the meaning.

Additional guidance on the acceptability of a word is provided in this book under:

Americanism	jargon
colloquialisms	special contexts
dialect	vernacular
foreign words

SPORTS GUIDELINES AND STYLE

In 1983, all sports entries were moved into one section, making the use of the information more convenient.

Perhaps it is also an indication of how the coverage of sports continues to grow and how important it is to the overall news report.

Sports is entertainment. It is big business. It is news that extends beyond games, winners and losers.

It is also statistics — agate.

Writing about sports requires a broad understanding of law and economics and psychology and sociology and mores.

As the appetite grows, so too does the need for writing with style and consistency.

The constant is the need to write with clarity and accuracy.

Good sports writing depends on the same writing and reporting tools as any other story.

A stylebook, a sports section of a stylebook, is an aid in reaching that goal.

basic summary This format for summarizing sports events lists winners in the order of their finish. The figure showing the place finish is followed by an athlete's full name, his affiliation or hometown, and his time, distance, points, or whatever performance factor is applicable to the sport.

If a contest involves several types of events, the paragraph begins with the name of the event.

A typical example:

60-yard dash — 1, Steve Williams, Florida TC,

6.0. 2, Hasley Crawford, Philadelphia Pioneer, 6.1.

3, Mike McFarland, Chicago TC, 6.2. 4, etc.

100 — 1, Steve Williams, Florida TC, 10.1. 2, etc.

Additional examples are provided in the entries for many of the sports that are reported in this format.

Most basic summaries are a single paragraph per event, as shown. In some competitions with large fields, however, the basic summary is supplied under a dateline with each winner listed in a single paragraph. See the auto racing and bowling entries for examples.

For international events in which U.S. or Canadian competitors are not among the leaders, add them in a separate paragraph as follows:

Also: 14, Dick Green, New York, 6.8. 17,

George Bensen, Canada, 6.9. 19, etc.

In events where points, rather than time or distance, are recorded as performances, mention the word points on the first usage only:

1. Jim Benson, Springfield, N.J., 150 points. 2.

Jerry Green, Canada, 149. 3. etc.

In listing the players, begin with the five starters — two forwards, center, two guards — and follow with all substitutes who played.

Figures after each player's last name denote field goals, free throws, free throws attempted and total points.

swimming Scoring is in minutes, if appropriate, seconds and tenths of a second. Extend to hundredths if available.

Most events are measured in metric units.

Identify events as men's 440-meter relay, women's 100-meter backstroke, etc., on first reference. Condense to men's 440 relay, women's 100 backstroke on second reference.

See the track and field entry for the style on relay teams and events where a record is broken.

Use a basic summary. Examples, where qualifying heats are required:

Men's 200-meter Backstroke Heats (fastest eight qualify for final Saturday night) heat 1 — 1, John Naber, USC, 2:03.25; 2, Zoltan Verraszlo, Hungary, 2:03.50; 3, Etc.

For diving events, adapt the skating, figure entry.

tennis The scoring units are points, games, sets and matches.

A player wins a point if his opponent fails to return the ball, hits it into the net or hits it out of bounds. A player also wins a point if his opponent is serving and fails to put the ball into play after two attempts (double faults, in tennis terms).

A player must win four points to win a game. In tennis scoring, both players begin at love, or zero, and advance to 15, 30, 40 and game. (The numbers 15, 30 and 40 have no point value as such — they are simply tennis terminology for 1 point, 2 points and 3 points.) The server's score always is called out first. If a game is tied at 40-all, or deuce, play continues until one player has a two-point margin.

A set is won if a player wins six games before his opponent has won five. If a set becomes tied at five games apiece, it goes to the first player to win seven games. If two players who were tied at five games apiece also tie at six games apiece, they normally play a tiebreaker — a game that goes to the first player to win seven points. In some cases, however, the rules call for a player to win by two games.

A match may be either a best-of-three contest that goes to the first player or team to win two sets, or a best-of-five contest that goes to the first player or team to win three sets.

Set scores would be reported this way: Chris Evert Lloyd defeated Sue Barker 6-0, 3-6, 6-4. Indicate tiebreakers in parentheses after the set score: 7-6, (11-9).

SUMMARIES: Winners always are listed first in agate summaries. An example:

Men's Singles First Round

Jimmy Connors, Belleville, Ill., def. Manuel Orantes, Spain, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-1.

Bjorn Borg, Sweden, def. Jim Green, New York (default).

Arthur Ashe, New York, def. James Peters, Chicago, 6-3, 4-3 (retired).

track and field Scoring is in distance or time, depending on the event.

Most events are measured in metric units. For those meets that include feet, make sure the measurement is clearly stated, as in men's 100-meter dash, women's 880-yard run, etc.

For time events, spell out minutes and seconds on first reference, as in 3 minutes, 26.1 seconds. Subsequent times in stories and all times in agate require a colon and decimal point: 3:34.4. For a marathon, it would be 2 hours, 11 minutes, 5.01 seconds on first reference then the form 2:12:4.06 for later listings.

Do not use a colon before times given only in seconds and tenths of a second. Use progressions such as 6.0 seconds, 9.4, 10.1, etc. Extend times to hundredths, if available: 9.45.

In running events, the first event should be spelled out, as in men's 100-meter dash. Later references can be condensed to phrases such as the 200, the 400, etc.

For hurdle and relay events, the progression can be: 100-meter hurdles, 200 hurdles, etc.

For field events — those that do not involve running — use these forms: 26 1/2 for 26 feet, one-half inch; 25-10 1/2 for 25 feet, 10 1/2 inches, etc.

In general, use a basic summary. For the style when a record is broken, note the mile event in the example below. For the style in listing relay teams, note 1,000-meter relay.

60-yard dash — 1, Steve Williams, Florida TC, 6.0 2, Hasley Crawford, Philadelphia Pioneer, 6.2 3, Mike McFarland, Chicago TC. 6.2 3. Etc.

100 — 1, Steve Williams, Florida TC 10.1. 2. Etc.

Mile — 1, Filbert Bayi, Tanzania, 3:55.1, meet record, old record 3:59, Jim Beatty, Los Angeles TC. Feb. 27, 1963; 2. Paul Cummings, Beverly Hills TC. 3:56.1; 3, Etc.

Women's 880 — 1, Johanna Forman, Falmouth TC. 2:07.9. 2. Etc.

1,600-meter relay — 1, St. John's, Jon Kennedy, Doug Johnson, Gary Gordon, Ordner Emanuel, 3:21.9. 2. Brown, 3:23.5. 3. Fordham, 3:24.1. 4. Etc.

BUSINESS GUIDELINES AND STYLE

This section of the Stylebook is designed to help AP reporters cover business and economic news accurately and clearly.

It includes an explanation of how to write one of the most common business stories, the quarterly earnings report issued by all publicly held corporations. And there are alphabetical definitions of business and economic terms and jargon.

A word of caution.

As with any specialty, technical terms and economic argot permeate the business world. Avoid jargon. Define technical terms. Do not assume your reader knows their meaning. Stories about corporations, business executives and economic trends increasingly are spreading beyond the business pages. We must cover these stories so they can be understood by the general public.

Covering Corporate Earnings Reports

Federal law requires all corporations whose stock is publicly traded to report revenues and profits or losses each three months in an income statement. This is what business is all about, whether a corporation made money or lost it, and why. These statements are usually released on the major public relations wire services, PR Newswire or Business Wire, during an earnings “season,” a three- or four-week period that begins roughly two weeks after the end of each quarter.

Each of these stories should include certain basic information.

The lead should tell the reader what the company does, if it is not a household word, and should give the increase or decline of profits, either in percentage or absolute terms, along with the reason. Profits are synonymous with income and earnings.

The story should also include the company’s revenues, which is sometimes called sales.

Comparisons of profits or losses and revenues/sales should be made with the same period a year earlier. For example, the third quarter of this year compared to the third quarter of last year. This reduces seasonable variations that affect many businesses.

Another important figure to include is earnings-per-share, which is simply the profit divided by the number of shares of stock outstanding. Company statements often express this figure as “primary” or “basic” and “fully diluted.” AP uses “fully diluted” as a more meaningful figure. Earnings per share is used by analysts to compare companies.

Finally, include the year-to-date figures for all of the above. The only quarter when this isn't done is the first quarter.

Include comments on the corporation's performance from the chief executive or outside analysts, and any background that puts the performance in perspective.

Note: AP has traditionally focused such stories on “net” earnings, which are the profits left over after all expenses have been paid. But in recent years, Wall Street analysts have been much more concerned with operating earnings, which are net earnings excluding one-time “extraordinary” gains or charges which distract from the performance of the core business.

Operating earnings may exclude the costs of a big reorganization, such as severance payments to laid-off workers or penalties for breaking leases on factories that are closed. They also exclude things like taxes and interest.

Operating earnings per share is a key measure for Wall Street securities analysts.

Here's why, weeks before the earnings reports, analysts issue predictions for this figure, and these predictions are compiled into a “consensus” figure by research companies such as First Call/Thompson Financial.

On the day of the report, investors compare the consensus prediction for operating earnings per share with the actual number and the stock price often moves up or down based on whether the company meets, fails to meet or exceeds expectations.

When AP says in a story “Company X's performance beat Wall Street analysts' predictions,” this is the number we're referring to.

Caution: Before you report on a company's earnings expectations, confirm both the consensus prediction for operating earnings per share and actual operating earnings per share with an analyst. That's because the operating earnings per share is not a precise accounting term and can vary from company to company.

If a company has no extraordinary events, operating earnings and net earnings can be identical.

“Operating earnings” is sometimes confused with “earnings from continuing operations.”

Continuing operations is a subset of operations. It refers to business units that existed in the past and will exist in the future.

It excludes “discontinued operations” which represent businesses that have been sold or shut down in the past year. Companies often downplay earnings of these operations since they are no longer relevant to future profits.

If extraordinary charges or gains weigh so heavily on the results that using net earnings in the lead would ignore the news, you do not have to do so. In this case, operating earnings will be the more important number and may be used in the lead.

Not good:

XYZ Data Co.'s net profits grew 864 percent in the fourth quarter due largely to the costs of its purchase a year ago of the International Widget Co.

Excluding the acquisition costs, XYZ earnings rose a modest 8 percent.

Better:

XYZ Data Co.'s profits rose a modest 8 percent in the fourth quarter, excluding a big corporate acquisition a year ago, thanks to a boost in sales of its new line of handheld computers.

The company earned $100 million, or 10 cents per share, compared to $92.5 million, or 8 cents a share, a year ago, excluding the cost of the November 1997 purchase of International Widget Co. When the purchase costs are added, XYZ's net income for the fourth quarter of 1997 was just $10.37 million.

The most immediate reaction to a financial report is the movement of the company's stock. This should be included in our earnings stories.

Major factors that influence a stock price:

1. Did the company meet, exceed or miss analyst predictions?
2. Did the shares rise or fall sharply in the days before the report in anticipation of factor No. 1? If so, they could go in the opposite direction after the report comes out. (Remember, many investors buy on the rumor, sell on the news.)
3. Did the company issue a statement predicting future profits? Losses?

INTERNATIONAL BUREAUS

Currency Conversions

International writers should report results in domestic currencies first, then give U.S. dollars for current period results only. There's no need to covert last year's results to dollars.

If the company doesn't give its own conversion to dollars, you'll have to do it. You should use the foreign exchange rate on the last day of the quarter, not today's exchange rate.

Different Accounting Rules

In some countries, companies don't report every quarter. The reports may come out every six months or even annually. Many foreign companies don't report "net earnings" or "earnings per share." Some report "earnings before taxes." If that's all they report, call them to see if they will give you net earnings. If they won't, use whatever number seems closest.

Foreign companies that sell shares in the United States (called American depository receipts) often issue a separate earnings statement using American accounting standards. Use this when you can.

Here's a concise example of an earnings story that doesn't include any one-time factors, followed by one that does.

Wal-Mart's quarterly profits up 23 percent, but fears of slowdown hurt stock

By RACHEL BECK
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Wal-Mart Stores Inc.'s fourth-quarter profits rose 23 percent from a year ago, fueled by strong sales growth at its U.S. superstores and operations abroad.

While the results reported Tuesday by the world's largest retailer were slightly above expectations, its stock fell about 3 percent on concerns that its growth may slow in the coming year.

Wal-Mart earned $1.92 billion, or 43 cents a share, for the quarter ended Jan. 31, compared with $1.56 billion, or 35 cents a share, a year ago. That's above the 42 cents a share that analysts had forecast.

Quarterly sales totaled $51.39 billion, an increase of 26 percent over the $40.79 billion in the same period a year ago. Sales at stores open at least a year, an industry gauge of performance, rose 6.3 percent.

Sales at its Wal-Mart stores rose 12.6 percent in the quarter, boosted by gains at its Supercenters, which combine discount and grocery stores. Sales at its Sam's Club warehouse stores increased 7.4 percent.

International sales gained about 164 percent, fueled by strength in its Mexican, Canadian, British and Puerto Rican divisions.

During the quarter, Wal-Mart named Lee Scott as president and chief executive officer, replacing David Glass who will remain at the company for a year as chairman of the executive committee of the board of directors.

Scott, who was Wal-Mart's chief operating officer and vice chairman, had been tapped about a year ago to succeed Glass.

The company also took some significant steps during the quarter to beef up its Internet operations.

In December, Wal-Mart teamed up with America Online Inc. to create an Internet service provider (ISP) and offer discounted Web access to people who currently may not have an affordable phone hookup in towns near its 2,500 stores. The name and price of the ISP have not yet been released.

In January, the company relaunched www.Walmart.com, which now stocks more than 600,000 items and offers services, such as travel reservations. It also formed a new Internet company with venture-capital firm Accel Partners, which will work to enhance the giant retailer's Web site.

While Wal-Mart continues to outpace most of its rivals with its sharp growth, there were fears that its pace may slow in the coming year.

The Federal Reserve boosted interest rates four times in the last year to fend off inflationary pressures — and may raise rates further. That has raised concerns that consumer spending may slow in the coming months.

"That's the real issue affecting all retailers right now," said Jeffrey Feiner, a retail analyst at Lehman Brothers Inc.

Wal-Mart also said that it will continue aggressively cutting prices, which the company calls "rollbacks." But such promotions will be more difficult in the coming year because of high raw material prices, increased labor costs and strengthening of Asian currencies.

The “rollbacks” have been one of Wal-Mart’s key marketing strategies to woo shoppers into its stores.

Wal-Mart’s shares fell 68 3/4 cents to $57.18 3/4 in trading at 4:30 p.m. on the New York Stock Exchange. The Bentonville, Ark.-based retailer’s stock was down as low as $55 in early trading.

For the year, Wal-Mart earned $5.58 billion, or $1.25 a share, compared to $4.43 billion, or 99 cents a share, in 1998. Sales for the year were $165 billion, an increase of 20 percent over the previous year.

Here’s an earnings story that includes significant one-time events.

Lilly earnings soar despite tumbling Prozac sales

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Eli Lilly’s fourth-quarter profit rose 20 percent as declining sales of the antidepressant Prozac were offset by stronger demand for the company’s osteoporosis and antipsychotic drugs.

Excluding one time gains and losses, the Indianapolis-based drug firm’s operating income rose to $671.7 million, or 61 cents per share, up from $567.3 million or 51 cents per share a year ago.

Results matched Wall Street estimates, according to First Call/Thomson Financial.

Including one-time events, such as wholesalers who stocked up on drugs due to Y2K concerns, Lilly earned $786.3 million or 71 cents per share.

Sales rose 7 percent to $2.82 billion from $2.64 billion. Prozac sales dropped 13 percent to $645.2 million.

Prozac has been the nation’s top selling antidepressant for the past decade. But sales have fallen recently due to new competitors.

Helping offset the decline in Prozac was the antipsychotic drug Zyprexa, which saw a sales increase of 36 percent to $587.7 million.

Sales of Evista, an osteoporosis drug, jumped 39 percent to $112.1 million.

For all of 1999, excluding one-time events, Lilly’s net income rose 16 percent to $2.52 billion, or $2.28 per share, up from $2.1 billion, or $1.87 per share, in 1998. Sales rose 8 percent to $10.0 billion, up from $9.24 billion.

Shares of Lilly rose $1.50 to $64.25 in trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

balance sheet A listing of assets, liabilities and net worth showing the financial position of a company at the specific time. A bank balance sheet is generally referred to as a statement of condition.

balloon mortgage A mortgage whose amortization schedule will not extinguish the debt by the end of the mortgage term, leaving a large payment (called balloon payment) of the remaining principal balance to be paid at that time.

bankruptcy An individual or organization, acting voluntarily or by court order, liquidates its assets and distributes the proceeds to creditors.

Various filings under U.S. Bankruptcy Code:

Chapter 7 — Sometimes referred to as straight bankruptcy, this filing usually leads to liquidation of a company. A company in Chapter 7 proceedings is able to continue to operate under the direction of a court trustee until the matter is settled. If the company can resolve its problems and settle with creditors in the interim, it may not have to be liquidated.

Chapter 11 — The most common form of bankruptcy, this action frees a company from the threat of creditors' lawsuits while it reorganizes its finances. The debtor's reorganization plan must be accepted by a majority of its creditors. Unless the court rules otherwise, the debtor remains in control of the business and its assets.

Chapter 12 — This is an extension of Chapter 11, designed to help debt-burdened family farms. It allows family farmers to operate under bankruptcy court protection while paying off creditors.

Chapter 13 — Called the "wage earner" bankruptcy, this is available to individuals who promise to repay as many creditors as possible from available income.

basis point The movement of interest rates or yields expressed in hundredths of a percent.

bear market A period of generally declining stock prices.

bearer bond A bond for which the owner's name is not registered on the books of the issuing company. Interest and principal is thus payable to the bond holder.

bearer stock Stock certificates that are not registered in any name. They are negotiable without endorsement and transferable by delivery.

Big Board Acceptable on second reference for the New York Stock Exchange.

blue chip stock Stock company known for its long-established record of making money and paying dividends.

bond ratings Grades assigned by credit-rating agencies to corporate and municipal debt securities, based on the borrower's expected ability to repay. The higher the grade, the lower the interest rate a borrower must pay.

The two major Wall Street credit rating firms are Moody's Investors Service Inc. and Standard & Poor's bond ratings. Both issue a variety of grades. Standard & Poor's bond ratings, for example, include 10 basic grades: in order, AAA, AA, A and BBB, given to borrowers with the strongest ability to repay; BB, B, CCC, CC and C, for more speculative securities, and D, for securities that are in payment default.

The book value per share of common stock is the book value divided by the number of common shares outstanding.

brand names When they are used, capitalize them.

Brand names normally should be used only if they are essential to a story.

Sometimes, however, the use of a brand name may not be essential but is acceptable because it lends an air of reality to a story: He fished a Camel from his shirt pocket may be preferable to the less specific cigarette.

Brand name is a non-legal term for service mark or trade-mark. See entries under those words in the main section.

bull market A period of generally increasing market prices.

bullion Unminted precious metals of standards suitable for coining.

hedging A method of selling for future delivery whereby a dealer protects himself from falling prices between the time he buys a product and the time he resells or processes it. A miller, for example, who buys wheat to convert to flour, will sell a similar quantity of wheat he doesn't own at near the price at which he bought his own. He will agree to deliver it at the same time his flour is ready for market. If at that time the price of wheat and therefore flour has fallen, he will lose on the flour but can buy the wheat at a low price and deliver it at a profit. If prices have risen, he will make an extra profit on his flour which he will have to sacrifice to buy the wheat for delivery. But either way he has protected his profit.

default A person, corporation or government is in default if it fails to meet the terms for repayment.

full faith and credit bond An alternate term for general obligation bond, often used to contrast such a bond with a moral obligation bond.

general obligation bond A bond that has had the formal approval of either the voters or their legislature. The government's promise to repay the principal and pay the interest is constitutionally guaranteed on the strength of its ability to tax the population.

note A certificate issued by a corporation or government stating the amount of a loan, the interest to be paid and the collateral pledged in the event payment cannot be made. The date for repayment is generally more than a year after issue but not more than seven or eight years later. The shorter interval for repayment is the principal difference between a note and a bond.

revenue bond A bond backed only by the revenue of the airport, turnpike or other facility that was built with the money it raised.

Treasury borrowing A Treasury bill is a certificate representing a loan to the federal government that matures in three, six or 12 months. A Treasury note may mature in one to 10 years or more. A Treasury bond matures in seven years or more.

