THE CLEVELAND HISTORY CENTER AT WESTERN RESERVE HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Founded in May 1867, the Western Reserve Historical Society is Cleveland's oldest existing cultural institution. It was established as the historical branch of the Cleveland Library Association which dates from 1848. The Society's creation was part of an important trend in the United States, the establishment of private organizations to oversee the collection and preservation of documents and objects relating to various aspects of national, regional and local history. While its original focus was on the history of Cleveland and the Western Reserve, it now concentrates on the history of Northeast Ohio. Today, the Cleveland History Center houses the Research Library, the Crawford Auto Aviation Museum, the Chisholm Halle Costume Wing (home to fashion exhibits), two historic mansions, Kidzibits Family Hands-on Gallery, as well as its administrative offices.

The Cleveland Public Library's Main Library complex is the central library facility in our system. The historic Main Library Building was designed and built as part of Daniel Burnham's Group Plan of 1903. This downtown campus offers a variety of spaces and venues: the neo-Classical elegance of the Main Building (completed in 1925), bright modern spaces in the Louis Stokes Wing (1997) and the urban oasis of the Eastman Reading Garden between the two buildings. Beautiful public artworks and sculptures abound, including the whimsical garden gates designed by Tom Otterness, fountain designed by Maya Lin, architectural and pictorial artworks and sweeping WPA-era murals. For business needs, a variety of meeting spaces and a 260-seat auditorium (maximum seating capacity: 312) provide an array of venues for business meetings, presentations and gatherings.

PUBLIC AUDITORIUM

Public Auditorium provides a unique, historic atmosphere. Opened since 1922, General Eisenhower spoke here, Duke Ellington played here, as did Elvis and The Beatles. And, more recently, the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame held their induction ceremonies here. Public Auditorium underwent a multi-million dollar renovation and offers underground connectivity to the Cleveland Convention Center. Filled with murals and ornate details, the building is popular for fundraisers, conventions, conferences, weddings and exhibitions. The hall includes a large registration lobby, the 10,000-seat Public Auditorium, 3,000-seat Cleveland Music Hall and 600-seat Little Theater. Fifteen meeting rooms can accommodate groups of 10 to 700.

THE SARAH BENEDICT HOUSE

The Sarah Benedict House is the home of the Cleveland Restoration Society. It is a beautifully restored 1883 mansion that was close to Cleveland's Millionaire's Row. The 1st floor is ideal for meetings, receptions and seated dinners, featuring wood paneling, hand stenciled wall decorations and appropriate furnishings. There are four adjoining rooms, kitchen and two restrooms. The house has a magnificent outdoor patio and garden space. Plants and flowers from a typical 1880s garden are combined with elements of contemporary art. The granite paved upper level is set off from the grassy lawn below by a stone "fireplace" fountain, where jets of water mimic flames and cascade down a stone staircase. An ornamental iron fence and trellis enclosure create the feeling of an outdoor room.

OUR PARTNERS

The 5th Street Arcades are situated in the heart of downtown Cleveland, running parallel between East 4th and East 6th Streets, bound by Euclid and Prospect Avenues at each end. These century-old shopping arcades are unique architectural landmarks. The Colonial Arcade, built in 1898, and the Euclid Arcade, constructed in 1911, were connected in 2000 – when the historic Colonial Hotel, which sits atop the Colonial Arcade, was renovated and reopened as the Marriott Residence Inn.

CROP BISTRO & BAR

Since its June 2007 launch in the heart of Cleveland's Warehouse District, Crop Bistro & Bar has grown into the city's most innovative restaurant, featuring a distinctive menu of inventive American cuisine, built upon foundations of freshness, flavor and whimsy. A project of well-seasoned chef and food professional Steve Schimoler, Crop was originally imagined as a laboratory for Chef Steve's cutting-edge culinary research – a Customized Restaurant Operations Platform, if you will. Today, that concept has evolved into a casually elegant showplace for Steve's signature fare. Discerning diners will find Crop's menu enticing yet approachable, relying heavily on products culled from the region's small farms. Like the harvest, the dishes change frequently to best utilize all that is freshest and most fiercely delicious.

SLEEPY HOLLOW GOLF COURSE

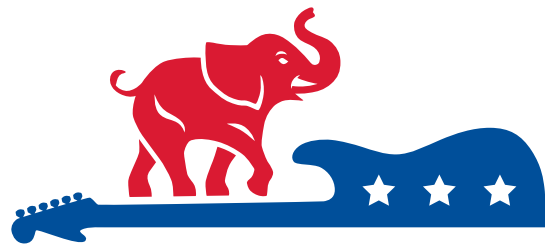

Golfweek magazine has ranked Sleepy Hollow Golf Course as the #1 municipal course in Ohio and the #14 in America. With its spectacular views of Cuyahoga River Valley and classic layout, Sleepy Hollow Golf Course ranks as one of the great golf challenges in Cleveland. The course was designed by Stanley Thompson, a member of the Royal Canadian Golf Hall of Fame. It opened in 1924 as a private country club on land leased from Cleveland Metroparks and was opened to public play in 1963. Sleepy Hollow has been the site for many amateur and professional events including qualifying events for USGA championships and every other year hosting the Greater Cleveland Amateur Championship.
