An object is not necessarily a variable. `int *p = malloc(sizeof p);` involves two objects: the variable `p` of type `int`, and another object with no name of type `int` that `p` points to, in allocated storage. Compound literals also designate objects that are not variables.

The U.S. Supreme Court has made a lot of bad decisions throughout our nation's history. Some of its worst decisions are in death penalty cases. Over the coming weeks and months, I'd like to have a conversation with you here on Twitter about some of these #SupremelyBad cases.

The U.S. Supreme Court's original sin when it comes to the modern death penalty is the #SupremelyBad Gregg v. Georgia decision from 1976. Before we look at Gregg, though, we have to talk about the case that came before it: Furman v. Georgia from 1972.

The Furman decision, which resulted in all death sentences nationwide being thrown out, held that death penalty laws were unconstitutional because the way they were administered was arbitrary, capricious, and discriminatory.

(Thread) Mueller's Testimony tomorrow

First let's talk about the real problem, which is twofold: ✧A significant percentage of voters—knowing who Trump is—approve of him, and ✧Trump is being shielded by a major political party and a well-oiled propaganda machine.

1/ Back when I was naive—2016—I believed when the public became aware of the extent of Trump's crimes and corruption, he would lose support and would be removed from office.

I began assembling this list as reported in reliable news sources: russia-investigation-summary.com/crimes/ Check it out.

2/ In 1980 and 2000, I learned to trust polls and nothing since has dissuaded me. I prefer 538 polling aggregate because it prevents us from cherry picking polls we like.

Each time news of one of Trump's crimes broke, I watched the polls. projects.fivethirtyeight.com/trump-approval...

After 70 years of imperial/neoliberal indoctrination the web of lies is so obviously absurde (9/11, Skripal, WH = ISIS, etc.), that it is dissoluting. The empathetic humanity connects, closes ranks and sends their eternal psychopathic rulers and their lackeys into nowhere land.

The "evil empire" is a lifelong three year old child. I certainly loved my children at that age too, however only because they created not only a surreal mess, but also made steady progress.

A great documentary about psychopathy and society:

The elite invented "democracy" to protect them from the empathetic people. The media are their means for misleading the people sedated by

"democracy". This is definitely a bad thing since the people have become educated and the elite almost totally insane.

1. The 2018 Election NEEDS a NAME

Conservatives NEED a NAME for the 2018 elections.

Democrats have Blue Wave.

2. A frame helps focus things. It motivates. It inspires. It provides clarity. It also can provide urgency. It gives meaning.

What creates urgency and motivation far better?

A blue wave? Or an "election?"

A blue wave? Or "the midterms"?

3. Framing is a big topic, but let's focus on it as it pertains to this upcoming election, shall we?