The margin is the difference between the amount of the loan and the value of the securities used as collateral.

ness loans. Banks set the rate based on their borrowing costs, as reflected by the interest on short-term Treasury securities in the bond market.

profit-taking (n. and adj.) Avoid this term. It means selling a security after a recent rapid rise in price. It is inaccurate if the seller bought the security at a higher price, watched it fall, then sold it after a recent rise but for less than he bought it. In that case, he would be cutting his losses, not taking his profit.

profit terminology Note the meanings of the following terms in reporting a company's financial status. Always be careful to specify whether the figures given apply to quarterly or annual results.

The terms, listed in the order in which they might occur in analyzing a company's financial condition:

revenue The amount of money a company took in, including interest earned and receipts from sales, services provided, rents and royalties.

The figure also may include excise taxes and sales taxes collected for the government. If it does, the fact should be noted in any report on revenue.

sales The money a company received for the goods and services it sold.

In some cases the figure includes receipts from rents and royalties. In others, particularly when rentals and royalties make up a large portion of a company's income, figures for these activities are listed separately.

gross profit The difference between the sales price of an item or service and the expenses directly attributed to it, such as the cost of raw materials, labor and overhead linked to the production effort.

income before taxes Gross profits minus companywide expenses not directly attributed to specific products or services. These expenses typically include interest costs, advertising and sales costs, and general administrative overhead.

net income, profit, earnings The amount left after taxes have been paid.

A portion may be committed to pay preferred dividends. Some of what remains may be paid in dividends to holders of common stocks. The rest may be invested to obtain interest revenue or spent to acquire new buildings or equipment to increase the company's ability to make further profits.

To avoid confusion, do not use the word income alone — always specify whether the figure is income before taxes or net income.

The terms profit and earnings commonly are interpreted as meaning the amount left after taxes. The terms net profit and net earnings are acceptable synonyms.

earnings per share (or loss per share), for companies posting a net loss) The figure obtained by dividing the number of outstanding shares of common stock into the amount left after dividends have been paid on any preferred stock.

dividend The amount paid per share per year to holders of common stock. Payments generally are made in quarterly installments.

The dividend usually is a portion of the earnings per share. However, if a company shows no profit during a given period, it may be able to use earnings retained from profitable periods to pay its dividend on schedule.

return on investment A percentage figure obtained by dividing the company's assets into its net income.

extraordinary loss, extraordinary income An expense or source of income that does not occur on a regular basis, such as a loss due to a major fire or the revenue from the sale of a subsidiary. Extraordinary items should be identified in any report on the company's financial status to avoid creating the false impression that its overall profit trend has suddenly plunged or soared.

protective tariff A duty high enough to assure domestic producers against any effective competition from foreign producers.

receivership A legal action in which a court appoints a receiver to manage a business while the court tries to resolve problems that could ruin the business, such as insolvency. Receivership is often used in federal bankruptcy court proceedings. But it also can be used for nonfi-

When a service mark is used, capitalize it.

trademark A trademark is a brand, symbol, word, etc., used by a manufacturer or dealer and protected by law to prevent a competitor from using it: Astro-Turf, for a type of artificial grass, for example.

In general, use a generic equivalent unless the trademark name is essential to the story.

When a trademark is used, capitalize it.

Many trademarks are listed separately in this book, together with generic equivalents.

The International Trademark Association, located in New York, is a helpful source of information about trademarks.

Follow union practice in the use of the word worker in shortened forms. Among major unions, all except the United Steelworkers use two words: United Auto Workers, United Mine Workers, etc.

See entry in main section for more detail and references.

W

See profit terminology.

A GUIDE TO PUNCTUATION

There is no alternative to correct punctuation. Incorrect punctuation can change the meaning of a sentence, the results of which could be far-reaching.

Even if the meaning is not changed, bad punctuation, however inconsequential, can cause the reader to lose track of what is being said and give up reading a sentence.

The basic guideline is to use common sense.

—Punctuation is to make clear the thought being expressed.

—If punctuation does not help make clear what is being said, it should not be there.

“The Elements of Style” by E.B. White and William Strunk Jr. is a bible of writers. It states:

“Clarity, clarity, clarity. When you become hopelessly mired in a sentence, it is best to start fresh; do not try to fight your way through against terrible odds of syntax. Usually what is wrong is that the construction has become too involved at some point; the sentence needs to be broken apart and replaced by two or more shorter sentences.”

This applies to punctuation. If a sentence becomes cluttered with commas, semicolons and dashes, start over.

These two paragraphs are full of commas and clauses; all of it equals too much for the reader to grasp:

The Commonwealth Games Federation, in an apparent effort to persuade other nations to ignore the spiraling boycott, ruled Sunday that Budd, a runner who has had a storied past on and off the track, and Cowley, a swimmer who competes for the University of Texas, were ineligible under the Commonwealth Constitution to compete for England in the 10-day event to be held in Edinburgh, Scotland, beginning July 24.

The decision on Budd, who has been the object of a number of demonstrations in the past, and Cowley followed an earlier announcement Sunday by Tanzania that it was joining Nigeria, Kenya, Ghana and Uganda in boycotting the games because of Britain's refusal to support economic sanctions against South Africa's white-led government.

PUNCTUATION MARKS AND HOW TO USE THEM

ampersand (&) Use the ampersand when it is part of a company's formal name: Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co.

The ampersand should not otherwise be used in place of and.

apostrophe (') Follow these guidelines:

POSSESSIVES: See the possessives entry in main section.

PLURAL NOUNS NOT ENDING IN S: Add 's: the alumni's contributions, women's rights.

PLURAL NOUNS ENDING IN S: Add only an apostrophe: the churches' needs, the girls' toys, the horses' food, the ships' wake, states' rights, the VIPs' entrance.

NOUNS PLURAL IN FORM, SINGULAR IN MEANING: Add only an apostrophe: mathematics' rules, measles' effects. (But see INANIMATE OBJECTS below.)

Apply the same principle when a plural word occurs in the formal name of a singular entity: General Motors' profits, the United States' wealth.

NOUNS THE SAME IN SINGULAR AND PLURAL: Treat them the same as plurals, even if the meaning is singular: one corps' location, the two deer's tracks, the lone moose's antlers.

SINGULAR NOUNS NOT ENDING IN S: Add 's: the church's needs, the girl's toys, the horse's food, the ship's route, the VIP's seat.

Some style guides say that singular nouns ending in s sounds such as ce, x, and z may take either the apostrophe alone or 's. See SPECIAL EXPRESSIONS, but otherwise, for consistency and ease in remembering a rule, always use 's if the word does not end in the letter s:

Butz's policies, the fox's den, the justice's verdict, Marx's theories, the prince's life, Xerox's profits.

SINGULAR PROPER NAMES ENDING IN S: Use only an apostrophe: Achilles' heel, Agnes' book, Ceres' rites, Descartes' theories, Dickens' novels, Euripides' dramas, Hercules' labors, Jesus' life, Jules' seat, Kansas' schools, Moses' law, Socrates' life, Tennessee Williams' plays, Xerxes' armies. (An exception is St. James's Palace.)

SPECIAL EXPRESSIONS: The following exceptions to the general rule for words not ending in s apply to words that end in an s sound and are followed by a word that begins with s: for appearance's sake, for conscience's sake, for goodness's sake. Use 's otherwise: the appearance's cost, my conscience's voice.

PRONOUNS: Personal interrogative and relative pronouns have separate forms for the possessive. None involves an apostrophe: mine, ours, your, yours, his, hers, its, theirs, whose.

Caution: If you are using an apostrophe with a pronoun, always double-check to be sure that the meaning calls for a contraction: you're, it's, there's, who's.

Follow the rules listed above in forming the possessives of other pronouns: another's idea, others' plans, someone's guess.

COMPOUND WORDS: Applying the rules above, add an apostrophe or 's to the word closest to the object possessed: the major general's decision, the major generals' decisions, the attorney general's request, the attorneys general's request. See the plurals entry for guidelines on forming the plurals of these words.

Also: anyone else's attitude, John Adams Jr.'s father, Benjamin Franklin of Pennsylvania's motion. Whenever practical, however, recast the phrase to avoid ambiguity: the motion by Benjamin Franklin of Pennsylvania.

JOINT POSSESSION, INDIVIDUAL POSSESSION: Use a possessive form after only the last word if ownership is joint: Fred and Sylvia's apartment, Fred and Sylvia's stocks.

Use a possessive form after both words if the objects are individually owned: Fred's and Sylvia's books.

DESCRIPTIVE PHRASES: Do not add an apostrophe to a word ending in s when it is used primarily in a descriptive sense: citizens band radio, a Cincinnati Reds infielder, a teachers college, a Teamsters request, a writers guide.

Memory Aid: The apostrophe usually is not used if for or by rather than of would be appropriate in the longer form: a radio band for citizens, a college for teachers, a guide for writers, a request by the Teamsters.

An 's is required however, when a term involves a plural word that does not end in s: a children's hospital, a people's republic, the Young Men's Christian Association.

DESCRIPTIVE NAMES: Some governmental, corporate and institutional organizations with a descriptive word in their names use an apostrophe; some do not. Follow the user's practice: Actors' Equity, Diners Club, the Ladies' Home Journal, the National Governors' Association. See separate entries for these and similar names frequently in the news.

QUASI POSSESSIVES: Follow the rules above in composing the possessive form of words that occur in such phrases as a day's pay, two weeks' vacation, three days' work, your money's worth.

Frequently, however, a hyphenated form is clearer: a two-week vacation, a three-day job.

DOUBLE POSSESSIVE: Two conditions must apply for a double possessive — a phrase such as a friend of John's — to occur: 1. The word after of must refer to an animate object, and 2. The word before of must involve only a portion of the animate object's possessions.

Otherwise, do not use the possessive form of the word after of: The friends of John Adams mourned his death. (All the friends were involved.) He is a friend of the college. (Not college's, because college is inanimate).

Memory Aid: This construction occurs most often, and quite naturally, with the possessive forms of personal pronouns: He is a friend of mine.

INANIMATE OBJECTS: There is no blanket rule against creating a possessive form for an inanimate object, particularly if the object is treated in a personified sense. See some of the earlier examples, and note these: death's call, the wind's murmur.

In general, however, avoid excessive personalization of inanimate objects, and give preference to an of construction when it fits the makeup of the sentence. For example, the earlier references to mathematics' rules and measles' effects would better be phrased: the rules of mathematics, the effects of measles.

OMITTED LETTERS: I've, it's, don't, rock 'n' roll, 'tis the season to be jolly. He is a ne'er-do-well. See contractions in main section.

OMITTED FIGURES: The class of '62. The Spirit of '76. The '20s.

PLURALS OF A SINGLE LETTER: Mind your p's and q's. He learned the three R's and brought home a report card with four A's and two B's. The Oakland A's won the pennant.

DO NOT USE: For plurals of numerals or multiple-letter combinations. See plurals.

brackets [] They cannot be transmitted over news wires. Use parentheses or recast the material.

See parentheses.

colon (:) The most frequent use of a colon is at the end of a sentence to introduce lists, tabulations, texts, etc.

Capitalize the first word after a colon only if it is a proper noun or the start of a complete sentence: He promised this: The company will make good all the losses. But: There were three considerations: expense, time and feasibility.

EMPHASIS: The colon often can be effective in giving emphasis: He had only one hobby: eating.

LISTINGS: Use the colon in such listings as time elapsed (1:31:07.2), time of day (8:31 p.m.), biblical and legal citations (2 Kings 2:14; Missouri Code 3:245-260).

DIALOGUE: Use a colon for dialogue. In coverage of a trial, for example:

Bailey: What were you doing the night of the 19th?

Mason: I refuse to answer that.

Q AND A: The colon is used for question-and-answer interviews:

Q: Did you strike him?

A: Indeed I did.

INTRODUCING QUOTATIONS: Use a comma to introduce a direct quotation of one sentence that remains within a paragraph. Use a colon to introduce long quotations within a paragraph and to end all paragraphs that introduce a paragraph of quoted material.

PLACEMENT WITH QUOTATION MARKS: Colons go outside quotation marks unless they are part of the quotation itself.

MISCELLANEOUS: Do not combine a dash and a colon.

comma (,) The following guidelines treat some of the most frequent questions about the use of commas. Additional guidelines on specialized uses are provided in separate entries such as dates and scores.

For detailed guidance, consult the punctuation section in the back of Webster's New World Dictionary.

IN A SERIES: Use commas to separate elements in a series, but do not put a comma before the conjunction in a simple series: The flag is red, white and blue. He would nominate Tom, Dick or Harry.

Put a comma before the concluding conjunction in a series, however, if an integral element of the series requires a conjunction: I had orange juice, toast, and ham and eggs for breakfast.

Use a comma also before the concluding conjunction in a complex series of phrases: The main points to consider are whether the athletes are skillful enough to compete, whether they have the stamina to endure the training, and whether they have the proper mental attitude.

See the dash and semicolon entries for cases when elements of a series contain internal commas.

WITH EQUAL ADJECTIVES: Use commas to separate a series of adjectives equal in rank. If the commas could be replaced by the word and without changing the sense, the adjectives are equal: a thoughtful, precise manner; a dark, dangerous street.

Use no comma when the last adjective before a noun outranks its predecessors because it is an integral element of a noun phrase, which is the equivalent of a single noun: a cheap fur coat (the noun phrase is fur coat); the old oaken bucket; a new, blue spring bonnet.

WITH NONESSENTIAL CLAUSES: A nonessential clause must be set off by commas. An essential clause must not be set off from the rest of a sentence by commas.

See the essential clauses, nonessential clauses entry in the main section.

WITH NONESSENTIAL PHRASES: A nonessential phrase must be set off by commas. An essential phrase must not be set off from the rest of a sentence by commas.

See the essential phrases, nonessential phrases entry in the main section.

WITH INTRODUCTORY CLAUSES AND PHRASES: A comma is used to separate an introductory clause or phrase from the main clause: When he had tired of the mad pace of New York, he moved to Dubuque.

The comma may be omitted after short introductory phrases if no ambiguity would result: During the night he heard many noises.

But use the comma if its omission would slow comprehension: On the street below, the curious gathered.

WITH CONJUNCTIONS: When a conjunction such as and, but or for links two clauses that could stand alone as separate sentences, use a comma before the conjunction in most cases: She was glad she had looked, for a man was approaching the house.

As a rule of thumb, use a comma if the subject of each clause is expressly stated: We are visiting Washington, and we also plan a side trip to Williamsburg. We visited Washington, and our senator greeted us personally. But no comma when the subject of the two clauses is the same and is not repeated in the second: We are visiting Washington and plan to see the White House.

The comma may be dropped if two clauses with expressly stated subjects are short. In general, however, favor use of a comma unless a particular literary effect is desired or if it would distort the sense of a sentence.

INTRODUCING DIRECT QUOTES: Use a comma to introduce a complete one-sentence quotation within a paragraph: Wallace said, "She spent six months in Argentina and came back speaking English with a Spanish accent.” But use a colon to introduce quotations of more than one sentence. See colon.

Do not use a comma at the start of an indirect or partial quotation: He said the victory put him “firmly on the road to a first-ballot nomination.”

BEFORE ATTRIBUTION: Use a comma instead of a period at the end of a quote that is followed by attribution: “Rub my shoulders,” Miss Cawley suggested.

Do not use a comma, however, if the quoted statement ends with a question mark or exclamation point: “Why should I?” he asked.

WITH HOMETOWNS AND AGES: Use a comma to set off an individual’s hometown when it is placed in apposition to a name: Mary Richards, Minneapolis, and Maude Findlay, Tuckahoe, N.Y., were there.

If an individual’s age is used, set it off by commas: Maude Findlay, 48, Tuckahoe, N.Y., was present.

WITH PARTY AFFILIATION, ACADEMIC DEGREES, RELIGIOUS AFFILIATIONS: See separate entries under each of these terms.

NAMES OF STATES AND NATIONS USED WITH CITY NAMES: His journey will take him from Dublin, Ireland, to Fargo, N.D., and back. The Selma, Ala., group saw the governor.

Use parentheses, however, if a state name is inserted within a proper name: The Huntsville (Ala.) Times.

WITH YES AND NO: Yes, I will be there.

IN DIRECT ADDRESS: Mother, I will be home late. No, sir, I did not take it.

SEPARATING SIMILAR WORDS: Use a comma to separate duplicated words that otherwise would be confusing: What the problem is, is not clear.

IN LARGE FIGURES: Use a comma for most figures greater than 999. The major exceptions are: street addresses (1234 Main St.), broadcast frequencies (1460 kilohertz), room numbers, serial numbers, telephone numbers, and years (1876). See separate entries under these headings.

PLACEMENT WITH QUOTES: Commas always go inside quotation marks.

See semicolon.

compound adjectives See the hyphen entry.

dash (—) Follow these guidelines:

ABRUPT CHANGE: Use dashes to denote an abrupt change in thought in a sentence or an emphatic pause: We will fly to Paris in June — if I get a raise. Smith offered a plan — it was unprecedented — to raise revenues.

SERIES WITHIN A PHRASE: When a phrase that otherwise would be set off by commas contains a series of words that must be separated by commas, use dashes to set off the full phrase: He listed the qualities — intelligence, humor, conservatism, independence — that he liked in an executive.

ATTRIBUTION: Use a dash before an author’s or composer’s name at the end of a quotation: “Who steals my purse steals trash.” — Shakespeare.

IN DATELINES:

NEW YORK (AP) — The city is broke.

IN LISTS: Dashes should be used to introduce individual sections of a list. Capitalize the first word following the dash. Use periods, not semicolons, at the end of each section. Example: Jones gave the following reasons:

—He never ordered the package.

—If he did, it didn't come.

—If it did, he sent it back.

WITH SPACES: Put a space on both sides of a dash in all uses except the start of a paragraph and sports agate summaries.

ellipsis (...) In general, treat an ellipsis as a three-letter word, constructed with three periods and two spaces, as shown here.

Use an ellipsis to indicate the deletion of one or more words in condensing quotes, texts, and documents. Be especially careful to avoid deletions that would distort the meaning.

Brief examples of how to use ellipses are provided after guidelines are given. More extensive examples, drawn from the speech in which President Nixon announced his resignation, are in the sections below marked CONDENSATION EXAMPLE and QUOTATIONS.

SPACING REQUIREMENTS: In some computer editing systems the thin space must be used between the periods of the ellipsis to prevent them from being placed on two different lines when they are sent through a computer that handles hyphenation and justification.

Leave one regular space — never a thin — on both sides of an ellipsis: I ... tried to do what was best.

PUNCTUATION GUIDELINES: If the words that precede an ellipsis constitute a grammatically complete sentence, either in the original or in the condensation, place a period at the end of the last word before the ellipsis. Follow it with a regular space and an ellipsis: I no longer have a strong enough political base. ...

When the grammatical sense calls for a question mark, exclamation point, comma or colon, the sequence is word, punctuation mark, regular space, ellipsis: Will you come? ...

When material is deleted at the end of one paragraph and at the beginning of the one that follows, place an ellipsis in both locations.

CONDENSATION EXAMPLE: Here is an example of how the spacing and punctuation guidelines would be applied in condensing President Nixon's resignation announcement:

Good evening. ...

In all the decisions I have made in my public life, I have always tried to do what was best for the nation. ...

... However, it has become evident to me that I no longer have a strong enough political base in Congress.

... As long as there was a base, I felt strongly that it was necessary to see the constitutional process through to its conclusion, that to do otherwise would be ... a dangerously destabilizing precedent for the future.

QUOTATIONS: In writing a story, do not use ellipses at the beginning and end of direct quotes:

"It has become evident to me that I no longer have a strong enough political base," Nixon said.

Not "... it has become evident to me that I no longer have a strong enough political base ... ," Nixon said.

HESITATION: An ellipsis also may be used to indicate a pause or hesitation in speech, or a thought that the speaker or writer does not complete. Substitute a dash for this purpose, however, if the context uses ellipses to indicate that words actually spoken or written have been deleted.

SPECIAL EFFECTS: Ellipses also may be used to separate individual items within a paragraph of show business gossip or similar material. Use periods after items that are complete sentences.

exclamation point (!) Follow these guidelines:

EMPHATIC EXPRESSIONS: Use the mark to express a high degree of surprise, incredulity or other strong emotion.

AVOID OVERUSE: Use a comma after mild interjections. End mildly exclamatory sentences with a period.

PLACEMENT WITH QUOTES: Place the mark inside quotation marks when it is part of the quoted material: "How wonderful!" he exclaimed. "Never!" she shouted.

Place the mark outside quotation marks when it is not part of the quoted material: I hated reading Spenser's "Faerie Queene"!

MISCELLANEOUS: Do not use a comma or a period after the exclamation mark:

hyphen (-) Hyphens are joiners. Use them to avoid ambiguity or to form a single idea from two or more words.

Some guidelines:

AVOID AMBIGUITY: Use a hyphen whenever ambiguity would result if it were omitted: The president will speak to small-business men. (Businessmen normally is one word. But the president will speak to small businessmen is unclear.)

Others: He recovered his health. He re-covered the leaky roof.

COMPOUND MODIFIERS: When a compound modifier — two or more words that express a single concept — precedes a noun, use hyphens to link all the words in the compound except the adverb very and all adverbs that end in -ly: a first-quarter touchdown, a bluish-green dress, a full-time job, a well-known man, a better-qualified woman, a know-it-all attitude, a very good time, an easily remembered rule.

Many combinations that are hyphenated before a noun are not hyphenated when they occur after a noun: The team scored in the first quarter. The dress, a bluish green, was attractive on her. She works full time. His attitude suggested that he knew it all.

But when a modifier that would be hyphenated before a noun occurs instead after a form of the verb to be, the hyphen usually must be retained to avoid confusion: The man is well-known. The woman is quick-witted. The children are soft-spoken. The play is second-rate.

The principle of using a hyphen to avoid confusion explains why no hyphen is required with very and -ly words. Readers can expect them to modify the word that follows. But if a combination such as little-known man were not hyphenated, the reader could logically be expecting little to be followed by a noun, as in little man. Instead, the reader encountering little known would have to back up mentally and make the compound connection on his own.

TWO-THOUGHT COMPOUNDS: serio-comic, socio-economic.

COMPOUND PROPER NOUNS AND ADJECTIVES: Use a hyphen to designate dual heritage: Italian-American, Mexican-American.

No hyphen, however, for French Canadian or Latin American.

PREFIXES AND SUFFIXES: See the prefixes and suffixes entries, and separate entries for the most frequently used prefixes and suffixes.

AVOID DUPLICATED VOWELS, TRIPLED CONSONANTS: Examples: anti-intellectual, pre-empt, shell-like.

WITH NUMERALS: Use a hyphen to separate figures in odds, ratios, scores, some fractions and some vote tabulations. See examples in entries under these headings.

When large numbers must be spelled out, use a hyphen to connect a word ending in -y to another word: twenty-one, fifty-five, etc.

SUSPENSIVE HYPHENATION: The form: He received a 10- to 20-year sentence in prison.

parentheses () In general, use parentheses around logos, as shown in the datelines entry, but otherwise be sparing with them.

Parentheses are jarring to the reader. Because they do not appear on some news service printers, there is also the danger that material inside them may be misinterpreted.

The temptation to use parentheses is a clue that a sentence is becoming contorted. Try to write it another way. If a sentence must contain incidental material, then commas or two dashes are frequently more effective. Use these alternatives whenever possible.

There are occasions, however, when parentheses are the only effective means of inserting necessary background or reference information. When they are necessary, follow these guidelines:

WITHIN QUOTATIONS: If parenthetical information inserted in a direct quotation is at all sensitive, place an editor's note under a dash at the bottom of a story alerting copy desks to what was inserted.

PUNCTUATION: Place a period outside a closing parenthesis if the material inside is not a sentence (such as this fragment).

(An independent parenthetical sentence such as this one takes a period before the closing parenthesis.)

When a phrase placed in parentheses (this one is an example) might normally qualify as a complete sentence but is dependent on the surrounding material, do not capitalize the first word or end with a period.

MATERIAL FROM OTHER AREAS: If a story contains information from outside the datelined city, put the material in parentheses only if the correspondent in the datelined community was cut off from incoming communications. See dateline selection.

INSERTIONS IN A PROPER NAME: Use parentheses if a state name or similar information is inserted within a proper name: The Huntsville (Ala.) Times. But use commas if no proper name is involved: The Selma, Ala., group saw the governor.

NEVER USED: Do not use parentheses to denote a political figure's party affiliation and jurisdiction. Instead, set them off with commas, as shown under party affiliation.

Do not use (cq) or similar notation to indicate that an unusual spelling or term is correct. Include the confirmation in an editor's note at the top of a story.

periods (.) Follow these guidelines:

END OF DECLARATIVE SENTENCE: The stylebook is finished.

END OF A MILDLY IMPERATIVE SENTENCE: Shut the door.

Use an exclamation point if greater emphasis is desired: Be careful!

END OF SOME RHETORICAL QUESTIONS: A period is preferable if a statement is more a suggestion than a question: Why don't we go.

END OF AN INDIRECT QUESTION: He asked what the score was.

MANY ABBREVIATIONS: For guidelines, see the abbreviations and acronyms entry. For the form of frequently used abbreviations, see the entry under the full name, abbreviation, acronym or term.

INITIALS: John F. Kennedy, T.S. Eliot (No space between T. and S., to prevent them from being placed on two lines in typesetting.)

Abbreviations using only the initials of a name do not take periods: JFK, LBJ.

ELLIPSIS: See ellipsis.

ENUMERATIONS: After numbers or letters in enumerating elements of a summary: 1. Wash the car. 2. Clean the basement. Or: A. Punctuate properly. B. Write simply.

PLACEMENT WITH QUOTATION MARKS: Periods always go inside quotation marks. See quotation marks.

question mark (?) Follow these guidelines:

END OF A DIRECT QUESTION: Who started the riot?

Did he ask who started the riot? (The sentence as a whole is a direct question despite the indirect question at the end.)

You started the riot? (A question in the form of a declarative statement.)

INTERPOLATED QUESTION: You told me — Did I hear you correctly? — that you started the riot.

MULTIPLE QUESTION: Use a single question mark at the end of the full sentence:

Did you hear him say, "What right have you to ask about the riot?"

Did he plan the riot, employ assistants, and give the signal to begin?

Or, to cause full stops and throw emphasis on each element, break into separate sentences: Did he plan the riot? Employ assistants? Give the signal to begin?

CAUTION: Do not use question marks to indicate the end of indirect questions:

He asked who started the riot. To ask why the riot started is unnecessary. I want to know what the cause of the riot was. How foolish it is to ask what caused the riot.

QUESTION AND ANSWER FORMAT: Do not use quotation marks. Paragraph each speaker's words:

Q: Where did you keep it?

A: In a little tin box.

PLACEMENT WITH QUOTATION MARKS: Inside or outside, depending on the meaning:

Who wrote "Gone With the Wind"?

He asked, "How long will it take?"

MISCELLANEOUS: The question mark supersedes the comma that normally is used when supplying attribution for a quotation: "Who is there?" she asked.

quotation marks (" ") The basic guidelines for open-quote marks (") and close-quote marks ("):

FOR DIRECT QUOTATIONS: To surround the exact words of a speaker or writer when reported in a story:

"I have no intention of staying," he replied.

"I do not object," he said, "to the tenor of the report."

Franklin said, "A penny saved is a penny earned."

A speculator said the practice is "too conservative for inflationary times."

RUNNING QUOTATIONS: If a full paragraph of quoted material is followed by a paragraph that continues the quotation, do not put close-quote marks at the end of the first paragraph. Do, however, put open-quote marks at the start of the second paragraph. Continue in this fashion for any succeeding paragraphs, using close-quote marks only at the end of the quoted material.

If a paragraph does not start with quotation marks but ends with a quotation that is continued in the next paragraph, do not use close-quote marks at the end of the introductory paragraph if the quoted material constitutes a full sentence. Use close-quote marks, however, if the quoted material does not constitute a full sentence. For example:

He said, "I am shocked and horrified by the incident.

"I am so horrified, in fact, that I will ask for the death penalty."

But: He said he was "shocked and horrified by the incident."

"I am so horrified, in fact, that I will ask for the death penalty," he said.

DIALOGUE OR CONVERSATION: Each person's words, no matter how brief, are placed in a separate paragraph, with quotation marks at the beginning and the end of each person's speech:

"Will you go?"

"Yes."

"When?"

"Thursday."

NOT IN Q-AND-A: Quotation marks are not required in formats that identify questions and answers by Q: and A:. See the question mark entry for example.

NOT IN TEXTS: Quotation marks are not required in full texts, condensed texts or textual excerpts. See ellipsis.

COMPOSITION TITLES: See the composition titles entry for guidelines on the use of quotation marks in book titles, movie titles, etc.

NICKNAMES: See the nicknames entry.

IRONY: Put quotation marks around a word or words used in an ironical sense: The "debate" turned into a free-for-all.

UNFAMILIAR TERMS: A word or words being introduced to readers may be placed in quotation marks on first reference:

Broadcast frequencies are measured in "kilohertz."

Do not put subsequent references to kilohertz in quotation marks.

See the foreign words entry.

AVOID UNNECESSARY FRAGMENTS: Do not use quotation marks to report a few ordinary words that a speaker or writer has used:

Wrong: The senator said he would “go home to Michigan” if he lost the election.

Right: The senator said he would go home to Michigan if he lost the election.

PARTIAL QUOTES: When a partial quote is used, do not put quotation marks around words that the speaker could not have used.

Suppose the individual said, “I am horrified at your slovenly manners.”

Wrong: She said she “was horrified at their slovenly manners.”

Right: She said she was horrified at their “slovenly manners.”

Better when practical: Use the full quote.

QUOTES WITHIN QUOTES: Alternate between double quotation marks (“ or ”) and single marks (‘ or ’):

She said, “I quote from his letter, ‘I agree with Kipling that “the female of the species is more deadly than the male,” but the phenomenon is not an unchangeable law of nature,’ a remark he did not explain.”

Use three marks together if two quoted elements end at the same time: She said, “He told me, ‘I love you.’”

PLACEMENT WITH OTHER PUNCTUATION: Follow these long-established printers’ rules:

—The period and the comma always go within the quotation marks.

—The dash, the semicolon, the question mark and the exclamation point go within the quotation marks when they apply to the quoted matter only. They go outside when they apply to the whole sentence.

See comma.

semicolon (;) In general, use the semicolon to indicate a greater separation of thought and information than a comma can convey but less than the separation that a period implies.

The basic guidelines:

TO CLARIFY A SERIES: Use semicolons to separate elements of a series when individual segments contain material that also must be set off by commas:

He leaves a son, John Smith of Chicago; three daughters, Jane Smith of Wichita, Kan., Mary Smith of Denver, and Susan, wife of William Kingsbury of Boston; and a sister, Martha, wife of Robert Warren of Omaha, Neb.

Note that the semicolon is used before the final and in such a series.

Another application of this principle may be seen in the cross-references at the end of entries in this book. Because some entries themselves have a comma, a semicolon is used to separate references to multiple entries, as in: See the felony, misdemeanor entry; pardon, parole, probation; and prison, jail.

See the dash entry for a different type of connection that uses dashes to avoid multiple commas.

TO LINK INDEPENDENT CLAUSES: Use semicolon when a coordinating conjunction such as and, but or for is not present: The package was due last week; it arrived today.

If a coordinating conjunction is present, use a semicolon before it only if extensive punctuation also is required in one or more of the individual clauses: They pulled their boats from the water, sandbagged the retaining walls, and boarded up the windows; but even with these precautions, the island was hard-hit by the hurricane.

Unless a particular literary effect is desired, however, the better approach in these circumstances is to break the independent clauses into separate sentences.

PLACEMENT WITH QUOTES:
Place semicolons outside quotation marks.

FOREWORD

What follows is not a textbook on libel. It is a guide for The Associated Press staff. It explains fundamental principles of libel law and relevant First Amendment principles for working writers and editors.

This manual will not make the reader an expert on libel or on the First Amendment. It will, we hope, make everyone aware of what libel is and how to avoid it.

Underlying all the guidance in this book is one basic rule for the AP staff: If a legal problem develops with a story, or if guidance is needed in the handling of a story, consult the General Desk. Nothing in the manual alters this rule.

The law of libel is a matter of state law and, as is the case with all other matters of state law, it is neither universal, nor static. While the First Amendment principles which guide the state laws of libel are universally applicable to all the states, each state is free to craft its own laws against libel, within the First Amendment boundaries. Few generalities about the law of libel apply universally to all the states.

The past 30 years have ushered in dramatic change in the First Amendment principles governing libel. New interpretations go on, especially in the arena of cyberspace. What has not and does not change is our promise to ourselves to be accurate and to be fair.

For his help with this manual we are indebted to the late General News Editor Samuel G. Blackman.

INTRODUCTION

Associate Justice John Marshall Harlan remarked that “the law of libel has changed substantially since the early days of the Republic.”

And it has changed substantially since he made that observation.

But the working journalist remembers: The news stories that generate the most claims of injury to reputation — the basis of libel — are run-of-the-mill. Perhaps 95 of 100 libel suits are in that category and result from publication of charges of crime, immorality, incompetence or inefficiency. A Harvard Nieman report makes the point: “The gee-whiz, slam-bang stories usually aren’t the ones that generate libel, but the innocent-appearing, potentially treacherous minor yarns from police courts and traffic cases, from routine meetings and from business reports.”

Most suits based on relatively minor stories result from factual error or inexact language — for example, getting the plea wrong or making it appear that all defendants in a case face identical charges. Many libel suits arise in the context of reporting court and police news, especially criminal courts. Problems can arise in stories about crime and in identifying a suspect where there has been no arrest or where no charge has been made.

Libel even lurks in such innocent-appearing stories as birth notices and wedding announcements. As Turner Catledge, former managing editor of The New York Times, noted in his book, “My Life and the Times,” “Sometimes people will call in the engagement of two people who hate each other, as a practical joke.” The fact that some New York newspapers have had to defend suits for such announcements illustrates the care and concern required in every editorial department.

The lesson is twofold: one, there is no substitute for accuracy, and, two, news organizations may face legal challenges to what they publish — even when they have accurately reported statements made by someone else, as in the case of a phony engagement announcement. When the press reports that person X has leveled libelous accusations against person Y, unless a privilege discussed below applies, the press may be held to account not only for the truth of the fact that the allegations were made, but also for the steps taken to verify the truth of the accusations. When accusations are made against a person, it is always well to investigate the truth of the accusations as well as to try for balancing comment which has some relation to the original charges. Irrelevant countercharges can lead to problems with the person who made the first accusation. Always bear in mind that a newspaper can be held responsible in defamation for republishing the libelous statement made by another.

This handbook outlines the law of libel, in general, and provides more details of the law as it specifically applies in Texas, Illinois, California and New York. While certain privileges, such as the privilege for neutral reportage, are not universally recognized, the law in every state is always evolving — the courts of any particular state may decide to recognize a privilege they had not recognized before.

Chapter 1

WHAT IS LIBEL?

At its most basic, libel means injury to reputation. Each state, however, has adopted its own definition of the term libel. In some states libel is distinguished from slander, in that a libel is written, or otherwise printed, whereas a slander is spoken; in either case, the term defamation generally includes both terms. Words, pictures, cartoons, photo captions and headlines can all give rise to a claim for libel.

In Illinois, libel is defined as “the publication of anything injurious to the good name or reputation of another, or which tends to bring him into disrepute.” Illinois is an example of a state that makes no distinction between slander and libel.

In New York, a libelous statement is one which tends to expose a person to hatred, contempt or aversion or to induce an evil or unsavory opinion of him in the minds of a substantial number of people in the community.

In Texas, where libel is defined by statute, a “libel is a defamation expressed in written or other graphic form that tends to blacken the memory of the dead or that tends to injure a living person’s reputation and thereby expose the person to public hatred, contempt or ridicule, or financial injury or to impeach any person’s honesty, integrity, virtue, or reputation or to publish the natural defects of anyone and thereby expose the person to public hatred, ridicule, or financial injury.” In California, where libel is also defined by statute, libel is a false and unprivileged publication by writing, printing, picture, effigy or other fixed representation which exposes any person to hatred, contempt, ridicule or obloquy, or which causes him to be shunned or avoided or which injures him in his occupation.

California is an example of a state that distinguishes substantively between libel and slander. In California, a slander, also defined by statute, is a false and unprivileged publication, orally uttered (including over the radio) which: (1) charges a person with committing a crime or with having been indicted, convicted or punished for a crime; (2) alleges that a person is infected with a contagious or loathsome disease; (3) imputes a person is generally unqualified to perform his job or tends to lessen the profits of someone’s profession, trade or business; (4) imputes impotence or want of chastity, or (5) by natural consequence charges actual damage. The definition of slander is thus more narrow than that of libel in California — so the speaker you quote may not be guilty of slander, but your written publication of the same matter may constitute a libel.

Finally, many states, such as California, draw a distinction between a libel which defames the plaintiff without reference by extrinsic explanatory matter and a libel which requires reference to extrinsic matters. A claim for damages based on a statement that is not libelous without reference to extrinsic matter usually must be accompanied by a showing of specific damages suffered. A claim based on libel that does not require external reference can generally stand without a showing of specific damage.

Chapter 2

LIABILITY FOR REPUBLICATION

A common misconception regarding the law of libel is that the publisher of a true and accurate quote of a statement containing libelous allegations is immune from suit if the quoted statement was actually made and was accurately transcribed by the reporter.

In many circumstances, however, a newspaper can be called to task for republishing the libelous statement of another. For example, even when it comes to the reporting of the fact that a plaintiff has filed a libel suit against a defendant, a newspaper could, in certain circumstances, be held responsible for repeating the libel that gave rise to the suit. In most states, a “fair report privilege” shields the publisher of an accurate and impartial report of the contents of legal papers which have commenced a libel action. (See Chapter 3.) In some states, however, the fair report privilege does not attach to the contents of legal papers until a case goes to trial or some other specified judicial action takes place. Thus, publication of the pleadings in a libel case before the specified judicial action takes place could give rise to a fresh claim for libel.

On the other hand, there are some instances where a newspaper will be justified in republishing the statements of another. First, there is the fair report privilege. Additionally, many states recognize that newspapers under the pressure of daily deadlines often rely on the research of other reputable newspapers in republishing news items originally appearing in the other newspapers. In such cases, reliance on a reputable newspaper or news agency is recognized as a defense to a libel claim. Of course, this justification ceases to exist if the republisher had or should have had substantial reason to question the accuracy or good faith of the original story. In some states, this defense is even further modified where the plaintiff is a public figure or public official, in which case the republisher is justified unless it had actual knowledge that the original statement was, in fact, false or published with a belief it was probably false, i.e., recklessly.

Liability for republication of another’s materials is an area of the law of libel whose limits have been tested recently by the advent of the Internet. Should online access providers be held liable as though they were the “publishers” of the material published everyday on the Internet by the millions of individuals with access to the Internet? Although the question has not yet been fully resolved, the trend seems to be to either relieve the access providers of any liability, or to hold them responsible only for publication of those matters which they actually know to be false or probably false (as where someone calls the service to complain).

Chapter 3

PRIVILEGES

In addition to the substantive defenses described later, in Chapter 4, certain privileges, grounded in both constitutional and state law, limit the ability of a plaintiff to successfully prosecute a libel claim. When an article raises any libel concerns, an editor or reporter should consider whether or not any of the following privileges apply to the publication. If any privileges do apply, the reporter and editor should consider whether the circumstances of the contemplated publication match the circumstances under which the privilege will attach.

1. Opinion

The rationale behind the opinion privilege is that only statements that can be proven true or false are capable of defamatory meaning and that statements of “opinion” cannot, by their nature, be proven true or false. As the Supreme Court decision, Gertz vs. Robert Welch Inc., 418 U.S. 323 (1974), which recognized the constitutional dimension of the opinion privilege, stated, “there is no such thing as a false idea.” In a more recent case, Milkovich vs. Lorain Journal Co., 497 U.S. 1 (1990), the Supreme Court attempted to clarify how an opinion was to be distinguished from a fact. Milkovich is widely thought of by legal commentators, however, to have added more confusion than clarity to the question. After Milkovich, some states have turned to their own state constitutions as providing basis for the opinion privilege and have thus attempted to avoid the Milkovich confusion. One such state, New York, has gone so far as to declare that its state constitution affords more protection for expression of opinion than the U.S. Constitution does — at least under the Milkovich standards. Texas, on the other hand, has claimed to have adopted the Milkovich holding.

One test for distinguishing fact from opinion that appears to be followed in many states, even after the Milkovich decision, asks: (1) whether the statement has a precise core of meaning on which a consensus of understanding exists; (2) whether the statement is verifiable; (3) whether the textual context of the statement would influence the average reader to infer factual content; and (4) whether the broader social context signals usage as either fact or opinion.

In New York, a statement of opinion based on accurately stated and reported facts is not actionable. Likewise, statements incapable of being proven false are considered protected expressions of opinion, as are epithets, satire, parody and hyperbole.

Under these principles, calling a doctor a “rotten apple,” for example, was incapable of being proved true or false and was therefore protected as an expression of opinion. Similarly, a statement that plaintiff lacked “talent, ambition, initiative” was a nonactionable expression of opinion. A letter to the editor published in a scientific journal submitted by the International Primate Protection League and which warned that a multinational corporation’s plans for establishing facilities to conduct hepatitis research using chimpanzees could well wind up spreading hepatitis to the rest of the chimpanzee population was, given its overall context, protected as opinion.

Where the facts underlying the opinion are reported inaccurately and would adversely affect the conclusion drawn by the average reader concerning the opinion expressed, however, the publication may give rise to a claim for libel in New York. Moreover, accusations of criminal or illegal activity, even when couched in the form of opinion, are not protected by the opinion privilege. Finally, to be protected under the opinion privilege in New York, the content, tone and apparent purpose of the statement should signal the reader that the statement reflects the author’s opinion.

In Illinois, the test for distinguishing a fact from opinion is whether the statement clearly discloses the factual basis on which it depends. If so, the statement is pure opinion. If the statement suggests or appears to rely on undisclosed facts, it will be considered a statement of fact. Illinois courts assess the totality of the circumstances in which the statement appears. A statement is not protected in Illinois by the opinion privilege if it implies the existence of undisclosed facts which are both false and defamatory. In addition, false statements of fact, even when couched in terms of opinion, are capable of defamatory meaning. In Illinois, if a statement is provably false, it may be actionable unless the language is clearly “loose, figurative or hyperbolic.”

In Illinois, the statement that a sports commentator was a “liar” without reference to specific facts was protected as opinion. Taken in the total context of an article, the statement that plaintiff was “neo-Nazi” was protected as opinion. Likewise, a statement calling a plaintiff a “commie,” suggesting that he does not understand the subject he teaches and that he is “not traveling with a full set of luggage,” was also protected as opinion. Statements accusing doctors of being “cancer con-artists,” of practicing “medical quackery,” and of promoting “snake oil remedies,” were also protected. A newspaper column and editorial characterizing a nudist pageant as “pornography” and as “immoral” were also protected.

In California, after Milkovich, the state’s highest court held that a false assertion of fact could be libelous even though couched in terms of opinion, although statements that are clearly satirical, rhetorical, or hyperbolic continue to be protected. The same court also declared, in another case, that no “categorical exception for opinion exists independently under California Law” (Kahn vs. Bower, 1991). This is in direct contrast to New York’s approach.

Another court in California held that three questions should be considered to distinguish opinion from fact: (1) does the statement use figurative or hyperbolic language that would negate the impression that the statement is serious? (2) does the general tenor of the statement negate the impression that the statement is serious? (3) can the statement be proved true or false? Under this test, a television commentator’s statement that a manufacturer’s product “didn’t work” was not an opinion because, despite the humorous tenor of the comment, it did not use figurative or hyperbolic language, it could reasonably be understood as asserting an objective fact that could be proven true or false. Likewise, a statement made in a newspaper interview that plaintiff was an “extortionist” was not protected as opinion.

Before Milkovich, courts in Texas had held that only false statements of fact were actionable in libel. After Milkovich, at least one court has held that there is no separate constitutional privilege for opinion and that opinions or ideas may be actionable if they imply false statements of objective fact.

Thus, before Milkovich, a Texas court found that a statement in an editorial that the prosecution’s burden of proof of guilt “is no excuse for cheating” was protected as opinion. Likewise, the characterization of a fluoridation opponent as a “quack” and an “imported fearmonger” was protected as opinion.

After Milkovich, statements that plaintiffs were incompetent pilots and troublemakers, when made in the context of a public issue, were protected opinions. On the other hand, the statement that a stockbroker was going to lose his license, was in big trouble with the SEC and would never work again as a broker, was not protected as opinion, but was, in fact, actionable.

The common thread to these variations is that opinions that are offered in a context that presents the facts on which the opinion is based are generally not actionable. On the other hand, opinions that imply the existence of undisclosed, defamatory facts (i.e., if you knew what I know) are more likely to be actionable. In addition, a statement that is capable of being proven true or false, regardless of whether it is expressed as an opinion or as an exaggeration or even hyperbole, may be actionable.

One example offered by a prominent commentator on libel law illustrates the point:

“Suppose the opinion is, ‘I think X must be an alcoholic,’ and there are no underlying facts stated. It would be reasonable for a reader to conclude that the writer knew facts that would justify such a comment — that X drank often, alone and compulsively, for example. If these facts are defamatory, that is, false and damaging to reputation, the comment will be considered defamatory also. Had underlying, accurate facts been supplied — ‘that X drinks three martinis every night on the club car which is why I think he must be an alcoholic’ — the comment would be protected.” (Sanford, Libel and Privacy, Second Edition, 1994.)

2. Fair Comment and Criticism

The fair comment and criticism privilege long predates the constitutional opinion privilege and continues, in most states, to exist as an independent matter of state law. The right of fair comment has been summarized as follows: “Everyone has a right to comment on matters of public interest and concern, provided they do so fairly and with an honest purpose. Such comments or criticism are not libelous, however severe in their terms, unless they are written maliciously. Thus it has been held that books, prints, pictures and statuary publicly exhibited, and the architecture of public buildings, and actors and exhibitors are all the legitimate subjects of newspapers’ criticism, and such criticism fairly and honestly made is not libelous, however strong the terms of censure may be.” (Hoepfner vs. Dunkirk Pr. Co., 1930.)

Some states, such as Texas, have recognized the fair comment privilege as a matter of statutory law. The Texas statute protects reasonable and fair comment or criticism of the official acts of public officials and of other matters of public concern when published for general information.

In Illinois, the fair comment privilege applies to statements of opinion, relating to an act, not an individual. The statements of opinion must include their factual predicate and relate to a matter of public interest. A recent Illinois court, however, has held that this privilege was supplanted by the U.S. constitutional opinion privilege (i.e., Gertz and Milkovich) — thus placing in doubt the continued existence of this privilege.

3. Fair Report

Under the fair report privilege, a fair and accurate report of a public proceeding cannot provide grounds for a libel suit. In New York the fair report privilege is a matter of statute. According to the statute, a fair and substantially accurate report of an official judicial or legislative proceeding cannot be the basis for defamation action. In order to qualify for the privilege, however, the account must be substantially accurate and fair. The privilege can still apply where the publisher edits out portions of an official report, provided that what is published is still substantially accurate. At least one New York trial court has even applied this fair report privilege to a news report based on information provided by police sources.

Pursuant to the Texas fair report statute, the privilege applies to “a fair, true and impartial account” of: (a) judicial proceedings; (b) an official proceeding to administer the law; (c) all executive and legislative proceedings; and (d) the proceedings of public meetings dealing with public purposes. In this context, the phrase “fair, true and impartial account” means a substantially true account. This privilege relieves a news organization of responsibility for determining the underlying truth of the statements made in these contexts, precisely because the very fact that these comments were made is newsworthy and important regardless of whether they are actually true. Once again, however, this privilege is limited to statements made in the contexts as defined.

California also has a statute recognizing a privilege for a fair and true report in a public journal of a judicial, legislative or other public official proceeding, including a report of anything said in the course thereof. California also recognizes a privilege for a fair and true report of a public meeting, which includes press conferences.

In Illinois, a report of a governmental proceeding is privileged unless the report significantly alters the defamatory meaning of the statements made by government officials. The privilege may not apply if the defamatory statement itself does not appear in the public record.

Statements made outside the court by police or a prosecutor or an attorney may or may not qualify as privileged, depending on what state you are in and on the circumstances in which the statements are made. Some states only extend the privilege to such out of court statements if made by specified top officials.

In New York and some other states, court rules provide that the papers filed in matrimonial actions are sealed and thus not open to inspection by the general public. It is not clear whether the fair report privilege will attach to publication of the contents of such papers, which by court rule, or order of the judge, are to be kept confidential.

In one case where this very situation arose, the vice president of a company filed a libel suit in New York alleging that he was fired because a newspaper published his wife's charges of infidelity set forth in divorce proceedings. The newspaper responded that its report was a true and fair account of court proceedings. The New York Court of Appeals rejected that argument on grounds that the law makes details of marital cases secret because sparring spouses frequently make unfounded charges.

The lesson of this case is that information gleaned from "confidential" court documents might not be covered under the fair report privilege. In such a case, the paper will be put to the test of proving that it made a reasonable effort to determine the truth of the allegations before publishing them.

There are other "traps" to be aware of when relying on this privilege. For example, statements made on the floor of convention sessions or from speakers' platforms organized by private organizations may not be privileged under the fair report privilege. Strictly speaking, conventions of private organizations are not "public and official proceedings" even though they may be forums for discussions of public questions.

Similarly, while statements made by the president of the United States or a governor in the course of executive proceedings have absolute privilege for the speaker (even if false or defamatory), the press' privilege to report all such statements is not always absolute. For example, President Kennedy once was asked at a news conference what he was going to do about "two well-known security risks" in the State Department. The reporter gave names when the president asked for them. The AP published the names because it was in the public interest to report the incident fully.

No suits resulted. In contrast, after a civil rights march, George Wallace, then governor of Alabama, appeared on a television show and said some of the marchers were members of communist and communist-front organizations. He gave some names, which newspapers carried. Some libel suits resulted.

4. Neutral Reportage

The lack of recognition, in many states, of the neutral reportage privilege is a sad fact of which all reporters and editors should be aware. The neutral reportage privilege protects a fair, true and impartial account of a newsworthy event. Neutral reportage is, of course, a basic tenet of good journalism and, as such, is a good practice to follow regardless of whether it is an officially recognized privilege in your state.

California is one of the few states that has recognized the neutral reportage privilege. The privilege is available when the plaintiff is a public figure, the defamatory statement is made by one who is a party to a public controversy and the publication is accurate and neutral. One California court applying the privilege found that a newspaper's account of an accusation that a police officer had improperly obtained a false confession to a crime from a person later released as innocent was not actionable where the newspaper also printed the officer's denial of the charge.

Although Texas does not officially recognize the neutral report privilege, at least one recent case has recognized the principle of the neutral reportage privilege, without naming it as such. In that case, KTRK Television vs. Felder, 1997, the court held that a story which accurately reported that parents of school children had accused a school teacher of physically threatening and verbally abusing their children was substantially true regardless of whether the allegations themselves were accurate.

Similarly, while New York state courts do not recognize a privilege for neutral reportage, a federal court in New York state has actually found a neutral reportage privilege grounded in the U.S. Constitution. As the court described the neutral reportage privilege in this case, "when a responsible, prominent organization ... makes serious charges against a public figure, the First Amendment protects the accurate and disinterested reporting of those charges, regardless of the reporter's private views regarding their validity." (Edwards vs. National Audubon Society, 2d Cir. 1977.) Subsequent cases have held that the neutral reportage privilege will not apply when the author of an article appears to espouse or concur in the charges made by others and that the privilege is limited to cases involving public figures.

DEFENSES

When contemplating publication of a statement that might raise a libel claim, a publisher would do well to consider the defenses available and the requirements of each defense. The several defenses available to news organizations charged with committing libel are listed below.

1. Not Capable of Defamatory Meaning

The first and most obvious defense to an actual or threatened libel suit is that the language complained of “is not capable of defamatory meaning.” Generally, statements accusing someone of being a criminal, an adulterer, insane or infected with a loathsome disease are considered “capable of defamatory meaning.” However, to determine whether any particular statement is susceptible of defamatory meaning, reference must be made to the definition of libel adopted in the relevant state.

Whether or not any given statement is “capable of defamatory meaning” depends additionally on the entire circumstances in which the statement arises as well as the state whose law governs. For example, a New York court found that a statement identifying an attorney as a “flashy entertainment lawyer” was not, without more, defamatory. Likewise, in New York, allegations of drunkenness, use of “political clout” to gain governmental benefit, membership in the “Mafia,” communist affiliation or that someone has cancer may or may not be defamatory, depending on the circumstances of the case.

In Illinois, a court found that even though an allegation that an employee made unauthorized phone calls amounted to an allegation of misconduct on the job, the statement was not, without more, defamatory, because the allegation did not amount to an indictable criminal offense punishable by imprisonment. On the other hand, an Illinois court did find defamatory the statement that an employee was selling illegal drugs at work.

In California, a court has held that it is defamatory per se to call someone a communist. Another California court, however, has cautioned that whether or not a statement is defamatory depends on the social climate at the time the statement is made. That court held that it was not defamatory in 1968 to say that someone was a member of the John Birch Society and an extremist, but implied that it would be defamatory to say that someone was a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

In Texas, a statement may be false, abusive and unpleasant without being defamatory. For example, a Texas court held that describing someone as resembling a “hard boiled egg,” referring to baldness and pudginess, was not defamatory. Likewise, describing a political candidate as a “radical,” “backed and financed by big-shot labor bosses” was not considered defamatory in Texas. On the other hand, an insinuation that a person is connected with gambling and prostitution was found to be defamatory. The assertion that a person who had made an allegation against another of child molestation had fabricated and since recanted the allegation was defamatory when no recantation had, in fact, been made.

2. Truth

A public official and a public figure and a private individual involved in a matter of public concern all will have to prove the statement is false in order to prevail on their libel claim. (The states are divided on whether and in what circumstances the private individual will have to prove falsity if the matter is not one of public concern.) While it is true that most libel plaintiffs will have to prove that the statement about which they complain is false, as a practical matter a libel defendant's best defense is that the statement is true. In most states, such as New York, truth is a complete and unconditional defense to a civil action for libel. In California a true statement is simply not actionable in defamation — even if published maliciously.

In New York, “substantial accuracy” is the test for truth or falsity. In California, proving “truth” requires proof that the substance or the sting of the defamatory charge is true. This does not require proof of the literal truth of every word in the publication.

In Texas, truth is considered an absolute privilege by Texas statute. Texas, too, employs the “substantial truth” test. In other words, the statements must not only be literally false, they must be substantially false — the alleged defamatory statement must be more damaging to the plaintiff's reputation, in the mind of the average listener, than a truthful statement would have been. If the gist of the statement is true or undisputed, variance with respect to matters of secondary importance can be disregarded.

Under the Illinois state constitution, truth is a defense to all actions for libel “when published with good motives and for justifiable ends.” The “good motives” limitation would violate the U.S. Constitution, however, where a public figure is involved, but where a private individual is involved, it may still be valid.

3. Fault

As a matter of constitutional law, under Gertz vs. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974), some showing of fault on the part of defendant is a predicate to any recovery in a defamation action. Accordingly, another defense available to any newspaper or reporter accused of libel is that they did not act with the requisite degree of fault. The level of “fault” that the plaintiff must prove will vary depending on who the plaintiff is. When determining fault, reference will be made to the standards of conduct generally adhered to in the circumstances.

Public Figures. If the plaintiff is a public figure or public official, the plaintiff must establish by clear and convincing evidence that the publication was made with actual malice. That is the rule of New York Times vs. Sullivan (1964). Although “actual malice” is a constitutional requirement, states have, within the constitutional boundaries, developed their own ways of determining whether actual malice has been shown.

New York courts have thus stated that actual malice looks to the subjective state of mind of the publisher at the time of publication. It inquires into whether the publisher believed the statement was false or whether he published it with reckless disregard for its truth, or with awareness of a high probability that the statement was false. Generally speaking, it is difficult for a plaintiff to show that a newspaper published a story with actual malice.

In Texas, actual malice is the making of a statement with knowledge that it is false, or with "reckless disregard" of whether it is true. Reckless disregard means a high degree of awareness of probable falsity. To prove reckless disregard, the plaintiff must present sufficient evidence to permit the conclusion that the defendant entertained serious doubts as to the truth of the publication. Moreover, in Texas, malice cannot be inferred from the frequency of a publisher's criticism of a public official's performance, nor does the fact that statements are taken out of context establish actual malice.

In Illinois, the actual malice rule requires a libel plaintiff to show with convincing clarity that the defendant entertained serious doubts as to the truth of the publication. As one Illinois court stated, actual malice is shown only when a reporter's investigation "has revealed either insufficient information to support the allegations in good faith or information which creates substantial doubt as to the truth of published allegations." (Wanless vs. Rothballer, 115 Ill.2d 158, 508 N.E.2d 316, 332, 1986.)

Private Individuals. The U.S. Supreme Court has not addressed the standard by which a newspaper's actions will be judged where the plaintiff is a private figure. Many state courts, however, have held that a negligence standard of liability applies. In Texas, if the plaintiff is not a public figure, then the newspaper defendant's standard will be judged by a negligence standard, i.e., whether the defendant should have known, through the exercise of reasonable care, that a statement was false when the defamatory matter is one of private concern.

New York, on the other hand, has held that if the plaintiff is a private individual involved in a matter of legitimate public concern, the plaintiff must establish by a preponderance of the evidence that the publication was made in a grossly irresponsible manner without due regard for the standards of information gathering and dissemination ordinarily followed by responsible parties involving similar matters. The focus in such a case is on objective standards, not the defendant's state of mind.

While there is a lot of subtle variation in this area of the law which concerns lawyers, the bottom line for reporters and editors is that if the plaintiff is a public figure or public official, the plaintiff will bear a high burden of proof in making out his claim. If the plaintiff is a private individual, however, who happens to be involved in a matter of legitimate public concern, the plaintiff's burden of proof may, in some states, be somewhat eased. If the claim is brought by a private individual not involved in matters of legitimate public concern, however, the burden of proof for the plaintiff will definitely be eased. Accordingly, there are more risks to publishing matters not of legitimate public concern about private individuals than to publishing matters that are of public concern, especially where they involve public figures or public officials.

Chapter 5

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS REGARDING LIBEL LAW

What follows is an overview of the First Amendment principles guiding the libel law. The constitutional trend here outlined has a direct impact on which of the aforementioned defenses newspaper libel defendants are most likely to have to rely.

In a series of decisions commencing in 1964, the Supreme Court established important First Amendment protections for the press in the libel area. But in more recent decisions, the tide has been running against the press. While the full impact of the later decisions is not yet clear, a review of the rulings since the mid-1960s shows the trend.

1. Public Officials and Public Figures

In The New York Times case, the Supreme Court ruled in March 1964 that public officials cannot recover damages for a report related to official duties unless they prove actual malice. To establish actual malice, the official was required to prove that at the time of publication, those responsible for the story knew it was false or published it with reckless disregard of whether it was true or false. The decision reversed two $500,000 libel verdicts returned in Alabama against The New York Times and four black ministers. The court said:

“The constitutional guarantees (the First and 14th Amendments) require, we think, a federal rule that prohibits a public official from recovering damages for a defamatory falsehood relating to his official conduct unless he proves that the statement was made with ‘actual malice’ — that is, with knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of whether it was false or not.”

This does not give newspapers absolute immunity against libel suits by officials who are criticized. But it does mean that when a newspaper publishes information about a public official and publishes it without actual malice, it should be spared a damage suit even though some of the information may be wrong.

The court said it considered the case “against the background of a profound national commitment to the principle that debate on public issues should be uninhibited, robust and wide-open, and that it may well include vehement, caustic and sometimes unpleasantly sharp attacks on government and public officials.”

The ruling in The New York Times case with respect to public officials was extended by the Supreme Court in June 1967 to apply also to public figures in The Associated Press vs. Walker. In so holding, the court reversed a $500,000 libel judgment won by former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker in a Texas state court against the AP.

The AP reported that Walker had “assumed command” of rioters at the University of Mississippi and “led a charge of students against federal marshals” when James H. Meredith was admitted to the university in September 1962. Walker alleged those statements to be false.

In ruling for the AP, the court found: “Under any reasoning, Gen. Walker was a public man in whose public conduct society and the press had a legitimate and substantial interest.”

The rulings in The New York Times and The Associated Press cases were constitutional landmark decisions for freedom of the press and speech. They offered safeguards not previously defined. But they did not confer license for defamatory statements or for reckless disregard of the truth.

The Associated Press decision made an additional important distinction. In the context of a case with which The Associated Press case had been consolidated, the Supreme Court upheld an award granted to Wallace Butts, former athletic director of the University of Georgia, against Curtis Publishing Co. The suit was based on an article in the Saturday Evening Post accusing Butts of giving his football team’s strategy secrets to an opposing coach prior to a game between the two schools.

The court found that Butts was a public figure, but said there was a substantial difference between the two cases. Justice Harlan said: “The evidence showed that the Butts story was in no sense ‘hot news’ and the editors of the magazine recognized the need for a thorough investigation of the serious charges. Elementary precautions were, nevertheless, ignored.”

Justice Warren, in a concurring opinion, referred to “slipshod and sketchy investigatory techniques employed to check the veracity of the source.” He said the evidence disclosed “reckless disregard for the truth.”

The differing rulings in The Associated Press and the Saturday Evening Post cases should be noted carefully. The Associated Press-Walker case concerned “hot news”; the Saturday Evening Post-Butts story was investigative reporting of which journalists are doing more and more.

Extension of The New York Times rule in another case was based on a column by Drew Pearson which characterized a candidate for the United States Senate as “a former small-time bootlegger.” The jury held that the accusation related to the private sector of the candidate’s life. Reversing this judgment, the Supreme Court said: “We therefore hold as a matter of constitutional law that a charge of criminal conduct, no matter how remote in time or place, can never be irrelevant to an official’s or a candidate’s fitness for office for purposes of application of the ‘knowing falsehood or reckless disregard’ rule of New York Times v. Sullivan.” (Monitor Patriot vs. Roy, 401 U.S. 265, 1971.)

Another case was brought by a Chicago captain of detectives against Time magazine, which had quoted from a report of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission without making clear that the charges of police brutality were those of the complainant whose home was raided and not the independent findings of the commission. The court described the commission's documents as "bristling with ambiguities" and said that Time did not engage in a "falsification" sufficient to sustain a finding of actual malice. (Time, Inc. vs. Pape, 401 U.S. 279, 1971.)

The progression of The New York Times and The Associated Press cases was interrupted, however, in June 1974 with the Supreme Court's decision in the case of Gertz vs. Robert Welch Inc. Gertz, a lawyer of prominence in Chicago, had been attacked in a John Birch Society publication as a communist. There were additional accusations as well. Gertz sued and won a libel verdict in his favor. The Supreme Court upheld the verdict, noting that he was neither a public official nor a public figure.

The Gertz decision opened the door to giving courts somewhat wider leeway in determining whether someone was a public person. This case also opened the way to giving state courts the right to assess what standard of liability should be used in testing whether a publication about a private individual is actionable. It insisted, however, that some degree of fault, at least negligence, be shown. As a result, some state courts have established a negligence standard (whether a reasonable person would have done the same thing as the publisher under the circumstances). The New York courts follow a gross negligence test when the matter published is of public concern. Others still observe the actual malice test in suits by private individuals against the press.

More recently, in the case Time vs. Firestone, the Supreme Court again appears to have restricted the "public figure" and "public issue" standards. The case stemmed from Time magazine's account of the divorce of Russell and Mary Alice Firestone. The magazine said she had been divorced on grounds of "extreme cruelty and adultery." The court made no finding of adultery. She sued.

She was a prominent social figure in Palm Beach, Fla., and held press conferences in the course of the divorce proceedings. Yet the Supreme Court said she was not a public figure because "she did not assume any role of special prominence in the affairs of society, other than perhaps Palm Beach society, and she did not thrust herself to the forefront of any particular public controversy in order to influence resolution of the issues involved in it."

As in the Gertz case, the Firestone decision further cleared the way for increased application of a negligence standard — a standard less severe than the actual malice standard that was at the base of The New York Times vs. Sullivan and The Associated Press vs. Walker.

Supreme Court decisions, starting with Gertz and extending through Firestone and more recent cases, have consistently narrowed the class of people to be treated as public figures under the Times-Sullivan and AP-Walker standards.

Two 1979 rulings by the Supreme Court illustrate the narrowing of the protections that seemed so wide only a few years earlier:

Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin was sued for $8 million by Ronald Hutchinson, a research scientist who had received several public grants, including one for $50,000. Proxmire gave Hutchinson a “Golden Fleece” award, saying Hutchinson “has made a fortune from his monkeys and in the process made a monkey of the American taxpayer.” Hutchinson sued. The Supreme Court found that despite the receipt of substantial public funds, Hutchinson was not a public figure. The court also ruled that Proxmire’s news release was not protected by congressional immunity. (Hutchinson vs. Proxmire, 443 U.S. 111, 1979.)

Ilya Wolston pleaded guilty in 1957 to criminal contempt for failing to appear before a grand jury investigating espionage. A book published in 1974 referred to these events. Wolston alleged that he had been libeled. In ruling on Wolston vs. Reader’s Digest, the Supreme Court said that he was not a public figure. The court said people convicted of crimes do not automatically become public figures. Wolston, the court said, was thrust into the public spotlight unwillingly.

In effect, the court extended the Firestone concept of unwilling notoriety to criminal as well as civil cases. Thus the pattern through Gertz, Firestone, Proxmire and Reader’s Digest is clear. The New York Times rule has been left standing but it is slowly being whittled away by exceptions.

The Supreme Court is rejecting the notion that a person can be a public figure simply because of the events that led to the story at issue. The court is saying that public figure means people who seek the limelight, who inject themselves into public debate, etc. The court is saying that involvement in a crime, even a news-worthy one, does not make one a public figure.

This narrowing of the definition of who is a public figure also means that the broad protections that came out of The New York Times and The Associated Press cases apply to fewer numbers of the people who are written about in the news.

Moreover, the broad protections of “knowing falsity” and “reckless disregard of the truth” set out in The New York Times and The Associated Press cases are being replaced in state after state with simple negligence standards. In other words, the plaintiff, now adjudged to be a private citizen because of the recent rulings, need only prove that the press was negligent, not reckless.

The difference is more than semantic. This development suggests that press lawyers will be relying more on some of the old standbys as defenses — plaintiff’s inability to prove falsity, privilege, fair comment — and this puts the ball right back with editors and reporters.

2. Private Figure/Public Concern

Fortunately, however, this trend has been at least partially abridged by the Supreme Court’s decision in Philadelphia Newspapers vs. Hepps. In that decision, the Court held that where a newspaper has published statements on a matter of public concern, even a private figure plaintiff cannot prevail without showing the statements at issue are false. This case provides that the common law rule requiring a defendant to prove truth is supplanted by a constitutional requirement that the plaintiff demonstrate falsity when the statements involved are of public concern.

3. Discovery

A 1979 Supreme Court ruling, Herbert vs. Lando, meanwhile, has had a significant impact on what materials a libel plaintiff can compel a news organization to disclose. The case ruled that retired Army Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert, a Vietnam veteran, had the right to inquire into the editing process of a CBS "60 Minutes" segment, produced by Barry Lando, which provoked his suit. Herbert had claimed the right to do this so that he could establish actual malice.

The decision formalizes and calls attention to something that was at least explicit in The New York Times case: that a plaintiff had the right to try to prove the press was reckless or even knew that what it was printing was a lie. How else could this be done except through inquiry about a reporter's or editor's state of mind?

The ruling reminds plaintiffs' lawyers that they can do this. This, no doubt, may be responsible for far more of this kind of inquiry than the press has had to face before.

4. Summary Judgment

There was a footnote in the Proxmire case that has had a marked effect on the way libel cases are litigated. Footnote 9 questioned the practice of dismissing libel actions early in the course of litigation. The lower courts have paid serious attention to this footnote, with the result that more and more libel actions are being tried before a jury.

In a 1986 decision, Anderson vs. Liberty Lobby, however, the Supreme Court held that summary judgment should be granted in libel actions against public officials and public figures unless the plaintiff can prove actual malice with "convincing clarity" or by "clear and convincing evidence." This rule should facilitate the early dismissal of unmeritorious claims without the expense and burden of proceeding to trial.

5. Opinion Privilege

More recently, in Milkovich vs. Lorain Journal Co. (1990), the Supreme Court made clear that even statements of opinion may constitute libel if "sufficiently factual to be proven true or false." The Milkovich case therefore took away the opinion defense to libel that had been adopted by many lower courts. Although the decision did not alter the rules relating to public figures and events described above (for example, the requirement of actual malice), the case may lead to more jury trials in libel suits, particularly where the person bringing the suit is a private individual.

6. Damages

The huge jury verdicts that often result have caused much concern among legal commentators and the press. A number of remedies have been proposed, including statutory caps on both compensatory and punitive damages. A 1996 non-press Supreme Court case, holding that some excessive damage verdicts might violate the Constitution, holds out some promise of relief.

An indication that the Supreme Court is facing this problem in the libel area appeared in its 1984 opinion in Bose vs. Consumers Union. Bose Corp. sued Consumer Reports over its publication of disparaging comments concerning Bose's loudspeaker systems and obtained a damage judgment of about $211,000. The Court of Appeals, after a careful review of the record, reversed the judgment. The Supreme Court endorsed this process, underscoring the need for appellate courts in libel cases to make an independent review of the record — a standard of scrutiny that does not apply in most other appeals. For the foreseeable future, the press will continue to rely on the willingness of the appeals courts to overturn excessive jury verdicts.

SUMMARY OF FIRST AMENDMENT RULES

The gist of the principles established in the cases discussed above may be summarized as follows:

A. The Public Official Rule: The press enjoys a great protection when it covers the affairs of public officials. In order to successfully sue for libel, a public official must prove actual malice. This means the public official must prove that the editor or reporter had knowledge that the facts were false or acted with reckless disregard of the truth. (See Chapters 5 and 7).

B. The Public Figure Rule: The rule is the same for public figures and public officials. That is, a public figure must prove actual malice. The problem is that it is very difficult in many cases to predict who will be classified as a public figure. (See Chapters 5 and 7). In general, there are two types of public figures:

1. General Purpose Public Figure: This is an individual who has assumed the role of special prominence in the affairs of society and occupies a position of persuasive power and influence. An example is the entertainer Jay Leno.

2. Limited Purpose Public Figure: This is a person who has thrust himself or herself into the vortex of a public controversy in an attempt to influence the resolution of the controversy. An example would be a vocal scientist who has lectured and published articles in an attempt to influence a state legislature to ban fluoridation of water.

C. The Private Figure Rule: A private figure is defined in the negative: someone who is not a public figure. The rule of law for libel suits brought by private figures varies from state to state. The variations fall into three general categories:

1. A number of states follow the same rule for private figures and public figures. They require private figures to prove actual malice. These states include Alaska, Colorado, Indiana and New Jersey.

2. At least one state, New York, requires private figures to prove that the publisher acted in a “grossly irresponsible manner” when the matter published is of public concern.

3. Most states require private figures to prove only “negligence.” Negligence is difficult to define. As a rule of thumb, a careless error on the part of the journalist could be found to constitute negligence.

Chapter 6

PUBLIC AND PRIVATE PLAINTIFFS

Determination of whether a plaintiff is a public figure plays a crucial role in determining the degree of fault the plaintiff will have to attribute (by proof) to the defendant. As it has been noted, the Supreme Court has, in recent years, narrowed its definition of who is a public figure. The party accused of committing libel will bear the burden of establishing whether the plaintiff is a public or a private figure. As with the rest of the law of libel, whether a plaintiff is a public figure or official varies from state to state.

1. Public Figures

In New York, a public figure is one who has thrust himself or herself into the vortex of a public issue or controversy or has taken affirmative steps to attract public attention. Public figures have included: candidates for public office; religious groups; a belly dancer; and a “stripper for God.”

In Texas, a public figure is one who has assumed a role of prominence in the affairs of society. Texas courts generally ask three questions in order to determine whether someone is a limited purpose public figure: (1) is the controversy truly a public controversy? (i.e., (a) are people talking about the controversy and (b) are people other than those immediately involved in the controversy likely to feel the impact of its resolution?); (2) does the plaintiff have more than a trivial or tangential role in the controversy?; (3) is the alleged defamation relevant to the plaintiff’s participation in the controversy? Under this standard, an abortion protester on a public street in the vicinity of an abortion clinic was considered a limited purpose public figure, as was a zoologist who appeared on television shows and gave interviews on his controversial work.

In California, a public figure is one who has voluntarily and actively sought, in connection with any matter of public interest, to influence resolution of the issues involved. At least one court in California has held that once one becomes a public figure, one retains that status “to the end of his days.” For a limited purpose public figure, the public figure status generally continues as long as the specific issues for which public status was achieved continue.

A former city attorney who was also a civic leader and an attorney for a corporation organized to recall members of a city council was a public figure, under the California test. Others who have been found to be public figures have included: (1) a licensed clinical psychologist who conducted “nude marathon” group therapy sessions; (2) an author and television personality; (3) the founder of a well-known drug rehabilitation program; (4) a prominent and outspoken feminist author; (5) a candidate for city council; and (6) the owner, operator and manager of a radio station.

On the other hand, a public school teacher whose participation in public controversy did not exceed that which she was required to by school district regulations (except that she responded to media inquiries), was not a public figure in California. Similarly, a corporation which conducted a closeout sale for a landmark department store was not a public figure simply because it was doing business with a party to a controversy.

A note on corporations: In New York, the same standards that determine whether an individual is a public figure apply to corporations. In Texas, at least one court has asked three questions in order to determine whether a corporation is a public or a private figure: (1) what level of notoriety does the corporation enjoy among the average individuals in the relevant geographic area? (2) what is the nature of the corporation’s business? and (3) what is the frequency and intensity of media scrutiny that the corporation normally receives? For example, a British corporation that did not deal in consumer goods and had not received significant past publicity was a private figure for the purposes of a libel claim.

2. Public Officials

In New York, public officials are those who are elected or appointed to office and who appear to have substantial responsibility for control over public and governmental affairs. Judges, police officers, state troopers and corrections officers have all been held to be public officials under this standard.

In Texas, the following criteria are relevant to determining whether a plaintiff is a public official: (1) the public interest in the public position held by the plaintiff; (2) the authority possessed by the plaintiff to act on behalf of a government entity; (3) the amount of governmental funds controlled by the plaintiff; (4) the number of employees the official supervises; (5) the amount of contact between the plaintiff and the public, and (6) the extent to which the plaintiff acts in a representative capacity for the governmental entity or has any direct dealings with the government.

Under this standard, (1) a county sheriff, (2) a Child Protective Services specialist with authority to investigate charges of child abuse, remove children from their homes and place them in foster care, (3) an undercover narcotics agent employed by the state’s law enforcement agency, (4) a ranking officer in charge of a narcotics squad of four men, (5) an individual who was a high school athletic director, head football coach and teacher, and (6) an assistant regional administrator of a branch office of the Securities and Exchange Commission and even a part-time city attorney, have all been found to be public officials.

Under the same test, the following persons were found not to be public officials: (1) a high school teacher; (2) a prominent member of two private organizations affiliated with a state university; (3) a former special counsel for a court of inquiry into county fund management; (4) a court reporter; and (5) an appointed justice of the peace (where the article appeared in a city where plaintiff was not justice of the peace and did not refer to plaintiff's official capacity).

In California, a public official is one who has, or appears to the public to have, substantial responsibility for or control over the conduct of governmental affairs. In California, people found to be public officers have included a police officer, an assistant public defender, and an assistant district attorney.

As a final note, for the plaintiff to be considered a public official for purposes of a libel claim, the article will probably have to address, at some point, the plaintiff's official status and that status must be in some way relevant to the article.

Chapter 7

MISCELLANEOUS

1. Defamation of the Dead

Most states do not recognize a cause of action for defamation of the dead. Many states, do, however, permit an ongoing libel suit to continue after the death of the complaining person. For example, in New York no one can bring a cause of action for defamation of a deceased person unless they can demonstrate that their own reputation has been damaged by the defamation of the deceased. If the action is commenced before the plaintiff's death, however, it may be continued. Substantially, the same rules apply in California. In Texas, too, the libel claim will survive if filed before the plaintiff dies. In Illinois, in contrast, actions for defamation do not survive death of either party (i.e., plaintiff or defendant) regardless of whether the action had been commenced before the party's death.

2. Group Libel

Most states appear not to authorize actions for libel based on defamation of a group. In Illinois, for example, a court dismissed an action by nine members of a 23-lawyer defense team which team the defendant newspaper had described as "as craven a group of lawyers as I've seen." The case was dismissed because it did not include all the members of the defense team.

New York does not permit libel actions alleging defamation of a group. Rather, the plaintiff must be able to show that the comments respecting the group actually defame its individual members. Factors considered by courts making this determination include: (1) the size of the group; (2) the degree of organization of the group, and (3) the prominence of the group and its individual members.

In California, an individual plaintiff may not maintain an action for defamation directed against a class of persons to which he belongs, unless those to whom the communication is directed understand the communication as applying to the plaintiff. A California court has also commented that whether group libel actions are ever allowed is "highly questionable at best." Similarly, in Texas, an individual may not recover damages for defamation of a large group of which he or she is a member where nothing in the defamation singles out the plaintiff in particular.

Chapter 8

APPLYING THE RULES

We already have defined libel and explained the defenses available to the press. Let's now look at some applications.

In a society in which standards of right living are recognized by most people, any accusation that a member of society has violated such standards may be injurious. Members of a community establish in the minds of others an estimate of what they are believed to be. Injury to that reputation may mean business, professional or social ruin.

One court decision put the matter this way:

"The law of defamation is concerned only with injuries to one's reputation....

"Embarrassment and discomfort no doubt came to her from the publication, as they would to any decent woman under like circumstances. Her own reaction, however, has no bearing upon her reputation. That rests entirely upon the reactions of others. We are unable to find anything in this article which could appreciably injure plaintiff's reputation." (Kimmerle vs. New York Evening Journal Inc., 262 N.Y. 99)

The traditional rule was that defamation was concerned only with injuries to one's reputation. That rule was altered in 1974 by the Gertz case, which held that emotional distress is also an element of damages in libel.

In order to be libelous, it is not necessary that a publication impute criminal activity. The following was held to be libelous:

"Pauper's Grave For Poor Child"

"Unless financial aid is forthcoming immediately, the body of a 4-year-old boy who was run over Tuesday will be interred in Potter's Field, burying ground of the homeless, friendless and penniless, who die or are killed in New York City. The parents of this youngster are in dire financial straits, and at this writing have no alternative but to let their son go to his final rest in a pauper's grave."

The court said:

“It is reasonably clear, therefore, that in some cases it may be a libel if the plaintiff has been written up as an object of pity The reason is that in libel the matter is defamatory not only if it brings a party into hatred, ridicule or contempt by asserting some moral discredit upon his part, but also if it tends to make him be shunned or avoided, although it imputes no moral turpitude to him.” (Katapodis vs. Brooklyn Spectator Inc., 28 7 N.Y. 17).

A publication that does not discredit a person as an individual may nonetheless damage a person’s professional status.

A story stated that after a youth’s body had been taken from the waters in which he had been swimming, he was pronounced dead by a doctor. Later the youth was revived. The doctor sued because of the implication that he had been unable to determine whether a person was living or dead.

Similarly, a publication may affect a business. Companies are naturally sensitive to news stories that reflect on their business prospects and practices. There have been many such news stories in the fields of environmental and consumer protection. The issues are complicated, and the legal aspects are not always clear. Formal charges and allegations should be reported precisely and fairly.

Likewise, there is no alternative to precision in reporting any criminal charge.

An essential element of an action for libel is that the complainant be identifiable to a third party. Nevertheless, the omission of names will not, in itself, provide a shield against a claim for libel. As was pointed out earlier, there may be enough details for the person to be recognizable.

A story may, by the use of a general description or name, make a charge capable of defamatory meaning against an organized group. It is possible that any member of the group could try to bring an action on the story.

In most states, the individual will have to be able to prove that the story is about the plaintiff, rather than the group as a whole. If the plaintiff succeeds, however, and the material is capable of defamatory meaning and not privileged, then the question turns to proof of truth and “fault.”

Can the truth of the charge be established by documents, by testimony from trustworthy people or by material from privileged sources? It may not be enough to show that somebody gave you the unprivileged information. The issue turns on the truth of the charge itself and your investigation and attempts to verify the charge.

Another potential libel pitfall is the mistaken identity case, when, for example, a famous individual is confused with a person bearing a similar name who gets into a scrape. Petty thieves running afoul of the law may give the names of famous people — often old-time athletes — in the hope of getting leniency from a judge. If a newspaper reports that the famous person was arrested, the famous person may object to the report.

Another mistaken identity situation might arise when a non-famous person, John Doe, is arrested and is subsequently identified in news reports about the arrest as “John Doe, the high school teacher.” If the John Doe who was arrested was really John Doe, the lawyer, and John Doe the high school teacher really exists, he probably will not be pleased with the news report.

Chapter 9

POINTS TO REMEMBER

When you have any concerns about any particular statement or opinion, the first question to ask is whether it is capable of defamatory meaning. Second, does it refer to a specific, identifiable individual? Third, do any privileges apply? Does the opinion privilege apply? What about the fair report privilege? Does the state recognize any other privilege? (e.g., one for fair comment and criticism of public officials? Or the neutral report privilege?) Fourth, is the individual identified a public figure or a public official? Fifth, is the topic of the article one of public concern? Finally, what investigation was done in the preparation of the article and what sources does the article rely on?

—Remember, once the AP has published a story, only a KILL transmitted on a wire can definitively remove copy that is problematic in terms of the paragraph above, or which contains other very serious errors. Remember also that a KILL can be applied to a portion of a story. It is not necessary to KILL an entire item simply to remove one paragraph of the story. The KILL can be applied to only a portion of the story.

—If a privilege applies, remember that the privilege does not remove the need for careful reporting and the use of editorial judgment. In many cases, courts have held that it is up to the jury to decide whether a particular publication was a fair and true report or whether there was “actual malice.”

—Remember to be careful of descriptive phrases that may give rise to cases of mistaken identity. A report that “an elderly janitor for a local school” was arrested could lead to suits from every elderly janitor in the school district.

—Remember that the fact that police are questioning someone about a crime does not necessarily justify the label suspect. Witnesses are obviously also questioned about a crime. Additionally, depending on the circumstances, the fact that a detective tells you that someone is a suspect will not always be privileged as a fair report. For example, several of the news organizations which reported that an individual was considered a suspect in planting the bomb that exploded in Atlanta during the 1996 Olympic Games have been sued by the man.

—Pictures and captions must be as accurate and objective as news stories. Pictures and their captions can also give rise to a claim of libel.

CHAPTER 10

PROCEDURES FOR HANDLING KILLS AND CORRECTIVES

This chapter summarizes how to deal with stories when substantive problems or legal issues might be involved. Remember that the General Desk in New York or a deputy managing editor must be consulted and must approve a KILL before it is filed. The New York Photo Desk must be consulted for photo caption problems. This chapter summarizes the procedures available for revising or removing stories or photos that have already been transmitted. In many cases, a story may have been transmitted over more than one circuit.

1. WITHHOLDS, ELIMINATIONS, and KILLS

Datelines on withholds, eliminations and kills should be the same as on the original stories.

Alternatively, the story can be KILLED, if the additional investigation reveals that major changes to the story are necessary or if the additional investigation will take longer than originally anticipated. The KILL is mandatory. A CORRECTIVE story may be required as explained later in this chapter. Accordingly, KILLS should be used when editorial discretion calls for prompt and mandatory action. A KILL must be approved by the General Desk or the deputy managing editor before it is filed. Finally, an ELIMINATION advises an AP member to remove a story from its publication, but does not convey the same need for prompt action that the "KILL" conveys.

2. Form — WITHHOLDS, ELIMINATIONS and KILLS

WITHHOLDS

The form for a WITHHOLD is:

^AM-Gold Find, WITHHOLD, a0680, ^WITHHOLD

Denver _ Withhold AM-Gold, filed as a0680. Authorities say the miner's story has been questioned.

^The AP

ELIMINATIONS

The form for an ELIMINATION is:

^AM-Practical Joke, ELIMINATION, a0240, ^BULLETIN ELIMINATION

Boston-Eliminate the Practical Joke story, filed as 0240. It cannot be confirmed.

KILL

The KILL should say succinctly what was wrong with the original story — for example, “Smith not arrested.” Do not make any legal conclusions in the KILL — i.e., the story is libelous — when transmitting the KILL.

The form for a KILL is:

^BULLETIN KILL

NEW YORK - Kill the Zyx bankrupt story, a0720. The company is not bankrupt.

^The AP

The form for a partial kill is:

^BULLETIN KILL

NEW YORK - Kill graf 7 of the Zyx bankrupt story, a0720. Zyx's sister company did not go bankrupt last year.

^The AP

Follow the KILL immediately with an advisory. State whether a substitute story is planned:

^AM-Zyx Bankrupt, KILL Advisory, a0720,

Editors:

The NEW YORK story about Zyx bankrupt, a0720, has been killed. The company is NOT bankrupt.

A kill is mandatory.

Make certain the story is not published.

A sub story will be filed shortly. (Or: No sub will be filed.)

^The AP

Send an advisory note during the next cycle:

^PM-Zyx Bankrupt, KILL, Advisory, a0720,

Editors:

A NEW YORK story filed for Monday AMs as a0720 under the slug AM-Zyx Bankrupt has been killed. The Zyx Co. is not bankrupt.

A kill is mandatory.

Make certain the story is not published.

A sub was filed as a0741, slugged AM-ZYX Petition.

^The AP

Because of the inconvenience caused to a member when the AP kills a story, the substitute, — i.e., a CORRECTIVE — should be moved as quickly as possible so that the member can replace the KILLED item with a publishable account.

If a substitute story is filed, mark it as the next lead-writethru to the previous story. Include a nonpublishable editor's note advising that it replaces an earlier story that was KILLED.

Circumstances will dictate whether a substitute story is required. (See CORRECTIVES, below.)

3. Timing — WITHHOLDS, ELIMINATIONS and KILLS

When you decide to file a WITHHOLD, an ELIMINATION or a KILL in the same cycle in which the story moved, transmit advisory notes to members in the next two cycles, in addition to the cycle in which you transmit the KILL. The reason for the repetition in advisory notes is that some members may have held the story for later use. These advisory notes should follow the style of the KILL advisory.

When you decide to file a WITHHOLD, an ELIMINATION, or a KILL after the cycle in which a story originally moved, but before a second version of the story has moved, file the WITHHOLD or in the case of an ELIMINATION or KILL, simply do not transmit the story in the second cycle, and then file the ELIMINATION or KILL in the subsequent cycle (which will be the cycle in which the story actually moved).

After the story has run through two cycles, neither a WITHHOLD, an ELIMINATION, nor a KILL is appropriate without prior consultation with the General Desk. At this stage, promptly consult with the General Desk about the possibility of a CORRECTIVE or other follow-up.

4. CORRECTIVES

A CORRECTIVE may follow a WITHHOLD, an ELIMINATION or a KILL. A CORRECTIVE must be approved by the General Desk or the deputy managing editor before it is filed by a bureau.

Do not be hasty in transmitting a CORRECTIVE. When there is a factual error in the report, we want to correct the report as quickly as possible, but when you take the step of transmitting a CORRECTIVE, it is important to ensure that the correction is actually warranted, that it corrects all aspects of the story that may need correction and that the correction itself is accurate.

Remember, transmission of a CORRECTIVE does not necessarily safeguard the AP against a legal action, and may, in fact, have unintended consequences of legal significance.

You should also be aware of any legal requirement in your state setting a time within which a correction must appear.

The CORRECTIVE story should identify the previous incorrect story by slug, transmission number, dateline and the date as follows:

^PM-Fed-Indict, CORRECTIVE

Eds: Members who used a0620, PM-Fed-Indict, sent Oct. 22 under a New York dateline, are asked to use the following story.

If the story that was KILLED has been out long enough to have gotten into print or on the air, then our CORRECTIVE story should acknowledge the previous error and set the record straight.

The CORRECTIVE or sub story should be preceded by a note asking members who used the original item to use the following story.

While each case must be considered individually, the proper form for this CORRECTIVE or sub story often will be the straightforward assertion that a previous AP report contained an error. Do not, however, automatically assume that the error should be attributed to the AP (as, in, "The Associated Press reported erroneously on Feb. 27 that ..."). In fact, the AP should not admit error, where the original error was not the fault of AP. Where the AP did not originate the error, the CORRECTIVE should state that further investigation has revealed different information than that originally reported. For instance, "The name of the man charged yesterday with embezzlement was not Reginald Smith as police had originally told the AP. The correct name of the man charged was Robert Smith."

5. Report Requirements — KILLS and CORRECTIVES

Before any kill or corrective is filed, approval must be given by the General Desk in New York or by the deputy managing editor. Whenever legal action has been threatened, a lawyer has communicated with the bureau, or other circumstances indicate that the matter may be particularly troublesome, the bureau should contact the deputy managing editor at the outset for guidance.

Any time that a kill or corrective is filed, the bureau chief or news editor must send the deputy managing editor a file containing the following:

1. Wire copy of the original story, the KILL and the KILL notes, including that transmitted on broadcast.
2. Wire copy of the substitute story or CORRECTIVE.
3. A copy of any source material used by the writer or editor in preparation of the story, including member clip, reporter's notes and the like.
4. A factual explanation stating why the story was KILLED (again, no legal conclusions should be made). This statement should be prepared by either the bureau chief or the news editor, in consultation with the staff members involved. This explanation should not be prepared or sent without prior consultation with the General Desk or the deputy managing editor.

The cover letter, also to be written by the bureau chief or the news editor, should add relevant details not covered above, such as any contact with outsiders on the matter.

The bureau chief's letter and explanatory statement should be factual reports of what happened. They are not the place for extraneous comments about staff members or bureau procedures. Nor are they the place for apologies, nor any legal or factual speculation.

Do not make any response to any letter or other communication in connection with any case where legal action seems possible, especially if a lawyer is involved, without first consulting the managing editor or the General Desk.

6. Distributions

It is important that every WITHHOLD, ELIMINATION, KILL, and CORRECTIVE receives the same distribution as the original story to which it relates. To ensure that distribution is complete, the news editor in charge of the bureau, desk or office where the problem arose should provide the General Desk with a memorandum fully describing the distribution of the original item.

The General Desk will make an independent check and shall be responsible to ensure that the KILL and the CORRECTIVE is distributed everywhere that the original item was distributed.

CHAPTER 11

ACCESS TO PLACES AND INFORMATION

1. The First Amendment Right of Access Courtrooms - Criminal Proceedings

In 1980, in Richmond Newspapers vs. Virginia, the Supreme Court ruled that, under the First Amendment, criminal trials are presumptively open to the public and the media and may be closed only when it is necessary to protect some interest that outweighs the interest in access. A trial judge must articulate findings, on the record, to support any closure. This decision marked the first time in the nation's history that the right to find out what a branch of government is doing had been afforded direct and specific constitutional protection.

In 1982, in Globe Newspapers vs. Superior Court, the Supreme Court recognized that the constitutional right of access to criminal trials applies even with respect to a sex-offense trial involving a victim who is a minor. The court struck down a statute mandating closure in such cases. While it said that the states have a significant interest in protecting minors who are victims of sexual assault from the trauma of testifying in open court, the Supreme Court held that trial judges must determine on a case-by-case basis whether this interest outweighs the presumption of openness and stated that any closure order must be "narrowly tailored to protect that interest" without unduly infringing on First Amendment rights.

The Supreme Court further held in 1984 in Press-Enterprise vs. Superior Court that the constitutional right of access to criminal trials encompasses the right to attend jury selection.

In 1986, in a second case, called Press-Enterprise vs. Superior Court, the Supreme Court ruled that the First Amendment right of access attaches to preliminary hearings in a criminal case unless specific findings are made on the record to demonstrate that closure is essential to preserve higher values and is narrowly tailored to serve that interest. If the interest asserted is the defendant's right to a fair trial, the preliminary hearing may not be closed unless there is a "substantial probability" that the right to a fair trial will be prejudiced by publicity that closure would prevent and that reasonable alternatives to closure cannot adequately protect the right to a fair trial.

The AP has distributed the following statement to be read in court by its reporters when confronted with an attempt to close a criminal proceeding.

The statement allows the reporter, when permitted to address the court, to state the basic press position and to seek time for counsel to appear to make the legal argument.

The following statement can be read verbatim, although if any parts are not applicable to a specific case, they can be changed or omitted.

May it please the Court, I am (name) of The Associated Press (or newspaper). I respectfully request the opportunity to register on the record an objection to the motion to close this proceeding to the public and to representatives of the news media. The Associated Press (or newspaper) requests a hearing at which its counsel may present to the court legal authority and arguments that closure in this case is improper.

The United States Supreme Court has now firmly held that the press and the public have a constitutional right to attend criminal trials and pretrial proceedings and may not be excluded unless the court makes findings on the record that closure is required to preserve higher values and is narrowly tailored to serve those values. There is, therefore, a presumption of openness which is firmly rooted in the Constitution and essential to proper functioning of the criminal justice system.

The Associated Press (or newspaper) takes the position that the defendant should be required to make the following showing in order to prevail on a motion to close this proceeding:

First, the defendant must demonstrate that by conducting this proceeding in public the defendant's right to a fair trial will be prejudiced by publicity which closure would prevent. The defendant must demonstrate therefore that disclosures made in this hearing will prejudice the case and that these disclosures would not otherwise be brought to the attention of potential jurors.

Second, the defendant must demonstrate that none of the alternatives to an order closing this proceeding would effectively protect the right to a fair trial. Among the alternatives available to protect the defendant's rights are: a careful and searching voir dire, continuance, severance, change of venue, peremptory challenges, sequestration and admonition of the jury.

Third, the defendant must demonstrate that closure will be effective in protecting the right to a fair trial. In the present case there has already been substantial publicity concerning the facts. The defendant must demonstrate that any prejudice to the right of a fair trial would result from publicity given to disclosures made in this proceeding, and not to previously published facts or allegations.

Finally, the defendant must establish that reasonable alternatives to closure cannot adequately protect the defendant's fair trial rights.

The Associated Press (or newspaper) believes that there has been substantial public interest generated by this case. The public has a right to be informed of future developments, and the court should avoid any impression that justice is being carried on in secrecy. The public has a right to know how the court system is handling criminal matters, what kind of deals may be struck by prosecutors and defense lawyers, what kind of evidence may be kept from the jury, and what sort of police or prosecutorial acts or omissions have occurred. For these reasons, The Associated Press (or newspaper) objects to the motion for closure and respectfully requests a hearing in which it can present full legal arguments and authority.

Courtrooms - Civil Proceedings

The Supreme Court has never addressed the question of whether there is a First Amendment right of access to civil trials and pretrial proceedings. Several federal appeals courts, employing the reasoning of the Supreme Court's criminal trial access decisions, have ruled that both civil trials and pretrial proceedings are presumptively open to the press and public.

Court Documents

Both the First Amendment and state and federal common law also provide a right of access to various court documents, like the complaint, the answer, motions and legal briefs. There are, however, reasons that a judge may legitimately WITHHOLD a particular court document from the public. What is important to remember in this context, however, is that the presumption is that the press and the public have the right to access the document. In the absence of a statute directing that the document be kept confidential

(as in most matrimonial actions), the Court must have a legitimate reason for keeping the document confidential.

2. The Freedom of Information Act (FOIA)

The federal Freedom of Information Act, originally passed by Congress in 1966 and amended periodically since, allows any citizen or any foreign national resident in the United States to request any records from the executive branch of the federal government.

It does not cover Congress or the federal courts or state or local governments. All Cabinet agencies, independent agencies, regulatory commissions and government-owned corporations are covered.

The president and his immediate staff are exempt but the Executive Office of the president and the Office of the Management and Budget are covered.

Records include all documents, papers, reports, and letters in the government's possession. The term "record" also has been ruled to cover films, photographs, sound recordings and computer tapes, but not physical objects that cannot be reproduced.

A 1996 law expanded the FOIA to require federal agencies, whenever possible, to share data in a specific format, such as on computer diskette or CD-ROM. The Electronic FOIA also broadened citizen access to government by placing more information online.

There are nine exemptions in the act that agencies may — but are not obliged to — claim as a basis for withholding records. Those exemptions have generated voluminous litigation.

Different agencies have responded in different ways to FOIA requests based on issues ostensibly already settled in court.

If you want an item, ask for it. Let the government decide whether it has any grounds or willingness to deny your request. Even an exempt document can be released at the government's discretion.

Because of the various exemptions and a lack of manpower assigned to implement the act, there are often long delays in getting documents, which often contain large blacked-out portions.

Here are a few elementary steps, among many available, that might help avoid those problems:

—Call the public information office of the federal agency you believe has the records before filing your request to make sure you have the right agency and the right address for filing it. Ask them whether they will release what you are seeking without FOIA request.

—Be as specific as possible about what you want. Give the dates, titles, authors and addresses for document and letters if you know them. In your letter, provide your telephone number and offer to supply any other information which might help narrow the search.

—Even if you are using the letterhead stationery of a news organization, state specifically that you are a reporter for that organization and plan to use the material in news stories. The act does not require you to state your purpose, but disclosures in the public interest are eligible for fee waivers, exemption waivers and in some cases expedited handling.

—Request a waiver of search and copying fees. In case the waiver is denied, set a limit on the amount you will pay, such as $100, without the agency's obtaining your prior, specific consent.

—If you want field office files checked as well as those at headquarters, be sure to specifically request that. Some agencies, such as the FBI, will not do that unless asked.

—Request that the agency cite specific exemptions for each item or portion of an item if it decides to deny any part of the requested release.

—If your initial request is denied, file an administrative appeal. Some agencies take a very different view on appeal. The denial letter will specify to whom the appeal must be sent.

—In appeal letters, argue the case for public benefit from disclosure; several exemptions request a balancing effort between privacy and public interests, and appellate reviewers may be more likely to exercise their right to waive an exemption if a good case is made.

These are only a few examples of the steps that will improve your chances of success. You may want to consult FOIA experts or manuals before proceeding.

An FOI Service Center is maintained by The Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, 1735 Eye Street, N.W., Suite 504, Washington, D.C. 20006. The committee publishes a 32-page pamphlet with sample FOIA letters and appeal forms as well as analyses of the act. The committee also maintains a toll-free hotline (1-800-F-FOI-AID), 24 hours a day, seven days a week, with attorneys available to provide FOIA advice.

The U.S. Department of Justice publishes an annual "Freedom of Information Case List" which reviews recent cases, contains up-to-date copies of the relevant statutes and, most important, the "Justice Department Guide to the FOIA," which gives the current government understanding of what is covered and not covered by each exemption. This document, published each September, is available for purchase from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Another view of current law on each exemption as well as a step-by-step guide to the process, with sample request and appeal letters, is contained in "Litigation Under the Federal Freedom of Information Act and Privacy Act," 14th edition, edited by Allan Adler and published by The American Civil Liberties Union Foundation. Individual copies are available for $40 from: Publications Department, American Civil Liberties Union Foundation, 122 Maryland Avenue, N.E., Washington, D.C. 20002.

It is advisable to check on specific state freedom of information laws.

Each individual state also has its own freedom of information laws that apply to state and local government agencies.

The right of privacy is a doctrine that has been developing in the past century. Its roots are often traced to an article entitled, "The Right to Privacy," which appeared in the Harvard Law Review in 1890, and was co-authored by Louis D. Brandeis, who later became a Supreme Court justice. The article asserted, "The press is overstepping in every direction the obvious bounds of propriety and decency." The article argued that these excesses ought to be deterred through the recognition of a distinct cause of action that would protect the individual's "right of privacy." As a Supreme Court justice, Brandeis later wrote:

"The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They recognized the significance of man's spiritual nature, of his feelings and of his intellect. They knew that only a part of the pain, pleasure and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the government, the right to be let alone — the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men." (Olmstead vs. United States, 277 U.S. 438, 478, Brandeis, J. dissenting.)

Since the writing of the article, innumerable legal commentators have debated whether such a cause of action ought to be recognized at all. From this debate, four distinct forms of the "right of privacy" cause of action have arisen: (1) misappropriation of name or likeness for commercial purpose; (2) public disclosure of private facts; (3) unreasonable intrusion upon seclusion; and (4) false light in the public eye. In recent times, these causes of action have taken on significance to the press as plaintiffs have attempted to avoid the heavy burdens of proof placed on the libel plaintiff by alleging an invasion of a form of the right of privacy, instead.

1. Misappropriation of Name or Likeness

The first form of invasion of privacy recognized by the courts was misappropriation of the name or likeness of a living person for purposes of trade or advertising without that person's consent. In recent years, some states have included voice as well as name or likeness. The First Amendment does provide for at least some exceptions to such a right of privacy — as where a candidate for public office includes his opponent's name and likeness in campaign advertisements.

2. Public Disclosure of Private Facts

Generally speaking, a claim for public disclosure of private facts complains about (1) publicity, (2) which the reasonable person would find highly offensive, (3) concerning private information about the plaintiff. Some states also require that the information published not concern or relate to a legitimate public interest. The states that recognize this cause of action generally make exceptions for public figures and for persons involved in matters of public concern. In 1967, however, the Supreme Court held that the First Amendment “command[s] nothing less than that states may not impose sanctions for the publication of truthful information contained in official records for public inspection.” (Cox Broadcasting Corp. vs. Cohn, 420 U.S. 469, 1975.) So, at least to the extent that the private facts are a matter of public record, no cause of action for public disclosure will lie.

3. Intrusion Upon Seclusion

A claim for unreasonable intrusion upon seclusion alleges that a defendant intentionally committed an unreasonable and highly offensive intrusion upon another’s interest in solitude or seclusion, either as to the plaintiff’s physical person or the plaintiff’s private affairs or concerns. Intrusion claims commonly arise in three contexts: (1) surreptitious surveillance; (2) trespass of property, and (3) instances where consent to enter a private setting for one purpose has been exceeded (as where a reporter gains access to information under false pretenses).

Although plaintiffs have often complained about a picture of them that was taken, if the picture was taken in a public place, there will generally be no cause of action for intrusion. If the picture is taken in or around the plaintiff’s home, however, the plaintiff may have a cause of action for intrusion. This cause of action has been raised recently and with increasing frequency by plaintiffs who are photographed or videotaped by news agencies accompanying on-duty police officers.

Recently, the family of a health care corporation executive successfully obtained an injunction against the elaborate efforts of a particular news organization to obtain information about the family. In this case the court held, “[c]onduct that amounts to a persistent course of hounding, harassment and unreasonable surveillance, even if conducted in a public or semi-public place, may nevertheless rise to the level of invasion of privacy based on intrusion upon seclusion.”

4. False Light

A claim for false light basically complains about publicity that places the plaintiff in a false light in the public eye. Some states hold that the publicity must be of a kind that would be highly offensive to a reasonable person. One form in which such a claim occasionally arises occurs where an opinion or utterance is falsely attributed to the plaintiff. In another version of the claim, plaintiff’s picture is used to illustrate an article to which he has no reasonable connection, as where the picture of an honest taxi driver is used to illustrate an article about the cheating propensities of cab drivers.

The Supreme Court of the United States ruled in January 1967 that the constitutional guarantees of freedom of the press are applicable to claims for invasion-of-privacy by false light involving reports of newsworthy matters. The ruling arose out of a reversal by the Supreme Court of a decision of a New York court that an article with photos in Life magazine reviewing a play, "The Desperate Hours," violated the privacy of a couple who had been held hostage in a real-life incident. In illustrating the article, Life posed the actors in the house where the real family had been held captive.

The family alleged violation of privacy by false light in the public eye, saying the article gave readers the false impression that the play was a true account of their experiences. Life said the article was "basically truthful."

The court said:

"The line between the informing and the entertaining is too elusive for the protection of [freedom of the press]. Erroneous statement is no less inevitable in such case than in the case of comment upon public affairs, and in both, if innocent or merely negligent, it must be protected if the freedoms of expression are to have the 'breathing space' that they 'need to survive.'

"We create grave risk of serious impairment of the indispensable service of a free press in a free society if we saddle the press with the impossible burden of verifying to a certainty the facts associated in a news article with a person's name, picture or portrait, particularly as related to non-defamatory matter."

The court added, however, that these constitutional guarantees do not extend to "knowing or reckless falsehood." A newspaper still may be liable for invasion of privacy if the facts of a story are changed deliberately or recklessly, or "fictionalized." As with The New York Times and The Associated Press decisions in the field of libel, "The Desperate Hours" case does not confer a license for defamatory statements or for reckless disregard of the truth.

5. State Recognition of the Right to Privacy

States vary widely both in terms of their acceptance of any of these right to privacy claims and in terms of the rules governing any such claims. Of the four forms of the "privacy" cause of action, New York only recognizes the claim for misappropriation of name or likeness for commercial purposes. Texas recognizes claims for intrusion upon seclusion, public disclosure of private facts and misappropriation of name or likeness for commercial purposes. The California state constitution recognizes the right of privacy and California therefore recognizes all four forms of the right of privacy cause of action. Although there is some disagreement among Illinois courts regarding whether to recognize the tort of intrusion upon seclusion, it can be generally said that Illinois, too, recognizes all four forms of the right of privacy.

In light of the development of the right of privacy, it can be generally said that when people become involved in a news event, voluntarily or involuntarily, they forfeit the right to privacy. Similarly, a person somehow involved in a matter of legitimate public interest, even if not a bona fide spot news event, normally can be written about with safety.

However, this is different from publication of a story or picture that dredges up the sordid details of a person's past and has no current newsworthiness. Paul P. Ashley, then president of the Washington State Bar Association, said in a talk on this subject at a meeting of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association:

“The essence of the wrong will be found in crudity, in ruthless exploitation of the woes or other personal affairs of private individuals who have done nothing noteworthy and have not by design or misadventure been involved in an event which tosses them into an arena subject to public gaze.”

6. Examples

Here are details of a few cases brought in the name of right of privacy:

—In a case against a Chicago newspaper, an Illinois trial court held that a mother had stated a cause of action for invasion of privacy where she alleged that she told the newspaper reporter that she did not want to make any public statement about her son's death and where the reporter nevertheless remained in the private hospital room with the mother, recorded her grief-stricken last words to her son and subsequently published a picture of the son's dead body and the mother's “last words” to her son.

—A leading case centering on publication of details of a person's past concerned a man who, as a child prodigy in 1910, had attracted national attention. In 1937, The New Yorker magazine published a biographical sketch of the “child prodigy” in his adult years. He alleged invasion of privacy by public disclosure of private facts.

The court said “he had cloaked himself in obscurity but his subsequent history, containing as it did the answer to the question of whether or not he had fulfilled his early promise, was still a matter of public concern. The article ... sketched the life of an unusual personality, and it possessed considerable popular news interest.”

The court said further:

“We express no comment on whether or not the newsworthiness of the matter printed will always constitute a complete defense. Revelations may be so intimate and so unwarranted in view of the victim's position as to outrage the community's notions of decency. But when focused upon public characters, truthful comments upon dress, speech, habits, and the ordinary aspects of personality will usually not transgress this line. Regrettably or not, the misfortunes and frailties of neighbors and ‘public figures’ are subjects of considerable interest and discussion to the rest of the population. And when such are the mores of the community, it would be unwise for a court to bar their expression in the newspapers, books, and magazines of the day.”

—The unsavory incidents of the past of a former prostitute, who had been tried for murder, acquitted, married and lived a respectable life, were featured in a motion picture. She sued for invasion of privacy by public disclosure of private facts. The court ruled that the use of her name in the picture and the statement in advertisements that the story was taken from true incidents in her life violated her right to pursue and obtain happiness.

Some courts have ruled that a person who is recognizable in a picture of a crowd in a public place is not entitled to the right of privacy, but if the camera singled him out for no news-connected reason, then his privacy might be invaded.

Another example of spot news interest: A child was injured in an auto accident in Alabama. A newspaper took a picture of the scene before the child was removed and ran it. That was spot news. Twenty months later a magazine used the picture to illustrate an article. The magazine was sued for public disclosure of private facts and lost the case, the court ruling that 20 months after the accident the child was no longer “in the news.”

COPYRIGHT GUIDELINES

Copyright is the right of authors to control the reproduction and use of their creative expressions that have been fixed in tangible form. The types of creative expression eligible for copyright protection include literary, graphic, photographic, audiovisual, electronic and musical works. In this context, “tangible forms” range from film to computer disks to material posted on the Internet. Personal letters or diaries may be protected by copyright even though they may not have been published and may not contain a copyright notice.

Not all uses of copyright material constitute infringement. The broadest limitation on the reach of copyright law is that ideas and facts are never protected by a copyright. Rather, the copyright pertains only to the literary, musical, graphic or artistic form in which an author expresses intellectual concepts.

This page can show the distinction between protected expression and nonprotected ideas and facts. Despite the copyright protecting this page, a subsequent author is free to report the facts it contains. The subsequent author may not, however, employ the same or essentially the same combination of words, structure, and tone, which comprises the expression of those facts.

While copyright generally prohibits the use of another’s protected expression, the doctrine of “fair use” permits, in certain circumstances, the use of copyright material without its author's permission.

To determine whether a particular use is fair, courts are required to evaluate and balance such factors as: (1) the purpose of the use; (2) the nature of the copyright work that is used; (3) the amount and substantiality of the portion used in relation to the copyright work as a whole; and (4) the effect of the use upon the potential value of the copyright work.

News reporting, criticism, and comment are favored purposes under the fair-use doctrine, but "scooping" a copyright holder's first use of previously unpublished material is not. Note, though, that "purpose" is only one of the fair-use factors. Thus, a use for a proper purpose may nevertheless constitute an infringement if other factors weigh against that use's being fair.

Here are some general guidelines:

First, fair use is more likely to be found if the copyrighted work is informational rather than fictional.

Second, fair use is more likely to be found if the copyrighted work is published as opposed to unpublished.

Third, the greater the amount of the copyrighted work used, the less likely that a court will characterize the use as fair. The use of an entire copyrighted work is almost never fair. Size alone, however, is not decisive; courts have found uses not to be fair when the portion used was small but so important that it went to the heart of the copyrighted work.

Fourth, uses that decrease any potential market for the copyrighted work tend not to be fair. For instance, if a literary critic reproduces all five lines of a five-line poem, the potential market for the poem will be diminished because any reader of the critic's piece can also obtain a copy of the poem for free.

The First Amendment provides no greater right to use copyrighted materials than those provided by the copyright law. Moreover, proper attribution cannot transform an infringing use into a fair one.

In using copyright material in a news story or column, writers should make sure that no more of a copyrighted work than is necessary for a proper purpose is used, and that the work is not used in a way that impairs its value.

It is always possible to obtain permission from the copyright holder. Reporters and editors having questions about whether their use in a news story or column of copyright material is a fair use should review these factors. No mathematical formula can yield the answer.

PHOTO CAPTIONS

Nearly all AP captions follow a simple formula:

- The first sentence of the caption describes what the photo shows, in the present tense, and states where and when the photo was made.
- The second sentence of the caption gives background on the news event or describes why the photo is significant.
- Whenever possible, try to keep captions to no more than two concise sentences, while including the relevant information. Try to anticipate what information a newspaper editor or reader will need.

THIS IS AN EXAMPLE OF THE STANDARD AP CAPTION:

The Mississippi River flows through a hole in the Sny Island, Ill., levee, flooding farmland and homes 10 miles south of Quincy, Ill., Sunday, July 25, 1993. About 2,000 people were evacuated from the 44,000 acres that flooded. (AP Photo/Bill Waugh)

DO NOT use DESCRIPTIVE OVERLINES such as:

1. SAFE AT SECOND—For a baseball play at second base, or PRESIDENT ADDRESSES WOMEN—For a presidential speech to a women's group. Regular captions have NO overlines.

INSTRUCTIVE OVERLINES will be used in the following cases:

1. For FILE PHOTOS the word FILE will be the OVERLINE.

2. For ADVANCES the OVERLINE is the word ADVANCE and the RELEASE DATE. Do not use story slugs or writer's name in the OVERLINE.

Example: ADVANCE FOR MAY 15-16—Sean Smith, a fish culturist at Vermont's new fish hatchery in Grand Isle, Vt., one of the Lake Champlain islands, moves young rainbow trout on May 4, 1993, to a new tank. (AP Photo/Toby Talbot)

3. For SPECIALS the OVERLINE should be the word SPECIAL and the name of the publication. Do not use the authorizing editor in the OVERLINE. Also, if the city is not part of the formal title of the publication's name, add it.

Example: SPECIAL FOR THE CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER—Diana Holmes participates in the second day of the 66th annual National Spelling Bee in Washington Thursday, June 3, 1993. (AP Photo/Ron Edmonds)

4. For EMBARGOED photos the OVERLINE should be the word EMBARGOED with the RELEASE TIME AND DATE. Also, add HFR (Hold for Release) in the SUPPLEMENTAL CATEGORY field of the NAA/IPTC header for embargoed photos for same day release.

The DATE, including the day of the week, day and year must appear in the body of all captions if known. If only the year and/or month is known, use that. Do not say “recently.” In file photos use the date the photo was originally shot, if known. If the date is not known get as close as you can even if only the year is known. If the date is unknown state “undated photo” in the body of the caption and in the INSTRUCTIONS field of the NAA/IPTC header.

AP GRAPHIC SIGNOFF: (AP Graphic/Karl Tate).

MANDATORY CREDITS, OUTS, CORRECTION INFORMATION and EDITOR'S NOTES do not appear in the caption box. They appear in the INSTRUCTIONS field in the NAA/IPTC header.

CAPTIONS FOR TRANSMIT POINTS WITH LEAF II TRANSMITTERS AND EXTERNAL LEAF COMPANDERS: Retain the old slug style, but adopt the new style for the body of the caption. Note the new style signoff for the caption writer, day of the week/time and byline title.

Example: [S OH CSA103 BBN REDS CARDINALS] Cincinnati Reds base runner Willie Greene is out at home as St. Louis Cardinals catcher Hector Villanueva gets set to make the tag during the fourth inning in Cincinnati Thursday, June 3, 1993. (AP Photo/Al Behrman)(ab52127stf)

CAPTIONS FOR TRANSMIT POINTS LEAF II TRANSMITTERS WITHOUT COMPANDERS AND ANALOG DRUM TRANSMITTERS: Use the new style for the body of the caption. Retain the picture number and dateline. Note the new style signoff for the caption writer, day of the week/time and byline title. Retain the story slug.

CAPTION CORRECTIONS, ADDITIONS, ELIMINATIONS

An AP captions CORRECTION is moved when a simple and nonli-belous error occurs in a caption. Examples would be a misspelled name, wrong hometown, sports score or slug. The procedure AP uses to file a caption correction form on PhotoStream is to point out the information that is being corrected in the INSTRUCTIONS field of the NAA/PTC header and write a corrected caption in publishable form. The word CORRECTION and the original photo's TRANS REFERENCE number are added to the OBJECT NAME field in the NAA/PTC header. The form is followed by the photo again with a corrected publishable caption noting so in the IN- STRUCTIONS field of the NAA/PTC header. The same procedure is followed for an AP caption ADDITION.

An AP caption ADDITION is moved when the original caption is incomplete but otherwise accurate. An AP caption ADDITION may add the name of someone in the photo or other important background information.

An AP caption ELIMINATION is moved for an acceptable photo that has a caption field that misrepresents the photo or is in bad taste. When this occurs, an AP caption ELIMINATION form is moved alerting members. Then the photo is rerun with the corrected caption using procedures for an AP caption CORRECTION transmission.

An AP photo ELIMINATION is moved on PhotoStream and DataStream for a photo that carries no threat of legal action but is objectionable for other reasons, such as error, poor taste or inaccuracy. When these occur, either an AP photo KILL or ELIMINATION is moved, alerting members.

NAA/IPTC HEADER FIELDS

Byline: The Byline field lists the name of the person who made the photo.

Byline Title: The Byline Title field lists the title of the person who made the photo.

Caption: The Caption field is the text that accompanies the photo, containing the who, what, when, where and why information.

Caption Writer: The Caption Writer field lists the initials of all the people who wrote or edited the caption, header fields or image file. This includes toning and pixel editing.

Category: The Category field lists codes that aid in a more detailed search. (See category definitions in this section.)

City: The City field lists where the photo was originally made. For file photos, do not use the transmission point's city.

Country: The Country field lists the three-letter country code where the photo was originally made. For file photos, do not put the transmission point's country.

Create Date Time: The Create Date Time field is the date the photo was originally made. For file photos, use the date the photo was originally made, if known. If the complete date is not known, Leafdesk 8.3 software will allow the field to be left blank. The field will not accept a partial date. The time is not needed.

Instructions: The Instructions field lists special notations that apply uniquely to a photo, such as file photo, correction, advance or outs.

State: The State field lists the state where the photo was originally made. Use U.S. postal code abbreviations. For file photos, do not use the transmission point's state.

Trans Reference: The Trans Reference field lists a call letter/number combination associated with a photo. It includes an originating transmit point's call letters and picture number from that point's sequence of offerings for a given day. Example: NY105.

FILING THE WIRE

These guidelines are intended to help editors handle copy easily and efficiently.

Codes in the heading of a story tell the computer where to send it, how quickly it should be moved out, and in what format.

CODING REQUIREMENTS

The file name consists of a letter of the alphabet and four numbers. The letter is called the Service Level Designator and shows the type of service being used. Usually stories are numbered in sequence. But some stories or fixtures — advances and AP Photo and Graphic Updates, for example — are given predetermined numbers. The PMs Digest, for instance, which opens the PMs cycle is always a9000 or p9000 on the high-speed lines.

These are the letters and types of service most common in nationwide transmissions:

- a — Spot news.
- b — Advances.
- c — Standing features.
- f — News designed primarily for financial pages.
- s — Sports copy.

Other letters used by the AP include:

- h — Special sports report for smaller newspapers.
- p — Spot news, special packaging.
- r — Race report.
- t — Sports, special packaging.
- u — Special stock and markets package.

Priority codes are used by the AP to assure that stories are sent in the order of their urgency. At newspapers, the codes can be used by computer systems to determine the order in which stories come to an editor's attention.

The principal priority codes, in order of urgency, and their use:

f — Flash, highest priority, seldom used.

u — Urgent, high-priority copy, including all corrections. It must be used on all items that carry an Urgent slug. It also may be used on items that lack this slug but must move on an urgent basis.

r — Rush priority: stories of a routine nature.

d — Deferred priority: Used on spot copy that can be delayed.

a — For weekday advances designed for use more than 12 hours after transmission. (Hold-for-release material sent for use less than 12 hours after transmission carries a spot news priority.)

s — For Sunday advances designed for use more than 12 hours after transmission.

w — Release at will. Copy that has a publishing value during and after the current transmission cycle.

Category codes help newspapers sort copy into various categories. For example, domestic stories may go in one place in the queue, Washington stories in another, and foreign stories somewhere else.

The principal category codes and their uses:

a — Domestic, non-Washington, general news items.

b — Special events.

d — Food, diet. For use primarily on standing advance features on food, recipes and the like. Frequently used with the c priority.

e — Selected entertainment copy.

f — News copy, regardless of dateline, designed primarily for use on financial pages. When a major story of financial interest moves as part of the general news service it should have a regular category code such as a. If it has also moved on a financial wire, editors should be advised that the same story has been routed to both financial desks and general news desks.

i — International items, including stories from the United Nations, U.S. possessions, and undated roundups keyed to foreign events.

j — Lottery results only. (Stories about lotteries or lottery winners carry standard news category codes.)

l — Selected "lifestyle" copy.

n — Stories of state or regional interest under domestic datelines. If a regional item has a Washington dateline, use the w category. If a regional item has an international dateline, use the i category. If a regional item is designed primarily for financial pages use the f category and if it is designed primarily for the sports pages, use the s category.

o — Weather tables and forecast fixtures. Do not use on weather stories.

q — Use only for result or period score of a single sports event.

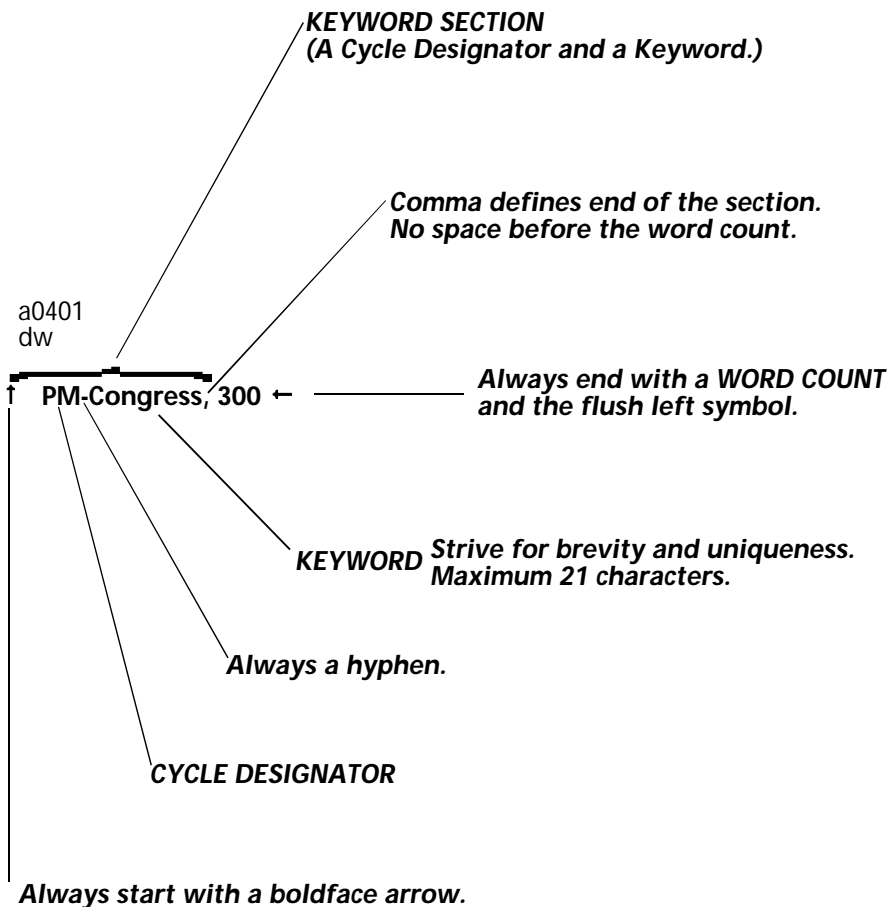

The code is designed to help newspaper computer systems build a list of scores or ignore individual scores and wait for transmissions that group them.

s — Sports stories, standings, results of more than one event.

v — Advisories about stories that may carry any of the category letters. This code is used primarily for news digests, news advisories, lists of transmitted advances and indexes.

w — Washington-dated stories. Change to the a or i category code if a subsequent lead shifts to a different city.

KEYWORD SLUG LINE

Every news item in the AP report has a keyword slug line.

Every keyword slug line must have at least a keyword section. Up to three other sections, as shown in the examples that follow, are used when necessary.

The commas that appear in the example are critical for operations of many AP computers.

The keyword section of the line consists of a cycle designator and a keyword or keywords. A boldface symbol or upper-rail (↑ or ^) precedes the cycle designator. This is followed by the cycle designator, a hyphen and the keyword. A comma marks the end of the section.

Because the keyword section provides the basic identification of a story for automatic linkup routines, it must be repeated in exactly the same form on all subsequent leads, adds, inserts, subs, etc. filed for a story.

There are three cycle designators:

↑ AM — Indicates that morning newspapers have first use of the story.

↑ PM — Indicates that afternoon newspapers have first use of the story.

↑ BC — Indicates that the item is for use by either AMs or PMs — immediately if it is a spot item, or on the publication date if it is an advance.

The BC — designation is used on all Sunday advances.

The keyword clearly indicates the content of the story.

It should not be longer than 21 letters. (Rule of thumb: If you have to count the letters, the keyword is too long.)

Use of easily recognized abbreviations and acronyms, such as Scotus for the Supreme Court of the United States and Xgr for legislature, is encouraged. (Also, the keyword of an item sent on a state service contains the postal code for the state of origin.)

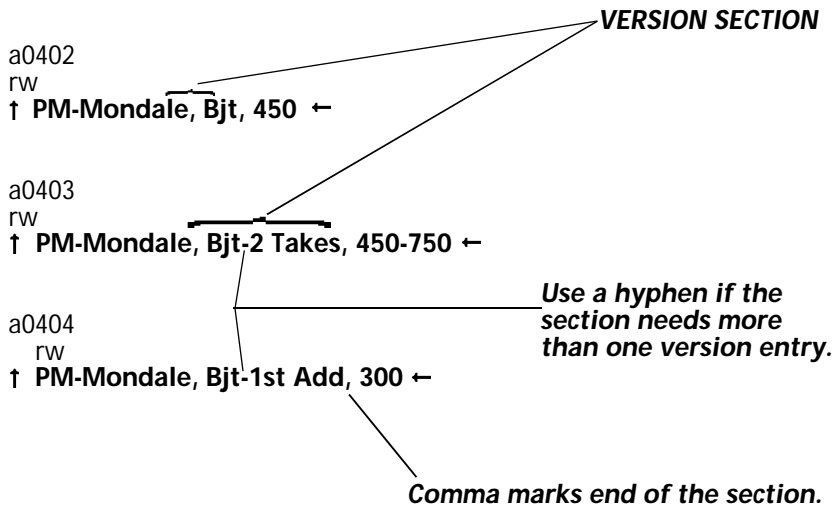

The computer produces a word count at the end of the line.

When writing or editing a story, editors can use the word count key to determine how long a story is.

VERSION SECTION

The version section of the keyword slug line is designed to give editors and computer systems a quick indication of whether to place an item at the top, bottom or middle of previous takes sent under the same keyword.

The terms that follow are the only ones that should appear in the version section of a keyword slug line. When more than one term is necessary, separate them with a hyphen. Use figures as indicated.

The version vocabulary is broken into two lists. Do not use more than one of the items from this first list in a keyword slug line. If a term from the second list is needed, it must follow any term from this list:

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|----------------------|
| Bjt | CORRECTIVE |
| 1st Ld, 2nd Ld, 10th Ld, etc. | CLARIFICATION |
| Adv 01, Adv 31, etc. | |
| Advisory | |
| HFR (Hold for Release) | |
| KILL | |
| WITHHOLD | |
| ELIMINATION | |

A term from the second list may stand alone in the version section if no term from the first list is needed. Some stories require two terms from the second list. If that is the case, the order in which the terms appear is not critical, but they must be separated by a hyphen. The second list:

- 2 Takes, 3 Takes, etc.
- 1st Add, 2nd Add, etc.
- Insert
- Sub
- CORRECTION
- Writethru
- Box (Sports only.)

REFERENCE NUMBER SECTION

Note that Bjt is not repeated in filing a lead.

The reference number is the transmission number used on a previous take of a story. List only one in a keyword line.

Follow these norms:

—Cite the number of the most recent lead if you are sending a new lead, sub, insert, correction, advisory, etc.

—If you are filing an add, cite only the transmission number on the immediately preceding take of the story.

—If a story has moved in many pieces and you think editors should have more reference numbers than the one in the keyword line, list on a line below the keyword slug line.

Use bt if the item is intended to be set in body type and contains even one tabular line.

Use at if the item is intended to be set in agate type and contains even one tabular line.

Use ax if the item is intended to be set in agate type but contains no tabular lines.

SPECIAL NOTE TO MEMBERS

FORMAT IDENTIFIERS on DataStream

The letters bx, at, etc., shown in the examples of format identifier do not appear on DataStream. However, they help generate non-printing characters that are sent in this location to convey the same information about whether the item is meant to be set in agate or body type and whether it contains tabular material.

The format identifier is comprised of two letters, which appear after the category code.

Use bx if the item is intended to be set in body type or standard text.

FILING PRACTICES

ADDS

In filing an add, place below the keyword slug line a slug that lists:

—The name of the datelined community followed by a colon. (Use UNDATED if the item does not have a dateline. The name of the community usually is adequate; include the state or country name only if needed to avoid confusion.)

—The last two words of the previous take.

PM-Air Fares, 1st Ld-1st Add, a0584

WASHINGTON: this year.<

ADVANCE SLUGS

Stories transmitted in advance on nationwide services require a minimum of two additional slugs.

The first allows the computer systems to key on the item. Use the notation $Adv followed by the two-digit release date shown in the keyword line.

The second slug line specifies the release date in more detail.

AM-New Team, ADV03-2 Takes

$Adv03<

For Release MON AMs, Aug. 3<

Any other slugs on the story follow the three shown here.

Be sure to use the a priority code if the advance is for week-day release, the s priority code if it is for Sunday release.

When filing a series use a consistent keyword but differentiate the parts by use of a Roman numeral.

PM-Regulators I, Adv10-3 Takes

PM-Regulators II, Adv11-3 Takes

For weekend or two-day advances:

BC-CA-Balance of Power, Adv09-10,930<

ADVISORIES

Advisories include a wide range of items from the news digests or budgets to one paragraph items saying a certain story or photo is in the works or has moved.

All advisories carry the v category code. Most advisories have the word Advisory in the version field, separated from the keyword by a comma. Some fixture advisories also have a three-letter identifier in the keyword line to make them easier to find.

Spot news advisories with information on a particular story should have a keyword the same as the story.

General information advisories may use the word Advisory in the keyword. It is not necessary to repeat Advisory in the version field.

BOLDFACE FOR SLUGS

Use the upper-rail key to create boldface for all slug lines as illustrated in these examples.

Some terminal screens display the symbol for boldface with a character that looks like this: †

Others use a character that looks like this: ^

BULLETINS

A decision on whether to slug a story bulletin or urgent rests with the supervisor in charge. The bulletin slug always must be used judiciously.

A bulletin should be kept short. Usually, one or two publishable sentences will be all that is needed to get a story started.

A bulletin should not carry a word count, byline, photo or graphics plans, editor's note or summary line. (One exception: an undated bulletin should carry a byline or By The Associated Press.)

A bulletin is always preceded by an APNewsAlert, which is a one-line nonpublishable headline. (See NewsAlerts entry in this section.)

bi

BULLETIN<

An urgent slug, with an urgent priority, is usually adequate for adds to a bulletin.

BYLINES

Except for prefixes such as Mac, Mc, Le, or De (writer's preference) and Sr. or Jr., a writer's name is entirely in capital letters.

The standard underline for full-time AP employees is Associated Press Writer. Abbreviate Associated Press to AP for specialty underlines such as AP Sports Writer and AP Special Correspondent.

Bylines and underlines are transmitted in boldface and marked for centering:

By F. JOSEF HEBERT=
Associated Press Writer=

By RICHARD N. OSTLING=
AP Religion Writer=

By CHARLES J. HANLEY=
AP Special Correspondent=

For undated stories when a writer's name is not used:

By The Associated Press=

Use dual bylines only in extraordinary cases. Center the word and on a separate line between the names as follows:

By SAMPLE AUTHOR= and= EXAMPLE WRITER=

When a story has been written by someone who is not an AP employee, a byline without an underline is adequate.

When a writer works for a newspaper, use an underline with just the name of the newspaper:

By NEWSPAPER WRITER= Hometown Citizen-Times=

CENTERING SYMBOL

Some terminal screens display the symbol with a character that looks like this: <->

Others use a character that looks like this: =

See the example under the bylines entry in this section.

CHANGING DATELINES (formerly PRECEDES)

The designation of 2nd, 3rd, 4th Ld, etc. continues in sequence even if the dateline changes on a story.

If a new lead shifts the dateline, follow the keyword line with a changes dateline slug:

ua
PM-Air Fares, 6th Ld-Writethru, a0910
Changes dateline from WASHINGTON.

CLARIFICATION

A clarification is a publishable story used to make more clear or to expand upon a previous story or reference which, while factually correct, may be unfair or subject to misinterpretation. It may be used only in cycles subsequent to the cycle in which a story moved. During the cycle in which a story moves, a writethru or a sub, with an explanatory editor's note, should be used.

A clarification must NOT be used as a substitute for a correction, a kill or a corrective. The clarification is used to provide background or detail in the interest of clarity or fairness. It is not used to correct errors in copy.

Clarifications must be approved by the General Desk before being filed by a bureau.

CORRECTIONS

Always use the priority code u.

On high-speed services a writethru is required with an editor's note explaining specifically the location of the correction and what it is.

uw

Eds: To CORRECT airline from American to TWA, sub 20th graf: The company ... until then.

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Always give the reason for a correction. Be specific. Do not use vague phrases such as to correct a figure — give the correct figure and the one it replaces. The objective is to let editors who may be on deadline know the severity of the error without having to go back to the original copy.

The following rules apply:

Do not file more than one correction to a story under the same transmission number unless the errors are in adjacent paragraphs.

Follow the keyword line with a slug that lists:

—The name of datelined community.

—The reason for the correction.

—The number of the affected paragraph. Include any other helpful guidance on locating the paragraph.

—The first two words of the paragraph, an ellipsis and the last two words of the paragraph.

Then give the revised paragraph.

End with a pickup line giving the first two words of the next paragraph.

For example:

uw

CORRECTIVES

DASH LINES

Use a line of three dashes to separate individual items sent within the same story file, such as several datelined stories in a package of briefs. Dashes also should be used on a separate line after a publishable editor's note.

The dash line may begin with either a paragraph or an upper rail. If it begins with a paragraph, a quad symbol at the end of the line is optional.

DISREGARDS

Use this to advise of material sent on the wire inadvertently, including old stories, duplicate stories, copy not meant for the wires. The advisory should say why the material should be disregarded

Others use a character that looks like this: <

GLANCES

Glances are brief listings of information that accompany a story, although some may occasionally stand alone.

Glances and other layering devices, such as bio boxes, chronologies, lists and highlights, are always undated and carry a line referring to the main story.

Layering devices provide expanded detail, give editors a way to dress up a page and serve as points of entry for readers.

They should be listed with related stories on digests and advisories.

HEADLINES

All stories should have headlines giving the essence of what a story is about.

A summary line should be no more than one line in length and is on the line immediately below the keyword line. (If there is an editor's note, it follows the summary line.) Articles, prepositions, conjunctions of three letters or fewer are lowercased.

rw

HOLD-FOR-RELEASE SLUGS

In assigning priority codes and writing the keyword line, treat as spot copy any story that is for release within the current filing cycle at a set time or that is to be released upon movement of a wire note advising that an expected event has taken place.

All embargoed copy contains HFR (Hold for Release) in the version field of the keyword line. A hyphen separates HFR from other information in the version field.

Place the necessary cautions about release on a second slug line immediately under the keyword slug line. For example:

rw

BC-XX- -State of the Union, HFR-4 takes (where XX is the state postal code; no postal code for national services)

HOLD FOR RELEASE, expected about noon EST.

Or:

da

AM-XX- -Statistics, HFR

For Release 6:30 p.m. EST.

Also see the release times entry in the basic style section.

INSERTS

On high-speed services inserts are made with writethru leads, with an editor's note saying where the insert goes and what it does.

On the slow-speed services, follow the keyword line with a slug that lists:

—The dateline city.

—The reason for the insert.

—The first two words of the paragraph that the insert is to follow.

—The first two words of that paragraph, an ellipsis, and the last two words.

Then provide the insert.

End with a pickup line giving the first two words of the next paragraph.

For example:

KILLS

See Procedures section of Libel chapters.

LEADS

With the exception of breaking stories, all leads on the national services should be writethrus with editor's notes saying what is being updated.

File a new lead to a story whenever developments warrant.

On state and regional services, do not attempt to update a story by filing a sub or insert to be placed higher than the 4th paragraph of a story. Instead, file a new lead.

If the first paragraph of the new lead is unchanged from the previous lead, provide a non-publishable editor's note explaining the reason for the lead, such as:

Eds: UPDATES 2nd graf with new figures.<

The designation of 2nd, 3rd, 4th Ld, etc., continues in sequence even if the dateline changes. See the precedes entry in this section.

LOGOS

Follow the dateline by the AP logo enclosed in parentheses without spaces. Put spaces on both sides of the dash that follows:

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An earthquake struck the city today.

MORE LINES

A MORE indication, if needed at the conclusion of a take of copy, should:

—Begin with a paragraph mark.

—Be followed by a boldface mark and the word MORE in caps:

A one-line, nonpublishable headline that briefly describes a story about to move as a bulletin or urgent. If a NewsAlert is filed, do not also file a similar advisory. A NewsAlert must be followed quickly by a bulletin or urgent.

NewsAlerts should have a b priority and an a, f, i, s or w category code, depending on the desk of origin. They should always carry the simple slug: BC-APNewsAlert.

The text should include a dateline. It should also include attribution in cases when it helps clarify the source of the information.

A sample:

ba

BC-APNewsAlert

For transcendent developments, use an underline with the word FLASH and follow immediately with a publishable bulletin.

fa

(See FLASH)

NONPUBLISHABLE EDITOR'S NOTES

Editor's notes not intended for publication should be marked for boldface and end with a flush left symbol.

Do not precede a nonpublishable editor's note with a paragraph symbol.

Eds: UPDATES 2nd graf with new figures.<

NONTRANSMITTING SYMBOLS

The following are symbols that should not be used in standard AP wire transmissions.

Some of the symbols can be sent and received by some computers but are not generally used because they are not available throughout the newspaper industry or may act as control characters to make a computer perform a function rather than print a character.

accent marks Do not use them; they cause garbled copy in some newspaper computers.

asterisk * Rarely translates and in many cases cannot be sent by AP computers or received by newspaper computers. No substitution.

@ Does not exist. Spell out, as in some computer addresses: president(at)whitehouse.gov. (In these cases, put an editor's note at the top of the story explaining that the symbol cannot be transmitted on the wire.)

brackets [] Rarely translates and in many cases cannot be sent by AP computers or received by newspaper computers. Use parentheses.

bullets • Do not use because they cannot be transmitted without causing problems with some newspaper computers. Use dash instead.

cent ¢ Does not exist. Spell out.

equals = This is the control symbol for centering. In some computers it can be translated and printed but it is best spelled out.

percent % Rarely translates and in many cases cannot be sent by AP computers or received by newspaper computers.

pound sign £ or # Frequently a control character. Rarely translates and in many cases cannot be sent by AP computers or received by newspaper computers.

slash / Many newspapers translate the slash into other characters or use it as a control symbol. Substitute a hyphen whenever possible. If it is necessary to use a slash in a story, as in the case of Internet addresses, include a nonpublishable editor's note explaining that the slash may not be transmitted correctly in some member computing systems.

tilde ~ Do not use the symbol. If necessary for Internet addresses, write out the word and put it in parentheses with an editor's note at the top of the story explaining it is a nontransmitting character.

Others:

Symbols for start-of-header, start-of-text, end-of-text, end-of-transmission and the like cannot be printed and when contained in text may confuse the computer. To use in text they have to be spelled out or abbreviated in regular characters: "start-of-text," "stx."

Symbols and combinations of characters and symbols used by foreign languages generally cannot be transmitted or received by AP and newspaper computers even when they may be shown on keyboards. For example, umlauts have to be formed using two regular letters when they are needed: “Goethe” where the “oe” is the unlauded “o.”

Typesetting symbols such as tab-line-indicators, tab-field-indicators, en, em, thin should only be used to set tabular copy. Spell out when used in text. They may or may not print and might confuse a computer.

Other typefaces such as italic cannot be sent through AP computers and on the news services.

PRECEDES See CHANGING DATELINES.

PUBLISHABLE EDITOR'S NOTES

Publishable editor's notes follow the summary line and should begin with a paragraph symbol, followed by:

- The words EDITOR'S NOTE in all caps.
- A space, a dash and a space.
- The text of the note.
- A dash line.

Do not put the note in parentheses.

Do not boldface the publishable note.

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second installment of a three-part series on governmental agencies.

TABLES

More and more newspapers are turning to tabular material to illustrate stories that deal with numbers and statistics.

The construction of tables can be a real art that is often laborious and time-consuming. The following rules are designed to help build simple tables.

1. Every story or file that has even one line of tabular material in it must have a tabular format identifier in the priority-category code line.

The identifier may be bt for body-tabular or at for agate-tabular, but it MUST be there.

Examples: rmbt, rnat.

2. Every tabular line must begin with a tab line indicator symbol called a tli.

3. Immediately before the first character of the first tabulated column there must be a tab field indicator symbol represented by a tfi. There must be at least one space between the last character of the first column following the tli and the tfi preceding the first tabbed column.

Example:

tliVerylongname	tfi000 000 00

4. The number of the columns and the width of the entire format are restricted by how they will fit in a newspaper and not by the margin of the services on which they are being sent. A good rule of thumb is to use as many abbreviations as possible while keeping the table understandable.

The basic rule for AP tables is that an agate table may not exceed 392 units and a body type table cannot exceed 293.

Each letter and number has a unit count. By totaling the units of all of the characters you will find whether the table will fit.

The unit count is fixed and does not change for the various newspaper type fonts. Theoretically it will fit all.

Here are the counts:

A -	14	a -	11	T -	13	t -	7
B -	14	b -	11	U -	15	u -	11
C -	13	c -	13	V -	14	v -	11
D -	15	d -	11	W -	18	w -	15
E -	15	e -	10	X -	15	x -	11
F -	14	f -	7	Y -	15	y -	11
G -	15	g -	11	Z -	12	z -	9
H -	15	h -	11
I -	8	i -	6	0 -	9	1 -	9
J -	11	j -	7	2 -	9	3 -	9
K -	15	k -	11	4 -	9	5 -	9
L -	13	l -	6	6 -	9	7 -	9
M -	18	m -	18	8 -	9	9 -	9
N -	15	n -	11	, -	6	. -	6
O -	14	o -	10
P -	14	p -	11	All fractions are 18 units
Q -	14	q -	11
R -	15	r -	9	EM -	18 (MUTT)	EN -	9 (NUTT)
S -	11	s -	9	THIN -	6

As you can see from the above table, all characters are not 18, nine or six units, but vary. However, you can use em, en and thin symbols to get within one unit of a character's width.

By figuring out how to set the line with the most characters, you can get the basic table width and all other lines should fall properly into place.

You can put in the em, en or thin symbols manually but frequently the standard AP computer will do it adequately once the file is stored in the system.

URGENTS

For the first break on an urgent story, the initial urgent should be only a few paragraphs, followed by subsequent takes to form an urgent series. Subsequent urgent-caliber developments on the story should also be filed as an urgent series, or as a short, urgent lead picking up into the previous story. Writethrus adding other significant developments on a major story may also be slugged urgent, and need not be broken up into takes. But use care in using the urgent slug on long writethrus. The material may well call for a new, short urgent.

A decision on whether to slug a story URGENT rests with the supervisor. In general, however, avoid the casual use of the slug or priority.

Always place an urgent slug immediately below the keyword line.

The word URGENT should be boldface, all caps and flush left on a line by itself. A story with an urgent slug should always have an urgent priority code. The urgent priority code also may be used, however, if an item is not urgent but needs to be moved on an urgent basis.

The slugging of a typical urgent:

WITHHOLDS

See Procedures section of Libel chapters.

WORD COUNTS

Most computers automatically put in the word count.

If the word count is not automatic, put it in at the end of the keyword line immediately following the final comma, without a space.

WRITETHRUS

On national services, all leads are writethrus. On state and regional services, a lead is slugged Writethru when there are no plans to pick up any of the previously transmitted story.

Be bullish about filing writethrus on state and regional services, particularly when many leads, inserts and subs have been filed on a story.
